Dear Lynn,

This responds to your 9 July letter, which arrived while I was in Britain leading a genealogical research tour.

Thank you for the package of Edwards lore that you sent with your letter of inquiry. I was pleased to learn that you consider it a "start to validate or learn otherwise!" I am sorry to report that yours will mainly be a task of learning otherwise!! Unfortunately, there are dozens (probably hundreds, dare I guess thousands?) of garbled stories floating around about James Edwards, his parents, his wife and his children.

You wrote on your version that it was written by your "aunt Antoinette Main Mason in the '80s"; however, it appears to be almost a word-for-word copy of material written in the 1970s by a distant cousin of ours named Glen Woods. Sadly, Glen was neither a genealogist nor a researcher; although he thought he was both. It appears from my file of letters he sent and received that what he mainly did was to recycle bits and pieces of lore he received from distant relatives. Then, they recycled his lore.

I found at least two mistakes in the vignette you sent of your ancestor Charles Edwards. The Orange Edwards who married Catherine Le Fevre did not have the middle name Kerr. My understanding is that Orange Kerr Edwards died young in Brown County, Ohio. (See my article "A Basket of Oranges, " enclosed.) I do not know the identity of his parents. Could he have been a son of Orange Edwards and Catherine LeFevre??? Anyway, whoever wrote this vignette made one other mistake, so take care in using it. Orange's son William Hayden Edwards was not U.S. Ambassador to Russia; he was Consul General in St. Petersburg and later in Berlin, where he died. His obituary appeared in the New York Times, 17 May 1894, p. 4, col. 6.

I am returning your descendancy chart. I rather brutally marked up the first generation or so. That is because for the first four generations, most of it is either wholly or partially wrong. (I make no judgment on later generations except to say: Look for primary sources: the census, parish registers etc.) My purpose was not to hurt your feelings, but to suggest that it really is not worth the time and effort to enter into a computer program information found in letters and memoirs. The assertions made in them should only be used as clues; you must get your facts from primary sources. To save you time and effort, do not bother to look in the Holy Well parish register. There is no Richard Edwards there; very probably, the father of William Edwards was James Edwards in Kinnernie (see William Edward, Parts I and II, enclosed). By the way, the Welsh connection was a product of Glen Woods and his need to reconcile our family with the other claimants to the "Edwards Estate."

This leads me to another point. Anyone surnamed Edwards must verify and prove everything--and I mean everything--found in letters, memoirs and even copies of "documents" in private hands. This is because a few of our ancestors forged documents and made up ancestors in order to qualify for the "Edwards Estate." Or, they copied materials that were copied by someone who copied from someone else who forged or made up or misunderstood his ancestry. In other words, you have to be very, very careful that what you have been told by others is not just plain wrong.

I enclose my article entitled "Estate Fraud and Spurious Pedigrees." From it you will discover that Robert Alexander Edwards was a created name. The ancestor was named Alexander, but those desiring a share in the "estate" needed an ancestor named Robert. So, they changed it! I also enclose another article which will clarify the names of James Edwards's children.

I am currently working on another article. This one will prove that James's wife Sarah could not possibly have had such names as Songster and Everett. Further, there is no evidence whatsoever that her son had Everett as a middle name. Further, my article will show why it is most unlikely his parents would have given him that name. Everett appears to have been first given to a grandson of this William Edwards! Not only that, James's wife was not from New York nor did James live there as a young man. Finally, he was never apprenticed to a blacksmith. As you can see, the story you received from your aunt is mostly "otherwise."

I have not completed the book that Mary Sue mentioned. My problem is that I attempt to tackle more than one project at a time. While working on one, a question arises. I assume finding the answer will be a small, quickly completed task. Before I know it, a book-length project has developed. For example, when I first started to research my own family's version of the story about our ancestor James Edwards, I did not expect to discover that millions of people named Edwards (and about 100 other surnames) were taken for a financial ride for upwards of 150 years seeking shares in enormous unclaimed estates supposedly in their background! These "estates" never existed except as figments of their imaginations. By the way, the "Edwards Estate" is the only one of the nineteenth century frauds to continue to this day. I would be interested in hearing what Paul Harvey had to say about it.

A second project developed out of my attempt to verify the story that "Eleanor Laws" was the niece of a so-called "Duke of Orange" who later became William III of England. This nonsense seems to come from a 20th century Orange Edwards who, apparently, thought Orange as a given name had to be explained. Then Glen Woods inscribed it into stone by turning speculation into "fact." Had Glen undertaken what turned into an enormous research project on the origins, possible reasons for, and spread of the name Orange he would have learned that, as a given name for men, Orange originated in New England in the late 17th century. Prior to that it was a woman's name and has continued in very infrequently for women since then; though rare, it has much more frequently been given to boys than to girls. Orange became fairly widespread in the nineteenth century and continues in

BOOK REVIEW

"Tak Tent o' Lear"; a history of Dunnottar School, Stonehaven, by Alisoun S. Nicol, with illustrations by pupils of Dunnottar School. 99 pages.
Printed by the Graphics and Printing Dept., School Resources Centre, Little Belmont Street, Aberdeen. ( 1989 ).

The 100th birthday of the present Dunnottar School was celebrated by staff, parents and pupils in March 1989. This booklet puts on permanent record the development, the problems and the achievements not only of the present school but of two previous establishments of the same name, the first Dunnottar School having been in existence during the late 18th century. Records of the first school are sparse, but for the second school, occupied from 1853 - 1889, we are given a more detailed account of the premises, the curriculum and the staff. Fortunately for us, school log-books became a statutory requirement in 1864 enabling the author to tell us of daily events in the life of the school including work progress, staff changes or illnesses.

In her first chapter, the author rightly points out the impropriety of recording the history of any institution without first considering the system which gave it birth. She therefore presents the history of Dunnottar School in the context of the evolving Scottish Educational system. Similarly, school events are presented alongside reminders of contemporary happenings on a world, national or local scale.

This well-written booklet will be of prime interest to those who have connections with the Stonehaven area but it will also provide background material for any researcher whose forebears attended school in North-East Scotland. Names of school staff are included, together with full biographical details of successive Headmasters. The text is accompanied by a number of photographs and line drawings, many of which are the work of the pupils.

Moira Henderson, No. 73.

EDUCATION IN SOME EIGHTEENTH-CENTURY ABERDEENSHIRE PARISHES

In 1741 my ancestor William Edward appeared before the Aberdeen Burgh Court. He had left his parish of settlement to look for work in the town. When he was ordered to remove himself from Aberdeen, he signed his name pledging his word to depart by Whitsunday, 18 May. In 1749 his wife, Helen Law, appeared before the same court and agreed to vacate her flat outside the Justice Port; she could only make her mark, HL. She made this mark often. Once or twice it was accompanied by the statement: "declares she cannot write". Their son, James Edwards, came to America in 1740 at age thirteen. The documents that record his settlement in Fairfax County, Virginia, and his subsequent moves to Mason County, Kentucky, and to Brown County, Ohio, also bear witness that he could not sign his name; instead, he made a mark of his initials, which he rendered IE.

In thinking about William's signature and his wife's and son's marks, I have often wondered about their education. Did they go to school? How many years in school did they have? What might they have been taught? What differences were there in the instruction offered to boys and girls? Although I have investigated these questions, I must admit that there is much that I still do not know. Nevertheless, the results of my exploration might prove helpful to family historians who wish to investigate the educational opportunities of their own eighteenth-century ancestors.

SOCIAL HISTORY

I first consulted some social histories of Scotland. Henry Grey Graham (The Social Life of Scotland in the Eighteenth Century [London: Adam and Charles Black, 1906]) describes education in eighteenth-century Scotland, but answers almost none of my questions. This is because he based his summary largely on information gleaned from letters and memoirs. Such documents were usually created by the well-educated and well-heeled; nevertheless, Graham's report provides the best overview I have found.

> When boys were old enough they were sent to the parish school, or to the nearest grammar school, where the Latinity [sic] was better, though the class of scholars was the same. Thither, at six or seven o'clock in the morning they trudged, carrying their dinner with them, and not returning till evening, ... Often the sons of great houses boarded with the teacher of the burgh school; lodging, food, and education cost but a few pounds. In fine fraternity boys of all ranks met in wholesome rivalry. The son of the nobleman and the son of the carpenter sat in the same room, and had the same instruction; the tenant and the laird alike paid half a crown or three shillings a quarter for their boys' tuition at the burgh school, and the laced clothes of the lord's heir were soon as shabby and as little regarded as the ragged clothes of the blacksmith's son. Roughness, vulgarities of tone and manner, were doubtless the > results of this promiscuous association, all speaking the same broad Scots tongue. But much was rubbed off when youths went to college and entered society. (p. 21)

When discussing the education of girls, Graham's overview concentrates solely on the daughters of the well-to-do; presumably, other girls did not attend school at all:

> The education of girls was more rudimentary, far more practical than intellectual or artistic; to sew, to knit, to spin, were the chief accomplishments for a lady's hands. To read, to write--both very badly--to play a little on the viol or virginal . . . were the highest feminine achievements. At home a chaplain probably taught the infantile lessons, and sometimes acted as tutor and examined in the Scriptures and Catechism. If a governess was required she could be got cheap; that she was extremely ignorant was a mere matter of detail. For five pounds sterling and a frock an instructor of youth with all educational requirements could be hired for the highest families; and she was quite acceptable although she knew nothing of literature or languages, and could not even write or spell respectably in her own tongue . . . .. After acquiring some scraps of misinformation, . . . the daughters were sent to a country town which could boast of a mistress of refined education, where they were cheaply taught, lodged and boarded; or they were sent to Edinburgh, where in some lofty flat in the Lawnmarket closes, the requisite branches of polite instruction were taught by a mistress, who being a poor member of a family of quality, became a "mistress of manners" and took pupils not because she had anything she could teach, but because she had too little income to live on . . . .. The girl learned deportment, dancing, knitting, and music; how . . . to go through a minuet [and] to carry her fan with grace. . . .. When young ladies returned home as "finished" they resumed their household work; relearned its duties and unlearned their lessons, and remained throughout their days uncontaminated by literature (pp. 22-3).

I have encountered no fuller description of eighteenth-century Scottish education than this; unfortunately, there is little in it relevant to the education of my ancestors. Nevertheless, one conclusion seems obvious: if the education of the daughters of lairds was as poor as Graham reports, then the evidence that Helen Law could create a mark with her initials instead of with an X suggests that she might have had more education than the average country girl.

THE STATISTICAL ACCOUNT OF SCOTLAND

In 1790 Sir John Sinclair of Ulbster distributed questionnaires containing 160 items to the 938 parish ministers of Scotland. He requested information about every aspect of life, e.g., religion, agriculture, occupations, marriage and family customs, health, and schools, to name but a few. Over the next nine years he compiled and published each parish minister's report. There is little uniformity in the responses; nevertheless, The Statistical Account of Scotland provides a unique description of life in the eighteenth century. Nothing like it exists for such an early period in any other country and every family historian with roots in Scotland should consult it. References to The Statistical Account of Scotland (SAS) in this articleare to the facsimile edition, published in 1983, and edited by D J Withrington and I R Grant.

One of my projects has been to trace the descendants of each of Helen Law's siblings. Over three or four generations, they moved gradually north from Deeside into Donside. I have studied the reports of each of the parishes in which they lived. For this article I bring together the information these reports contain about their parish schools. For those parishes in which James Edwards, his parents and grandparents lived, I show what conclusions I can draw about their education. The parishes in which Helen Law's collateral descendants lived are included to illustrate the variety of information about the schools that can be found in The Statistical Account.

Banchory Ternan

Banchory Ternan is in Kincardineshire, but Helen Law's father, Duncan Law, was born north of the Dee at the farmtown of Cluny (now Cluny Crichton), so I include it here. In 1790, the Reverend Mr Francis Douney reported the parish had a school that offered Latin, English, writing and arithmetic. It had a headmaster and two assistants, so it must have been large. He also reported a school for educating girls, but he did not mention the curriculum. He reported that Dr. Alexander Reid and "another gentleman" [Sir Thomas Burnett of Leys] had mortified [endowed] it generously (SAS, XIV:26).

A second statistical account, taken about fifty years later, is available for Kincardineshire and it provides more detail about the early history of the Banchory schools. At an unstated date, but apparently before 1663, Sir Thomas Burnett of Leys, a patron of learning (who had contributed generously to the endowment of the "College of Old Aberdeen"), joined with Dr. Alexander Reid to found and endow "a grammar school for boys, and a sewing school for girls". (The New Statistical Account of Scotland, Kincardineshire [Edinburgh: William Blackwood and Sons, 1845]: 340.) These schools sound very like those described by Graham.

The Banchory Baptism Register does not begin until 1670. For reasons too complicated to report here, I believe that Duncan Law was born not long before that date to an earlier Duncan La (sometimes spelled Lay). If so, the younger Duncan could h gone to the school in Banchory; probably, he studied writi arithmetic because he became a merchant. Possibly, he also studied English, although it is unlikely that he learned Latin. As Graham points out, only boys planning to go to university studied Latin. Statistics for Kincardine O'Neil (see below) show that of 240 scholars, only four were studying Latin.

Cluny

The Reverend Mr Robert Michie reported that the parish of Cluny (not to be confused with the farmtown of Cluny in Banchory Ternan) also had a school offering Latin, English, writing, arithmetic and book-keeping. In 1790, it had sixty scholars in winter and fifty in summer. Mr Michie felt the need to report his view that the schoolmaster was underpaid:

> It is much to be regretted, that schoolmasters, who generally get an University education, and are a most useful class of men to the community, should be so miserably provided for, as to have scarcely the necessaries of life.

We might wonder what the schoolmaster was paid. Part of his salary, paid in kind, consisted of seven bolls, two lippies of meal, at eight stones per boll, a statement that probably needs some explanation. Bolls and lippies were Scottish measures of volume (sixty-four lippies equal one boll). The size of a boll could vary from place to place, so to make sure of the amount, a weight was sometimes stipulated. (The Pocket Scots Dictionary, p. 359, provides a handy set of tables for converting archaic measures into modern terms.) Here the bolls were to weigh eight stones (sixteen lbs in Scots measure), so the schoolmaster was probably given about 113 lbs of oatmeal a year. His basic cash salary was £2 7s 4d Sterling. In addition, he received quarterly fees for teaching certain courses: 1s 4d for English and 2s for writing and arithmetic; and 2s 6d for Latin (SAS, XIV:450). From this (and the statistics reported for Kincardine O'Neil) we can deduce that these courses were electives and that not every child studied every available course. We can further deduce that parents who were poor could not have afforded much of an education for their children.

Dyce

The Reverend Mr William Wilson reported that the parochial school was small and drew twenty or thirty scholars in the winter and fourteen or fifteen in the summer. It was not until 1781 that a schoolmaster was paid a "legal salary" and in 1790 the salary was only £5 12s. He did not mention anything about the curriculum or any fees attached to it (SAS, XIV:491). If the schoolmaster earned nothing more, then his salary was not even equal to what farm servants were paid in Kemnay (see below).

The school was in the village of Dyce; this was on the eastern side of the Tyrebagger, a treacherous hill in the eighteenth century. Mr Wilson reported that "formerly the road from Garioch to Aberdeen went over the middle of it, which must have been very tiresome to travellers". My immigrant ancestor, James Edwards, lived at Caiesmill on the western side of the Tyrebagger. Dyce might not have had a functioning school between 1736 and 1739 when the Edwards family lived in that parish. Moreover, a nine- to twelve-year-old boy would not have crossed the Tyrebagger regularly to attend school. The minister at Kincardine O'Neil reported that its parish school failed to serve the children who lived in outlying areas. Consequently, it is not a surprise that James Edwards could write no more than his initials when he signed important documents.

Echt

The Reverend Mr Alexander Henderson did not describe the school in Echt. We can deduce that there was one, because his list of the occupations of the inhabitants who were not farmers included a schoolmaster and two students at university (SAS, XIV:492-498). Helen Law's family moved to Echt in 1712 when she was about ten years old. The tenor of Mr Henderson's report suggests that in 1790 Echt was a prosperous parish. If it had been so eighty years earlier, its school would have been a good one. Perhaps Helen did not attend it, but her younger brothers probably did.

1702

Chapel of Garioch

The Reverend Mr John Shand reported that thirty scholars attended the parish school. He described the schoolmaster as "very diligent and attentive". His salary was paid entirely in kind: that is, fourteen bolls, seven pecks of oatmeal; assuming a boll of sixteen lbs, this was about 232 lbs. Mr Shand reported that the schoolmaster also received a fee of 1s. 6d. per quarter for teaching arithmetic and writing and 2s. for Latin. Finally, as session clerk, he received forty merks (SAS, XV:192). Probably, a fee paid in merks, an archaic form of Scots money, needs explanation. The Pocket Scots Dictionary reports that one merk equals 13s 4d, so forty merks would have been £26 13s 4d per year. It should be understood, however, that £12 Scots was the equivalent of only £1 Sterling. Thus, as session clerk, the schoolmaster earned £2 4s 5d Sterling.

Most schoolmasters augmented their meagre salaries by functioning as the session clerk, but Mr Shand was the only one to mention it. If the salary other schoolmasters received for their work as session clerk was roughly comparable to that paid in Chapel of Garioch, then we should add about £2 to each reported salary.

Kemnay

In 1790 the Reverend Mr Patrick Mitchell described the school house as "tolerable" and reported that the schoolmaster's living did not exceed £8 Sterling per year. Mr Mitchell provided other figures that allow insight into how little this was for a university-educated man: unmarried male farm servants were earning from £5 to £7 Sterling plus room and board (SAS, XIV:533-535).

Kincardine O'Neil

The Reverend Mr William Morrice reported some statistics that a modern teacher would find shocking. In 1790 the parish had one schoolmaster, 240 students learning English and writing, and four studying Latin. His description of the school is worth quoting in full:

> There is a regular parochial school in this parish, but like many others, the salary is by far too small to afford encouragement to a qualified teacher--the salary and emoluments not exceeding £12. Owing to its not being centrical, about two-thirds of the parish can derive no benefit from it. Till about a dozen years ago, the distant parts of the parish had the advantage of a charity school, paid by the Society for Propagating Christian Knowledge; but were deprived of it, as was said, because regular attendance was not given to the parochial school. There is now a qualified teacher settled, and regular attention given; and it were much to be wished, that the Society would again indulge this parish with a charity schoolmaster (SAS, XIV:551, 557).

In his statistical table, Mr Morrice reported that Kincardine O'Neil is seven miles long and five miles wide. He does not report where the parish school was located, but it seems obvious that it was in the village of Kincardine O'Neil. In 1875 the parish made plans to build a new church in a more central location. A map created to support the proposal (SRO, RHP 44099) shows the new church would be built just north of the Deeside Railway in what is now Torphins. This is about a mile and one-quarter northwest of Craigour (Kincardine O'Neil is about five miles from Craigour). Duncan Law (spelled Ley and Lay in Kincardine O'Neil) lived at Craigour from at least 1695 until 1712, when Helen would have been about ten years old. Unless his children boarded in the village, it seems unlikely that any of them attended the parish school.

Kinnernie

For reasons too complex to report here, I have concluded that William Edward was born in the old kirktown in Kinnernie. He lived on the estate of Ballogie, part of which was in Midmar. When Kinnernie ceased to be a parish in 1743, the Ballogie lands of Kinnernie became part of Midmar. Consequently, there is no report about the former parish of Kinnernie in The Statistical Account. William Edward was a miller and was probably apprenticed to James Lessly, the miller who in 1695 lived next to James Edward in Kinnernie (John Stuart, A List of Pollable Persons within the Shire of Aberdeen, 1696, 2 vols. [Aberdeen: William Bennett, 1844], I:195). Probably, he attended the Kinnernie parish school, if there was one.

Midmar

In 1790, the Reverend Dr John Ogilvie provided many interesting facts about the people of his parish. Among these were comments on their extraordinary stature, strength, longevity, and the fact that they all spoke Scots. However, he reported not one word about their education at the parish school (SAS, XIV:607-617). James Edwards lived in Midmar from his birth in 1727 until about 1736, when he would have been nine. Obviously, he was exposed to the alphabet; at least he learned the initials of his own name, but there is nothing more that I can conclude about his education.

Monymusk

The Reverend Mr Alexander Duff reported on floods and thunderstorms, on the frequency of rheumatism, and when wheat, barley and oats were sown and reaped. However, he reported nothing about the parish school (SAS, XIV:618-629).

Oyne

The Reverend Mr Alexander Cushny reported that "there is only one school in the parish. The school master's salary is £11 2s. 6d., but he has neither house nor garden belonging to the office". (SAS, XV:361) This statement suggests that it might have been typical for the school master to have a house and garden provided for him, but I do not know whether this was generally true.

Premnay

An anonymous "Friend to Statistical Inquiries" reported in some detail about recent improvements in the parish begun twenty-four years earlier (about 1766). These included enclosures, the plantation of hedgerows, and the building of "proper farm houses", all done at once, which "has hurt the fortune of the intelligent and public spirited gentleman who improved them". The friend also reported that "after the old farmers were removed" the population fell from 448 to 260. New tenants were brought in, but the friend opined that they were not so attached to the soil nor did they have the same kind of respect for the proprietor as had the former tenants (SAS, XIV:466-470). It would be interesting to know the identity of this anonymous friend, who reported that Mr James Douglas was the present minister but who said nothing about the parish school. The descendants of one of Helen Law's brothers did not arrive in Premnay until the first third of the nineteenth century; I hope by then the parish and its laird had recovered.

CONCLUSION

I make no claim that my report of the information I have culled from these accounts constitutes a systematic review of eighteenth-century education in Aberdeenshire. Nevertheless, perhaps we can draw some tentative conclusions:

Several Aberdeenshire parish ministers reported that Latin, English, writing and arithmetic were available at extra fees. Most of the scholars did not study Latin, but those destined for university would have done so. The fact that a parish school offered Latin tells us two things: the schoolmaster was a university graduate and among his pupils were probably the sons of the local ministers and of the lairds or their factors.

Considering their backgrounds, the schoolmasters were very poorly paid; most were scarcely earning more than the farmservants in Kemnay. Presumably, among the schoolmasters were some exceptionally dedicated young men; perhaps others served in this capacity for a few years before seeking higher paying work. Probably, most were younger sons of lairds or sons of ministers. Almost certainly, there was considerable turnover and the education varied in quality and availability.

How many parish children attended school? Several accounts reported the number of scholars, but without knowing the number of children in the parish, it is impossible to draw conclusions. Mr Morrice in Kincardine O'Neil reported that two-thirds of the parish was unable to attend the school because of the distances involved; presumably, his case was not typical. Perhaps the statistics provided by Mr Michie in Cluny will help us answer this question. In 1793 there were fifty to sixty scholars; however, in his population statistics he reports 186 children under ten and 184 between ten and twenty. If half of each group was either too young or too old to attend school, we are still left with about 185 potential pupils who did not attend the parish school. If we further assume that girls did not attend school, then the number of our potential pupils is about ninety. Thus, there were perhaps about thirty or forty boys in Cluny who did not attend school in 1793.

This brief overview of education in twelve eighteenth-century Deeside and Donside parishes is hardly conclusory; nevertheless, I now have a stronger basis for understanding the varying abilities of my ancestors to sign their names. Further, I hope readers will see the value in reading The Statistical Account of Scotland.

WHY ABERDEEN?

The time has come - to shamelessly missquote the Walrus in ALICE'S ADVENTURES - to talk of a number of things all of them having to do with the founding of the village of Aberdeen, Brown County, Ohio, and especially why that particular name was given to the pioneer settlement. For many years there has been conflicting views, debates, controversies and at times bitter dispute regarding this subject. Such confusion and uncertainty is so unnecessary that it is ridiculous. The true facts have been available, supported by official documents in many instances, to anyone wishing to research them. It is true that some details are dependent on family tradition and personal correspondence, but the basic facts are in the public records waiting to be read.

The story must begin a hundred years before the first white pioneer decided to build himself a cabin in what is now the village of Aberdeen. It starts with one Richard Edwards who in the latter part of the seventeenth century lived in the town of Holywell, Wales, in the northeast corner of that country where it abuts on England across the Birkenhead Peninsula from both Liverpool and Chester. Richard Edwards, his wife's name not certain, was the father of eight children. The family consisted of one daughter and seven sons, Of the daughter, Martha, nothing more than her name is know. The sons were Leonard, Joshue, Thomas, John, William, Jacob and Robert Alexabder. When grown the latter chose to live in Scotland while three of his brothers remained in their native Wales and three moved to England. Robert Alexander Edwards, Sr., occupation unknown, settled in Aberdeen, Scotland where in the year 1690 he married one Eleanor Laws, a niece of the Duke of Orange. Robert Alexander Edwards was dead by the year 1715 but his widow lived to be a very aged lady, surviving until hear the time of the American Revolutionary War. They were the parents of two sons, James William Edwards and Robert Alexander Edwards, Jr. There are admittedly discrepancies as to the exact birth dates of both sons. One family record states that they were born in 1702 and 1706 respectively: another claims the birth years as 1711 and 1715. When considering the better documented ages of some of James William Edwards' children the latter dates are more acceptable. Robert Alexander Edwards, Jr., was supposedly educated as an officer in the British Navy and is reported to have received a letter of marque and reprisal during the conflicts with France between the years 1740 and 1763. According to the provisions of this letter a portion of all the booty captured from French shipping on the high seas became his personal property while the remainder went to the British Crown. Except for one particular incident the life of Robert Alexander Edwards, Jr. has no special bearing on the story of Aberdeen, Ohio. As a boy James ~~William~~ Edwards was "hoofed on the left arm by a cow" resulting in no great injury but leaving a scar which is of vital concern. At some time just before his teens or shortly into them while on the beach at Aberdeen, Scotland, he was kidnapped and forcibly placed on a sailing vessel and unwillingly transported to New York City. One account makes him eleven years old when this occurred, another says he was sixteen. The difference may be explained by the two different birth dates claimed for him. What is much better established is that he was indentured, sold more as a slave according to some views of such practices, to a blacksmith. He was obligated to serve that master until twenty-one years of age. However, he was so readil accepted into the family and proved so adept at learning the smith's trade that his maste granted him full freedom at the age of eighteen. He had learned the trade which he would practice the remainder of his long life. When he was financially prepared for marriage h was wed to Sarah Jacobs ~~Songster Everett,~~ member of the well known family ~~and whose mother's maiden name accounted for her own middle name~~. Sometime in the middle 1700s James ~~Willia~~ Edwards moved his family ~~from New York to~~ Virginia not far from where the Civil War battl of Bull Run (Manassas Junction) were fought. James ~~William~~ Edwards prospered and shortly before the outbreak of the Revolutionary War was in Baltimore on business when he learned the startling news that there was in port a British ship captained by a Robert Alexander Edwards. Excited by that seeming coincidence he immediately established contact and was overjoyed to be convinced that the captain was his own brother. He was still more joyful to discover that their mother, HELEN ~~Eleanor~~ Laws Edwards, was still living in Aberdeen, Scotla Plans were speedily made for him to either accompany his brother back to his native land, or to follow as soon as possible. A happy reunion was held in the old home in Scotland a James ~~William~~ Edwards remained with his mother and brother as long as possible, but final was obliged to return to his adopted country where rumors of the approaching war were already ominous. As a very special gift for his own daughter, named Eleanor for the grandmother, he brought to Virginia with him a set of silver teaspoons which had been Eleanor Laws Edwards' wedding gift from her high placed uncle. Those spoons are still in existence today and are treasured posessions handed down to a descendant named Eleanor in each succeeding transmittal. Robert Alexander Edwards died not long after that reunion as also did the aged mother. James ~~William~~ Edwards served honorably during the Revolutionary War first in Captain Thomas Hamilton's Company, commanded by Colonel George Gibson, of the First Virginia State Regiment and later in General Muhlenberg's Brigade of the same regiment. James ~~William~~ Edwards and wife Sarah Jacobs ~~Songster Everett~~ Edwards were the parents of six sons and three daughters all born in Virginia. They were William ~~Everett,~~ Jacob, James, Alexander, Robert, George, Nancy, Eleanor and Jane or Jennice. Eleanor Edwards married, in Virginia, John West son of Thomas and Sarah Trammel West and a favorite son-in-law of James ~~William~~ Edwards. In 1786 James ~~William~~ and Sarah Edwards moved from Virginia to Kenton Station, Kentucky, with all of their children except Willia ~~Everett~~ Edwards who for a time remained in the home state but within a few years himself moved to Bloomfield, Kentucky. The Edwards family was accompanied on the Westward migration by allied families such as the West, Rains and Jacobs in-laws. Collin's History of Kentucky puts the Edwards arrival in that state in 1785 by stating "During the year 1785 the Edwards boys with their sister Jane and her husband William Rains, another of Simon Kenton's nephews, arrived at Kenton Station. It is possible that some of the James ~~William~~ Edwards sons did precede the remainder of the family or it may be equally possible that the 1785 date should read more correctly 1786. James ~~William~~ Edwards did later purchase land in Washington, Kentucky, particularily Lot No. 4 in that town, and on at least one occassion paid for the purchase with a female negro slave. later purchase land in Washington, Kentucky, particularly lot No. 4 in that town, and nor his wife were able to read or write as all existing documents bear only their mark in place of a signature. They lived for approximately ten years in Mason County, Kentuc and when the Treaty of Green Ville in 1795 made settlement in the country north of the Ohio comparatively safe from Indian attacks they decided to move there. Absolute proof of James ~~William~~ Edwards as the earliest resident owner of land where Aberdeen, Ohio, no stands rests in the deed for that land. No record of that transaction can be found in t court houses of either Adams or Brown Counties, Ohio. This is no doubt due to some lack of legal communication as a transcript of the deal most assuredly should have been provi Adams County when that was established. The deed is properly recorded in Hamilton Count Ohio, which at that time extended to the Scioto River, and is dated August 6th, 1796 and is to be found in pages 535 through 539 in Hamilton County Deed Book A. Said deed transfers one thousand (1,000) acres of land from Phillip Slaughter of Culpepper County, Virginia, to James and Sarah Edwards of Mason County, Kentucky. The price of that trac of land was "six hundred pounds lawful money of Kentucky". Later in the same year, on December 6, 1976, James and Sarah Edwards conveyed eighty-eight and three quarters acres of that same land to their son-in-law John West for the sum of "fifty-eight pounds curren money of the commonwealth aforesaid (Kentucky)". These two transactions unquestionably establish that James ~~William~~ Edwards together with his wife and other closely allied relatives were undeniably the first settlers of Aberdeen, Ohio. They satisfactorily refute and and all other later claims of original settlement. The exact date when James and Sarah Edwards moved from Mason County, Kentucky, to their newly purchased holdings in Ohio is not certain. Family tradition has always maintained that it was late in the year 1796. Byron Williams' HISTORY OF CLERMONT AND BROWN COUNTIES, OHIO, VOLUME ONE, published in 1913 confirms this with the statement that they crossed the Ohio River to build their first cabin homes when the Edwards grandson John Rains was six weeks old and he was born on October 30, ~~1976.~~ 1790 This reliably places the Edwards-West-Rains-Jacobs pioneer families in what is now Brown County, Ohio in mid December of 1796. It is known that they not only built the necessary homes for several families but also very early established a mill and a ferry boat. An additional proof - if more is needed - can be found in the naming of the stream on which the mill was built. Only a good Scotsman such as James ~~William~~ Edwards would have designated an American brook, stream or creek as a purely Scots "gut". That stream which flows into the Ohio River at Aberdeen, Ohio, has always been - and still is - known as the Fishing Gut. Should anyone request additional proof that James ~~William~~ Edwards was the original founder and namer of Aberdeen, Ohio, as well as one of the earliest settlers of the area that can be found in his last will and testament. That document executed on w ~~March~~ Feb 9, 1803, and properly recorded in Adams County, Ohio, contains the statement that James Edwards does give and bequeath to his son George Edwards "the whole of the land and premises together with appurtenances that is now in my hand (commonly called Aberdeen) being part of a survey made in the name of Philip Slaughter". It is only logical to believe that to become "commonly called" or commanly know by a specified name a village or locality would of necessity been so identified for longer than just a brief period of time. From 1796 until 1803 would have been sufficient time for the name Aberdeen, given by its founder James ~~William~~ Edwards, to have become well established in Southern Ohio. It is believed with authority that James Edwards did provide a ferry boat to ply between his new community and Limestone (now Maysville), Kentucky on the southern shore of the Ohio River and that he did so very shortly after completing his wilderness home. The earliest license for such a ferry that has been found is dated October 1, 1799. This does not in the least preclude the existence of a ferry, or ferries, at that location prior to that date. The official act of the government of the Northwest Territory recognizing the need for regulated ferry boats and establishing the rules whereby they would in the future be governed was signed into being by Governor Arthur St. Clair on November 15, 1799. Ferries operating before 1799 had done so according to their own rules, regulations and fees. After the enactment of that ordinance James Edwards was governed by its provisions. James Edwards' youngest son, George Edwards, in his own older years - and he lived into his ninety-ninth year - delighted to puzzle his grandchildren and great-grandchildren with the statement that from personal recollections he knew that ferry boat moved back and forth across the Ohio River by horse power, permitting them for a time to wonder if the horse could actually walk on the water or if a single length of rope spanned the river. Finally he would admit to the confused children that the boat was powered by a horse walking on a pulley like leathern treadmill which from the middle of the wooden barge transmitted power to the paddle wheels. Such ferry boat licenses as the one above mentioned required renewal at the end of a year. On the 10th day of October, 1797 James and Sarah Edwards conveyed to the recently arrived Nathan Ellis one hundred and twenty-seven and three quarters acres of the one thousand acre parcel they had purchased one year earlier. On February 19, 1800 they sold to Charles Oursler two hundred and six acres of their land and on January 24, 1803 James Edwards alone, his wife Sarah being then deceased, conveyed to William Patterson an additional one hundred and five acres from his original purchase. All of the deeds and licenses mentioned are contained in the records of Adams County, Ohio, with the exception of the original one thousand acre deed which was recorded in Hamilton County, Ohio, one of the state's only three counties before Adams County was established. It was not until July 5, 1816 that a formal plat was drawn up for the official laying out of streets and lots for the village of Aberdeen, an act of Nathan Ellis who had purchased land from James Edwards, settling slightly upstream from the Edwards-West-Rains-Jacobs homes and ferry. Ellis too established a ferry service across to Kentucky from his own home and hotel and for several years carried on a bitter feud with the Edwards faction over ferry and road rights. When in 1816 he finally filed his plat for the village Aberdeen was already twenty years in existence and having been recognized as a definite community before the year 1800 predates Decatur, Ohio, which is customarily accepted as Brown County's first town since it was officially platted in 1801. However, Aberdeen continued as a recognized community from 1797, was founded by James William Edwards (sometimes referred to as simply James Edwards, Senior since he also had a son of the same name), and was named by him for his birthplace in Scotland - all arguments and claims to the contrary. Unfortunately no commemorative marker can be raised above the grave of James Edwards for the simple reason that no grave exists. He was buried in 180~~4~~3 beside his wife Sarah in a small family graveyard on their own land so dangerously near the Ohio River bank that flood waters later swept away their remains. Following his wife's death his final years were spent in the home of his son George Edwards and wife Susannah Downing Edwards where he died at the reputed age of one hundred and four years. If true that would have made ~~1802~~ 1702 his birth year, but as said earlier it is more creditable that he was born about the year 1715. It is unfortunate and regrettable that the authenticated facts regarding the settlement and naming of Brown County's first town have not been completely stated and thoroughly documented.

Edwards Estate

ousin Annis;

If my old heart has ever been made more full adn joyful than your letter of the 14th inst. made it, I have forgotten the date and occasion. None but a receiver of the pleasure given by a letter from a near, but an unknown relative, can estimate the degree and depth of such pleasure, If we never gain possession of the immense estate that rightfully belongs to us, we have in the search of it enjoyed the pleasure of learning of many of our near and dear relatives from whom we can and shall bear a love forever hereafter, closely attended with the knowledge that the love will be borne and cherished beyond the grave.

As your letter asks me for some information to the Edwards' Estate, and that the pen and pencil have latterly been so constantly in my hand that the sight of either just now is frightful, I will waste no time with love dealing and proceed at once to five what I know of the foundation of that Estate.

There are three branches of the Edwards' in America. Scotch, Welch and English. The ancestors of the two former settled in New York sometine or about the early seventeen hundred and thirties, and the decendants of both have asserted their rights to estates in New York City. The Welch branch has for many years been trying to gain possession of an estate in that City, and are still in active pursuit, and I at times surmise that it has possibly succeeded in getting hold of the mislaid papers that we of the Scotch branch are in search of, and of which I will mention farther on.

The name of Col. H. Clay King of Tennessee, now serving a life ntence in the State Prison of your State, and his brother, C.F. King of Mississippi have figured quite perminently as hears to the Edwards Estate. But if I have not been misstated they are connected with the Welch branch and are diffenent line altogether to the one we follow.

Here is our starting point; Robt. Edwards, Sr. was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, between the years of 1685 and 1695; married Eleanor Laws, and was the father of James and Robert Edwards. These sons were the only children of Robert Edwards, Sr. and wife, name Eleanor Laws. These sons were also born in Aberdeen, Scotland, and sometime between the years of 1711 and 1715 the father died; the sons were little boys. James the elder brother, at the age of sixteen, and while playing on the beach in Scotland, was enticed aboard of a ship in company with other young men taken to New York. This was sometime between the years of 1727 and 1732. James was apprenticed to a blacksmith in New York, and after service married Sarah Everett of new York, who was of the celebrated Everett family of that state; and sometime between 1760 and 1770 moved to Virginia and settled upon a farm in what was the Fairfix County, through which the famous little stream of Bull Run flows, and that farm afterwards became the scene of the celebrated battle of Bull Run in our Civil War. Robert Alexander, the youngest brother was educated an officer in the English Navy, and during the wars from 1740 to 1763 between England and France received from the English Government letters of marwue to prey upon French commerce with an agreement that he should receive one-halp of all he captured. Robert was thw owner of several ships and became very wealthy. At e close of these wars, and in the settlement with George III of England, Robert received a grant of 40 acres of land upon which a valuable portion of New York City stands. This land Robert afterwards leased for Military purposes to George III for 99years and GeorgeIII sub-leased ~~for~~ the land. The terms of the lease gave at its expiration to the heirs of Robert, the land and all improvements thereupon, and this Land with the buildimgs upon it is the Estate we are now in pursuit of and valued at between $400,000,000. and $500,000,000.

Robert in one of his cruises in 1774 or 1775 touched at Baltimore, Md. and while there heard that his brother James was living Virginia, whom he had long supposed dead. Robert wrote to James, asking him to meet him at once at their mother's home in Aberdeen, Scotland, telling him that he, Robert, was very rich, a bachelor, and that he would divide his wealth with him. James obeyed, and the two brothers, then old men and had not seen each other since childhood, met at their mother's. Robert died soon afterwards, but before death gave James a deed to the New York land and turned over to him a copy of the grant, also a copy of the 99 year lease.

The Revolutionary Was was approaching and James hastened home to his family in Virginia, carring with him the copies of grant and lease and other papers pertaining to Aberdeen property, of which we would have been in possession of long ago, had it not been for neglect of our ancestors.

James also returned with condiderable gold and family souvenirs, and I understand that some of the silver spoons marked "E.L." Eleanor Laws,--are still in possession of one of the descendants of Eleanor Edwards, oldest daughter of James Edwards, and who is yet living in Ohio. James Edwards and wife, name Sarah ~~Everett,~~ Jacobs no were the parents of five sons and three daughters: namely:

1st. William ~~Everett~~ NO
2nd. Jacob
3rd. Nancy, (our grandmother)
4th Eleanor
5th. Jane or Jennie
6th. James
7th Alexander
8th George

rge, the youngest, was the father of the present Mayor of Ripley, Ohio Orange Edwards, who is the oldest, 73 years old, of the descendants of James Edwards, and is the father of Hayden Edwards, American Consul at Berlin, Germany, James lived with his son George until his death in 1804 and his remains lie beside those of his wife in Aberdeen, Ohio James, prior to his death, gave to his son George, all papers, copies, etc. for safe keeping, and which were in a Red Tin Box where they had been cared for for years. George when grawing old died in 1846, and gave the papers to Hayden Edwards of Bloomfield, Ky. Hayden was the oldest son of William Everett, and first cousin of your father. Hayden in 1854 began a movement to place the matter of the Estate in shape for gaining possession. Illness in his famild delayed the matter of the movement, and at his death in 1860, or thereabouts, all efforts seemed to have ceased. The papers remained in Hayden's possession until his death since when they can not be found, though the Red TinBox that so long held them was found at Hayden's residence in Kentucky, and identified by Orange Edwards, the only living heir who has seen and read the papers, and to him and Harry L. Edwards of New Orleans are we mostly indebted for the information obtained. Search is in progress still for the original papers or copies, with some hopes of finding them. I am now endeavoring to have the London records searched. If we fail to gain the large Estate that justly begongs to us, the heirs of James Edwards. You need not entertain a doubt as to who are the rightful heirs of the Estate. We are heirs, but there is a doubt as to whether we will ever be profited as such heirs--yet we ll still hope and try.

The given name of your grandfather Rains was John. He and his brother James fought side by side in the Revolutionary War with Wm. Everett Edwards, who was an officer, and all were at the bottle of Yorktown with Gen. Washington when Lord Cornwallis surrendered. Our grandfather Rains married Nancy Edwards, and James Rains married Jane, or Jennie, sister of Nancy. I am not familiar with whereabouts or who are the children of James. There is a N ancy Rains living somewhere in Tennessee at the age of 100 years or more, and I would liko to know something about her. She may be from James Rains side or some other branch of the Rains which runs back to the time of William the Conquerer. The head of the house being Roger de Raines, of Ranus, Normandy, of whic Rains or Rains is a corruption; we leave out the e but it has been spelled both with the e and without it in the pedigree. Of course, you are well posted of the family of our grandparents, Henry, John, James, Sarah, Mary and Jane. Sarah, my mother, married Casper Elstner, and her sister Marry followed suit with John Elstner, and Jane married Samuel Gault. I can remember all of these though I saw your father the last time 60 years ago, and of late I have thought strange that no papers bearing on the Estate have been found among the many papers he must have left, as he certainly knew something of it, at least heard his mother speak about it, as she and her daughter, my mother, often talked about it in my presence.

James E. moved in 1786 from Virginia to Maysvil e, Ky., with his entire family, excepting Wm. ~~Everett~~ No, who later moved to Bloomfield Ky., About 1790 James crossed the Ohio River, founded and named the town of Aberdeen, Ohio, just opposite Maysville, Ky. where many of our relations lived. I can remember meerley meeting them in multutudes there when I was about 17 or 18 years of age, and it was in Maysville, Ky. wher your Aunt Sarah ans Aunt Mary first met Casper and John Elstner, who after some earnest love making, became your Uncles. I suppose you have long ago been made acquainted with the pedigree of the Elstners, which, like the Edwards and Rains, is of prominent and honorable fame, and I am pleased to know that you carry the name within your immediate family fold. It will be 44 years the 22nd day of next March since I left the home of my childhood, Crittendon, Grant County, Ky. On the 13th of Nov. 1851, in El Dorado County, Colo., I married Melesse Moody, a native of Georgia. We are both still living, in good health, and on the 29th of next month I will be 70 years old, and she on the 4th of the same month will be 58 years of age. We are the parents of nine children;Milton Newell John William, Fannie Hattie, George Berry, Harry Tracy, Jennie Ann, Robert Rains, Lucy Keys, and Edward Perceval.

Milton N., John W. and Robert R. are dead. Jennie and Lucy married Jennie to W. H. Keyser, and they have two children. Fannie not married , mot either of the three sons. I expect I have written now more than you contracted for, but when I began I did not know how to quite so excuse everything objectionable, and my love and that of my family to you and yours, to Cousin Mrs. T.B.R. and husband, To Cousin Lizzie Hayes and all of hers, and all relations generally.

Your cousin,

Dear Mrs. Welch:

While at the Mormon Library here in Richmond I checked their file for James & William Edwards in New York. Found no information as to their marriages. This, of course, does not mean that they were not there - just did not have that information in the Mormon records.

Checked Scotland files and found information that might possibly give a clue.

Dear Mrs. Welch:

There are three Haden Family histories in Virginia State Library. None of them give any connection with the Everitt or Edwards families.

No Doubt Everett

William Edwards (d. 1759) & Margaret, his wife, did have among others Ann Hammond and Sarah Dobson. Unless Sarah Dobson became a widow very soon after 1759 it doesn't seem probably she was wife of James Edwards. There seems to be a question of her name - Sarah Everitt (Jacobs). In reading the deed from Dozier to James Edwards 1755/58, I note that Thomas Jacobs was a witness to this document. Possibly this was the reason for the name Jacobs - could Sarah have been Sarah Jacobs? Since I did not find any record of Thomas Jacobs in Fairfax Co. could he have gone with James Edwards to Kentucky?

No further information on the family name of Margaret Edwards, wife of William Edwards (1757). Found no record of the marriage of William Edwards and a Miss Hayden of Lancaster Co.

Am told that it is almost impossible to get help from Edinburg. Found in a magazine - Heraldy and Genealogy, England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, Europe -

Don't know whether the above will do you any good but hope so if you want help in Scotland.

When you go to New York to check on William Edwards' marriage why don't you also check to see if James was also married there. Perhaps they married in N.Y. then came to Virginia. Just a thought.

I am sorry not to give you additional information but seems there isn't any more.

Good luck in New York.

Dear Mrs. Breedlove:

Y our letter is read with mich interest. In order to suggest work to obtain authentic information on your Edwards and Smiley families, and estimate its costs, I need from you PLACES (if possible, of births, deaths, marriag and residence) of the ancestors and ancestresses. I am returning herewith the record you sent, for you, please, to fill in such PLACES. Then, if you will send back the record to me (filled in so fully as you can), I will gladly write you just what should be done and just what it would cost.

Please let me tell you that the stroy of the Edwards "Estate" is absolutely fraudulent. The same story is given of another family supposed to own land belonging to Trinity Church. The facts are: this land, now, of course, very valuable, belonged to a woman called Anneke Jans, "Jans" being the Dutch way of saying daughter of or wife of Jan, and Jan meaning John. She was Anna (Anneke, Dutch for Annie), born a Webber, whose first husband was a Jan. I think I have his last name, but do not stop to look this up. After his death she married Everardus Bogardus, who was the second Minister of the old Dutch Church in New Amsterdam (now New York City). She did own the land on which now stands Trinity Church here, but she sold it to the English authorities and they founded the Parish of Trinity Church (belonging to the English Government Church, "Church of England.") Therefore, her heirs (now in the thousands) have no least claim to this land.

In the course of some 15 years, I have had numerous letters about the imaginary Edwards "Estate." It has been investigated and there is no least foundation for it. I do hope you have not been one of the victims who have given money to unscrupulous persons in connection with this "claim."

If you wish straighforward genealogical research, to seek to prove your Edwards and Smiley ancestry, I shall be delighted to be of any possible service to you. Both are good old families.

Yours sincerely,
Mabel T. R. Washburn

(Please address me by name as above)

The ownership of the land on which downtown New York has been built is disputed, the estate of Anneke Jans having been the cause of considerable contention. We quote from the New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, 1925, v. 56, pp. 204-5:

"By the death of her first husband, Roelof Jansen, Anneke Jans became possessed in her own right and in that of her children by Roelof Jansen of the 62 acres of land granted to Roelof Jansen in 1633-4. This land lay north of the W. I. Company's Bouwerie (or farm) and roughly extended from Broadway (of today) to the Hudson River and north to about Christopher Street; and on the north is said to have abutted upon a grant of land which had been made to Domine Bogardus, her second husband. After the death of Roelof Jansen, these two joint parcels of land came to be known as the Domine's Bouwerie. The title to this land was confirmed to Anneke Jans by Director General Peter Stuyvesant in 1654, and was again confirmed to her heirs in March, 1667, by the then English Governor, Richard Nicolls March 9, 1670-1, the heirs of her estate conveyed this land 'for a valuable consideration' to Governor Francis Lovelace, the successor of Governor Nicholls. The deed of conveyance to Governor Lovelace was signed by all the heirs of Anneke Jans with the exception of one, her son Cornelis Bogardus, who had died in 1666, subsequent to his mother's death in 1663 and prior to the date of conveyance. Neither Cornelis Bogardus nor his widow Helena (Teller) Bogardus, nor his son Cornelis Bogardus (both of whom were living on the date of conveyance) joined in making the deed. This land, the Domine's Bouwerie, after its conveyance to Governor Lovelace, was joined to the Company's Bouwerie (then in the possession of the English) and the whole combined area became known successively as the Duke's (Duke of York) Farm, the King's Farm and the Queen's Farm. Finally, Nov. 23, 1705, a patent for this tract was granted to what is now known as the Trinity Church Corporation of New York.

"Such in general terms is the history of the tract of land about which, in subsequent generations, from time to time, the descendants of Anneke Jans have entered suit against the Trinity Church Corporation to recover their claimed interest which they maintained was alienated without due respect to the law thereunto applying. All of these attempts to recover have uniformly failed."

The traditional ancestry of Anneke Jans, as being descended from William the Silent, Prince of Orange, as published in the N.Y. Gen. & Biog. Record, vol. 56, pp. 202 ff, is discounted in the light of additional research in the N.Y. Gen. & Biog. Record, vol. 57, pp. 185-8 and vol. 63, pp. 115 ff.

LETTER # 2

I forgot to tell you about the houses which to me is the most interesting part of these family searches.. I have two pictures of Maryland houses on my mother's side, houses which are still standing - one built about 1650 and another enlarged about 1750.

Last fall I did go to Nelson Co. and found Haden's home. My contacts around Bloomfield are all in accord with Sarah Smith of Bardstown who pictures this house in her recent book. (She is famousfor her inaccuracies). No one agrees as to when it was built and I personally doubt that it is the one mentioned in a Bardstown paper prior to haden's marriagee. Others tell me that some very fine homes were built shortly after 1800. This one has to have been added to in succeeding years. It is now owned by a woman who has bought numerous farms in that area of Nelson and the nearby Spencer Co. where Haden's second marriage took place. She is only interested in running cattle and never pays any attention to any old structures on the property. I cpuld look through the front doorand mainly saw a comparatively small hall and old simple staircase with a really weird fire place. I've never seen anything like it. Red brick all the way to the ceiling but should have kept a goodly portion of the two rooms up and two down plus halls quite warm. To the rear there are attic windows, the newer secti9on, and columns around the front door. I fear there won't be there long if someone doesn't give them someloving care. Being the large house it is today and the condition it is in, it would cost a small fortune to renovate.

Then I had the nerve to knock on the door of a large brick house, again columns aroung the front door, which I have been seeing about three miles from Bloomfield on the road from Bardstown. (My sister says this is agood way to get shot.) The woman was most ~~hospital~~ hospitable. This house is in excellent condition and no doubt built after Haden's. The front hall must be about 18 feet square with a beautiful winding staircase. The doors are tall and handsome. She told me that during the early thirties, in the heighth of the depression her deceased husbands family rented it. He then became a builder of bridges and they moved cOnstantly all over the nation. He always wanted to come back to Bloomfield and was able to buy the house and restore it. Ionly saw a few downstairs rooms. Ofcourse I asked her who built it. She said she had searched for that answer but came up with three names - Edwards, Adair and Stone. I asked if she had a woman's name she couldn't rememb4er but when I said, " Could it have been Milly," she said yes. Remember Milly Edwards married an Adair and then a Stone.. (The Adairs were prominent in another county, I thnik Woodford.) I asked about a graveyard. She sent me through ao small formal l garden to the cemetery, but it was surrounded by a fence and no gate. Noneof the names I could see meant anything to me.

Another house on theother side of Bardstown, near Boston, Same style, was built by Leroy Edwards. Does the name maean anything to you? That Sarah Smith says in her book that Haden was a wealthy man from New York. No way. I think she confused Leroy with Hayden for Leroy shows up in records concerning the Edwards of Southhampton, Long Island, New Yok. Do you have any information n or connection with him?

Hope I haven't bored you.

ROBERT MARSHALL born c 1725 and died in Mason County, Kentucky, before April 27, 1801 was traditionally believed to have been the son of Richard and Mary Marshall of Charles County, Maryland. However, I have been unable to establish proof for this statement. I have not been able to find in the records the name of his wife. Though there must have been other children of Robert Marshall dec'd 1801, in the settlement of the estate there were only two named -- Robert Marshall, Jr. of Fayette Co., Ky. and Mrs. Elizabeth Marshall Edwards's heirs.

ELIZABETH MARSHALL, daughter of Robert Marshall dec'd 1801. She was born c 1762 and married 1779 Jacob Edwards, son of James Edwards and Sarah Everett Jacobs (Mason Co., Ky. Order Bk. Dear Mrs. Wilson,

The other night I came across some information that I suspected to be true but had no proof. These papers were sent to me some time ago by a genealogist in Richmond, Va. At that time I knew nothing about James and, as has happened to me before, when the information is not germane to the names I'm aware of, it becomes lost in my myriad of papers. You may be aware of this. James' wife Sarah was the sister of Jarvis Hammond's wife Anne.

Both of these papers were compiled and Published by George Harrison Sanford King, a Virginia genealogist of top reputation.

From "Marriages of Richmond, County, Va. 1668-1853:" Hammond, Job Jr. (16??-1758) married by Sept. 1, 1703 Amadine Baylis, born 18 January 1684 in North Farnham Parish, daughter of Thomas and Catherine (Sanford) Baylis. Then all of his references. Their son Jarvis married Ann Evêrett, the parents of Nancy Hammond.

Next: In the "Registers of North Farnham Parish 1663-1814 and Lunenburg Parish1783-1800 Richmond Co., Va." I found this. A list of all the children of Job and Amadine and a list of the children of Wm. Everett and Margaret ?. They are the grandparents of Nancy Hammond Edwards. William and Margaret's daughter Ann b. 2 August 1716 married Jarvis Hammond. Daughter Sarah b. 13 April 1729 married James Edwards. The two above marriages are mine, but they have to be correct. (I've known for some time, through a deed, that Wm. ~~Everett~~ was the grandfather of ~~Ann~~.) Therefore Wm and Nancy were first cousins. NANCY

The daughters of Wm and Nancy have family names that are accounted for, but the two sons, Haden and Travis are still a mystery. My Richmond genealogist is going to try to find the maiden name of the above Margaret. I want it to be Hayden, Travis or will even settle for Sanford. I hope they didn't just give them names facetiously. There are Travis's in Nelson Co. but never on my peoples deeds and records.

Hope this helps. Do you have any idea as to the date of James' marriage to Sarah? Still can't comprehend New York.

Best wishes,

Margaret Welch

James Edwards of Aberdeenshire, Scotland: Preliminary Findings

by

Helen Hinchliff

PO Box 97

1 November 1989

For the past several months I have made an intensive study of the life of James Edwards of Aberdeenshire, Scotland, with a view to preparing an article on authenticating a family legend. The traditions surrounding his life are filled with interesting detail and lend themselves to specific research and documentation. On October 21, 1989, I met with members of the Brown County Genealogical Society to discuss the Edwards legends. At that meeting I concentrated on James Edwards' life in Fairfax, Co., Va., Mason Co., Ky. and Brown Co., Oh. We had a useful discussion and I was pleased that several members furnished me with additional versions of the legend, some of which contain new assertions of fact which need to be documented.

Since the Brown County meeting I have spent three weeks at the Cincinnati Public Library and at the Family History Library in Salt Lake City where I focused on Scottish records and the New York Edwards "inheritance." In this paper I am reporting my findings on these topics for Edwards researchers. Anyone wishing further information about any statement made in this paper or who wishes to comment on my hypotheses and conclusions is encouraged to write to me.

Next year I will go to London, Edinburgh, and Aberdeen to review records not available here. I shall be investigating James' brother's naval career, searching records that may shed light on the "estate" in Scotland, trying to discover more about the origin of the silver spoons, and looking for records on the kidnapping. Thereafter, I will complete a final draft of my article.

Readers will discover that in many cases the facts reported in this paper are at variance with those asserted in one or more versions of the Edwards tradition. I began my research with the legend handed down by my great grandfather E.A. DeVore, a great grandson of Eleanor (Edwards) West. Perhaps each descendant who reads this paper was aware of only his or her own version. In my research I have uncovered an enormous variety of legends and the need to find the truth is greater than ever. I hope that learning the facts associated with James Edwards' Scottish background will not disappoint those who believed their own version of the legend was true. Instead, I hope that the eventual reconstruction of James Edwards' life--as he actually lived it--will be every bit as compelling and fascinating as our legends.

The present paper is to be used only for the private purposes of Edwards descendants. Parts are intended for later use in the article I am preparing for submission to the National Genealogical Society Quarterly.

James Edwards' Baptism and Surname

Various Edwards family traditions assert that James Edwards was born in 1702 or 1706, in the City of Aberdeen, Scotland. Actually, he was baptized on 6 May 1727 in the parish of Midmar, about 16 miles west of Aberdeen. His parents were William and Helen (Law) Edward. The Parish Records of Midmar (FHL microfilm roll 993344) state that his parents lived in Milntown (now Milltown) of Corsindae, a hamlet about a mile northwest of the parish church.

The Family History Library in Salt Lake City has a computerized data base which includes extractions of every baptism and marriage in all of Scotland from the beginning of extant church records until about the mid 19th century when civil recording of births and marriages was first required. It is possible to enter a name and a date--for example, James Edward, 1702--and to search throughout Scotland for a record of the event. Various James Edwards appear on the screen, and each likely one can then be checked in the parish records for further information. In this case, the James Edward who was born in 1727 is the only one who had a mother named Helen Law (more about her later). We also know from George Edwards' interview with Professor Lyman Coleman Draper that his father James was born in 1727, providing independant corroboration for the identification of this James Edward (Draper Papers, 19S 71-72).

The family traditions usually assert that his parents' surnames were Edwards and Laws, so it should be reported that in the parish records their names are always written without the "s." Moreover, a review of thousands of Scottish records shows that the Scots in general did not add an "s" to either surname; however, because in America James was surnamed Edwards I will adhere to that spelling.

James Edwards' Mother's Given Name

Some versions of the legend say her name was Helen; most say Eleanor. In the parish records her name is always written as Helen. Using the computer, it was possible to find the baptism and marriage records of women named "Eleanor" Law or "Helen" Law anywhere in Scotland. This search yielded only one Eleanor Law in all of Scotland, and she was born in 1865. Evidently, Eleanor was not a popurlar name in Scotland at that time.

There were hundreds of women named Helen Law in various times and places in Scotland. We can be certain of the identity of our Helen Law as the mother of James because of the independent record we have of his birth year (Draper Papers) and because she was the only Helen Law married to a man named Edward in all of Aberdeenshire during that time period. Finally, it should be noted that Helen's last name was sometimes spelled "Lawie" or "Laie."

James Edwards' brothers and sister

All Edwards legends so far discovered assert that James had only one sibling, a brother named Robert, or Robert Alexander. The Midmar Parish records indicate that James had the following brothers and sister: Mary, bap. 9 Oct. 1725; Alexander, 25 Nov. 1731; and William, 17 Nov. 1734. A computer-aided search of all children of William Edward and Helen Law yielded the following news. Between 1735 and 1737 the family had moved to the hamlet of Caiesmiln (now Caiesmill) in the parish of Dyce, about six miles northwest of the city of Aberdeen (see attached map), and there a son named Barzillai was baptized 10 July 1737 (FHL microfilm roll 993524).

No son named Robert has been found, and I have concluded that no Robert ever existed. Toward the end of this paper, I will develop the hypothesis that 1738, in the City of Aberdeen, Scotland. Actually, he was baptized on 6 May 1737 in the parish of Midmar, about 15 miles west of Aberdeen. His parents were William and Helen (Lew) Edward. The Parish Records of Midmar (FHL microfilm #[illegible]) state that his parents lived in Milntown (now Milltown of Corsindae), a hamlet about a mile northwest of the Parish Church.

The Family History Library in Salt Lake City has a computerized data base which includes extractions of every baptism and marriage in all of Scotland from the beginning of extant church records until about the mid 19th century when civil recording of births and marriages was first required. It is possible to enter a name and a date--for example, James Edward, 1701--and to search throughout Scotland for a record of the event. Various James Edwards appear on the screen, and each likely one can then be checked in the parish records for further information. In this case, the James Edward who was born in 1737 is the only one who had a mother named Helen Lev (more about her later). We also know from George Edwards' interview with Professor Lyman Copeland Draper that his father James was born in 1737, precisely independent confirmation for the identification of this James Edward (Draper Papers, [illegible]).

The family traditions usually assert that his parents' surnames were Edwards and Lowe, so it should be reported that in the parish records their names are always written without the "s." Moreover, a review of thousands of Scottish records shows that the Scots in general did not add an "s" to either surname; however, because in America James was surnamed Edwards I will adhere to that spelling.

James Edwards' Mother's Given Name

Some versions of the legend say her name was Nellie (or Nell for Eleanor). In the parish records her name is always written as Helen. Using the computer, it was possible to find the baptism and marriage records of women named "Eleanor" Lev or "Helen" Lev anywhere in Scotland. This search yielded only one Eleanor Lev in all of Scotland, and she was born in 1845. Evidently, Eleanor was not a popular name in Scotland at that time.

There were hundreds of women named Helen Lev in various times and places in Scotland. We can be certain of the identity of our Helen Lev as the mother of James, because of the independent record we have of his birth year (Draper Papers) and because she was the only Helen Lev married to a man named Edward in all of Aberdeenshire during that time period. Finally, it should be noted that Helen's last name was sometimes spelled [illegible] or "Lowe."

James Edwards' Brothers and Sister

All Edwards legends so far discovered assert that James had only one sibling, a brother named Robert, or Robert Alexander. The Midmar Parish records indicate that James had the following brothers and sister: [illegible] bap. 8 Oct. 1735; Alexander, 21 Nov. 1739; and William, 17 Nov. 1741. A computer-aided search of all children of William Edward and Helen Lev yielded the following names. Between 1741 and 1747 the family had moved to the hamlet of [illegible] in the parish of Dyce, about six miles northwest of the city of Aberdeen (see attached map), and there a son named Robert was baptized 10 July 1747 ([illegible]). [illegible] Robert Edward [illegible] I have concluded that [illegible] existed. [illegible] recent decendants decided that there must have been a Robert and they changed Alexander's name to Robert Alexander or simply Robert.

Scottish Naming Practices as a Clue to Ancestry of James Edward and Helen Law

There was no requirement to do so, but the Scots tended to name their children for their parents, following a fairly-well defined pattern. D.J. Steel and A.E.F. Steel in Sources for Scottish Genealogy and Family History, p. 47, set forth the most common pattern: The eldest son was named for the paternal grandfather, the second son for the maternal grandfather, the third son for the father. The eldest daughter was named for the mother's mother, and so forth.

Using this pattern we can hypothesize the names of the parents of William Edward and Helen Law. We would expect that James, as the eldest son was named for William's father, who would have been James Edward; we would expect the second son Alexander to have been named for Helen's father, who would have been Alexander Law. Finally, their third son, William, was indeed named for his father. Perhaps their fourth son, Barzillai, was named for another relative. (I have tried to identify Helen's ancestry using the name Barzillai, but have yet to discover anything definitive.) William and Helen's daughter was Mary and should have been named for her maternal grandmother, so we should expect to find an Alexander Law and Mary -?- as the parents of Helen.

Poor Quality of Parish Records at that Time

Unfortunately, the early parish records of Aberdeenshire are very spotty. This is due primarily to major social dislocation in the first half of the 18th century. Beginning in 1695 Scotland had a major famine that lasted four years. It was so severe that many parishes could not employ clerks; as a result many records were not made and others were lost. In 1715, Aberdeenshire played a major role in the Jacobin rebellion. This was an attempt by supporters of the Stuarts to crown the pretender James Francis (who would have been King James III of England and James VIII of Scotland) in place of King George I, of Hanover. The rebellion was a complete failure and many supporters lost their lands and were forced to leave Scotland. Several parish ministers also supported the Pretender and were deposed. Some may have taken their records with them when they fled the country. The Church of Scotland could not immediately replace the deposed ministers, so for a time some records were not kept. The rebellion on behalf of another Pretender, Bonnie Prince Charlie took place in 1745. Again some church records were lost or destroyed. Thus, we are hampered in our search for the baptisms and marriage of Helen Law and William Edward.

Narrowing the Possible Parishes of Origin of William Edward and Helen Law

The banns for the first marriage of record in Midmar were proclaimed on 25 Nov. 1718. The six-year period between the beginning of the marriage records and the birth of the supposed first child of William and Helen (Law) Edward provides more than adequate time for a marriage to have been recorded, so we can hypothesize that William and Helen were not married in Midmar.

The parishes surrounding Midmar are the first places to look for evidence of their ancestry. No marriage record for William and Helen survives, so to narrow the places in which to look for other types of records, we can eliminate those parishes with early records. Midmar was surrounded by Cluny, Echt, the former parish of Kinnernie (which is now divided among Midmar, Cluny, and Echt), Banchoose descendants decided that there must have been a Robert and then changed Alexander's name to Robert Alexander or simply Robert.

Scottish Naming Conventions a Clue to Ancestry of James Edward and Helen Lee

There was no requirement to do so, but the Scots tended to name their children for their parents, following a fairly-well defined pattern. D.J. Steel and A.E.F. Steel in Sources for Scottish Genealogy and Family History, p. 47, set forth the most common pattern: The eldest son was named for the paternal grandfather, the second son for the maternal grandfather, the third son for the father. The eldest daughter was named for the mother's mother, and so forth.

Using this pattern we can hypothesize the names of the parents of William Edward and Helen Lee. We would expect that James, as the eldest son was named for William's father, who would have been James Edward; we would expect the second son Alexander to have been named for Helen's father, who would have been Alexander Lee. Since the third son, William, was clearly named for his father. Perhaps their fourth son, Carstairs, was named for another relative. (I have tried to identify Helen's ancestry using the name Carstairs, but have yet to discover anything definitive.) William and Helen's daughter was Mary and should have been named for her maternal grandmother, so we should expect to find an Alexander Lee and Mary --- as the parents of Helen.

Poor Quality of Parish Records at that Time

Unfortunately, the early parish records of Aberdeenshire are very spotty. This is due primarily to major social dislocation in the first half of the 18th century. Beginning in 1697 Scotland had a major famine that lasted four years. It was so severe that many parishes could not employ clerks; as a result many records were not made and others were lost. In 1715, Aberdeenshire played a major role in the Jacobite rebellion. The rebellion on behalf of another Pretender, Bonnie Prince Charlie took place in 1745. Again some church records were lost or destroyed. Thus, we are hampered in our search for the 18th century marriage of Helen Lee and William Edward.

Narrowing the Possible Parishes of Origin of William Edward and Helen Lee

The banns for the first marriage of record in Midmar were proclaimed on 25 Nov 1717. The six-year period between the beginning of the marriage records and the birth of the supposed first child of William and Helen (James Edward) provides more than adequate time for a marriage to have been recorded, so we can hypothesize that William and Helen were not married in Midmar.

The parishes surrounding Midmar are the first places to look for evidence of their ancestry. No marriage record for William and Helen survives, so to narrow the places in which to look for other types of records, we can eliminate those parishes with early records. Midmar was surrounded by Cluny, Echt, the former parish of Kinernie which is now divided among Midmar, Cluny, and Echt, Banchory Ternan in Kincardineshire, and Kincardine O'Neil. The following table gives the dates for extant birth and marriage records for these parishes:

| Parish | Births | Marriages |
|---|---|---|
| Cluny | 1751-1854 | 1772-1854 |
| Echt | 1678-1854 | 1648-16661726-1854 |
| Kinnernie | nil | nil |
| Midmar | 1717-1854 | 1718-1854 |
| Banchory Ternan | 1670-16771682-1854 | 1670-1854 |
| Kincardine O'Neil | 1706-1854 | 1706-1854 |

To locate a possible birthplace for Helen Law and William Edward, we must eliminate those parishes with baptism records around the year 1700: Echt and Banchory Ternan. The remaining parishes--Cluny, Kinnernie, Midmar and Kincardine O'Neil--are possible places of birth. Second, we can eliminate as unlikely those parishes whose pre-1725 marriage records survive--Midmar, Kincardine O'Neil and Banchory Ternan. Cluny, Echt, and Kinnernie remain as possible places of marriage. From these two lists, Cluny and Kinnernie emerge as the two for which neither baptism nor marriage records for the correct time periods exist, so they are probable places of origin for William and Helen.

The 1695 Census

In 1695 a census was taken for the purpose of enumerating taxable people (anyone over age 16 who was not a beggar). These records have been compiled by A. Strath Maxwell, in The Presbytery of Kincardine, Aberdeenshire, Scotland, Inhabitants Polled Therein, 1695. The census enumerates possible ancestors of Helen Law and William Edward in Midmar and in neighboring parishes.

Parish of Midmar

Law, Alexander, servant, Little Sauchen
" Andrew, servant, Sunhonie
" James, married, subtenant, Sleidie
" John, weaver, Kebettie
" Janet, his daughter
" John, married, shoemaker, Little Sauchen
" John, and his mother, subtenant, Cairndaie

The former parish of Kinnernie

Edward, James, married, Kinnernie
" Margaret, servant
Law, Alexander, married, tenant, Banteith
" John, son of Alexander
" Jane, servant of the minister of Kinnernie

Parish of Cluny

Edward, James, married, grassman (shepherd?) Maynes of Muchell
Law, Alexander, married, cordiner (shoemaker?) Upper Drumahoy
" Charles, servant, Drumahoy
" Elspet, servant, Glentoune
" William, married, grassman, Renallach
" William, servant, New Maynes of Cluny
" William, servant, Maynes of Sachan

With the exception of Maynes of Muchell, these villages and hamlets can be located on an 1863 Ordnance map of Aberdeen. With the further exceptions of Glentoune, Renallach, and Sunhoney, they comprise an area with a diameter of 4 and 1/2 miles (see attached map). For example, James Edward of Kinnernie lived about one mile east of Alexander Law of Banteith. Milltown of Corsindae lies two to three miles to the west of them. Another Alexander Law lived in Upper Drumahoy, about a mile and 1/2 northwest of Kinnernie. A third Alexander Law lived in Little Sauchen, about 1/2 mile from Milltown of Corsindae.

Perhaps in Scotland I will be able to find other data which will provide definitive evidence of their ancestry. For now, we can only conclude that it is possible that Helen and William were born in Midmar, Cluny, or Kinnernie and it is possible that they married in Cluny or Kinnernie.

Helen Law's "Uncle" and her Supposed Background of Wealth

There is a tradition that Helen Law was the niece of William of Orange, most frequently referred to in tradition as the Duke of Orange. "Orange" is a given name in later generations of the family, supposedly to commemorate him. Royal famililies are usually well documented, so a search was undertaken for all recorded children of all siblings of William and Mary. No "niece" named Helen was located. Possibly, she was illegimate, but it has not been possible to trace her. Absent records on her birth, we may never discover how this tradition developed and what kernel of truth may have been lurking in the memory of James Edwards' youngest son George who was the first to name a son "Orange."

The fact that Helen and her husband lived in mill towns suggests that they were millers and not lord and lady as one tradition relates. Lords are well documented. For example, William Duff, the Laird of Corsindae owned the estate of that name. Everybody else who lived in Corsindae--including William and Helen (Law) Edwards--were tenants, subtenants or servants. As can be seen from the 1695 census, every person surnamed Law or Edwards living in or near Midmar Parish was of humble station. It should also be noted that during the last part of the 17th century and the first half of the 18th century, tenants on the Aberdeenshire estates were usually poor. It would be surprising if William and Helen (Law) Edwards were very much better off than the average tenant.

The Scottish Record Society has published a directory of landownership in all of Scotland for the year 1770 (excepting owners of city lots). It reports that only four people owned land in the entire parish of Dyce--Sir William Forbes, Mr. Burnett, Andrew Skene, and Dr. Alexander Bannerman. According to the Scottish Sasine records (comparable to American deeds), neither the Edwardses nor the Laws ever owned any land in the parishes of Dyce or Midmar.

There is a tradition that Helen Law had an estate in Scotland which was to have been left to her son James, who is supposed to have visited her in 1776. Because of the impending Revolutionary War and the imminent blockading of American ports, he is said to have left Scotland hurriedly and was unable to take possession of the estate. It is clear from the Directory of Land Ownership that Helen Law owned no estate in the countryside. Whether she had any property in the City of Aberdeen is at present impossible to determine.

Robert Alexander Edwards, the Supposed Wealthy Brother

There is a tradition that James was the son of a man named Robert Alexander

Edwards and that James also had a brother named Robert Alexander. These traditions are not supported by the facts. James had a brother named Alexander, but no brother named Robert has been found. There is also a tradition that an inheritance of vast proportion in New York City--supposedly left in the form of a 99-year lease by an intestate Robert Edwards--rightfully belonged to the heirs of James Edwards, the supposed only brother of Robert. This property--occupied by the Trinity Church in Lower Manhattan--was worth hundreds of millions of dollars. Naturally, any potential heirs were eager to claim their share.

In the Cincinnati library I discovered two books which address this subject directly. Trinity: Mother of Churches, An Informal History of Trinity Parish in the City of New York by Clifford Morehouse, provides an easy to read, abbreviated history of the property. Briefly, the land on which Trinity Church was built was owned in the 1600s by Anneke Jans, the wife of Evardus Bogardus. Her will directed that it be sold and the proceeds divided among her heirs; Francis Lovelace, the English governor purchased it from them. He later went into debt and the farm became the possession of King James II. It was known as the "King's Farm." The propoerty was leased to Trinity Church and was known as the "Queen's Farm" when Queen Anne granted it to the Church in 1705. It then became known as Trinity Church Farm. In the mid 1700s, after the last of the original heirs of Anneke Jans Bogardus had died, a later descendant tried to claim the property on the grounds that one of the original heirs had never signed a release; however, Trinity Church's title was held to be clear and unassailable. From time to time for the next 200 years, Anneke's subsequent descendants have sued to reclaim title to the Trinity Church lands. In addition, suits were brought by other people, for example, those named Edwards. All that got to court were summarily rejected.

Stephen P. Nash, L.L.D., found the litigation worthy of a lengthy legal analysis. "A History of the Title to King's Farm and the Litigation Thereon" is included in the second volume of A History of the Parish of Trinity Church in New York City, published in 1901. In his analysis Nash quotes the original charter and provides a complete history of the farm and of the efforts of Bogardus descendants and numerous others to "reclaim" it. Nash concludes his article by stating that all suits following the original one "... have been brought in aid of schemes fraudulently set on foot to obtain contributions from the so-called heirs. From time to time fresh organizations are formed under the pretence that facts newly discovered make success certain in a threatened attack. Many are deluded into furnishing money to aid the promoters in these swindling operations." (II:311)

It is unfortunate that the National Scotch Edwards Heirs did not discover Nash's analysis. It might have saved them years of grief and many hundreds, if not thousands, of dollars. But perhaps not. It appears that Orange Edwards understood that "the inheritance" was a scam as early as 1891. His letter, on file at the Brown County Genealogical Society, says as much. In it he reported that his sons, both attorneys, had traveled to New York to search the Edwards claim, and had found there was nothing to it. He seems to have tried to discourage others from pursuing "the inheritance." Nonetheless, finding nothing doesn't prove there is nothing to be found. So the "heirs" kept hoping.

How did the Edwards family get involved in suing for Trinity Church property? A book entitled The Edwards of Northampton [Co., NC] by Bruce Montgomery Edwards, called to my attention by Mary Sue Edwards, explains how his family learned of the "estate." In 1877, they became aware--through an advertisement requesting that heirs of Robert Edwards make inquiries with "certain parties in New York City"--of an "expired lease," for land occupied by Trinity Church. I have not yet seen this advertisement, but it appears to have been placed in a number of newspapers in the 1870s by confidence artists who hoped to collect contributions from the "heirs" to aid in lawsuits to reclaim the property. The plan was enormously successful. Bruce Edwards reports that associations were formed throughout the United States and in Scotland, Wales, and England. People held meetings, researched their ancestries, wrote to their relatives, and contributed toward the "legal fees." Some members of his family were so convinced that they would eventually become wealthy that they continued to make claims against Trinity Church until 1956. Our branch of the Edwards family are known to have pursued the inheritance at least until the late 1920s. For the record: I have searched the New York City Conveyances and found no property in New York city acquired by either a Robert or an Alexander Edwards (FHL microfilm roll 888341).

Why Was Alexander Renamed Robert?

Perhaps the "inheritance" story and wishful thinking associated with it affected people's memories. If the man who left the "inheritance" was named Robert Edwards, then to qualify for the inheritance, the descendants of James Edwards had to jog their memories and discover that James had a brother named Robert. His name was actually Alexander, so I propose that the descendants said to themselves, "Maybe his name was Robert Alexander." By the next generation, they had transformed him into Robert Alexander--or in some cases simply Robert--and the fact that his name had been Alexander was lost. I would also propose that the middle name of "William" some traditions have for our James is a residual memory of his father's name. Almost nobody in Scotland at that time had a middle name. According to Steel and Steel, in 1760 only one percent of all children in Scotland were baptized with two Christian names.

Who was Richard Edwards, James' supposed grandfather?

One version of the tradition is that James Edwards' father was named Robert Alexander; this Robert Alexander was said to have had brothers named Leonard, Joshua, Thomas, John, William, and Jacob and a sister named Martha; Robert Alexander's father was said to have been Richard; Richard Edwards was supposed to have moved from Wales to Aberdeen where he was a minister and where sons Robert Alexander and James were born. There is no record of a Richard Edwards as a minister in Aberdeen.

It is instructive to note that Bruce Edwards reports that his Northampton Co., N.C., family descends from a Richard Edwards of Wales who had a set of great grandchildren named Robert, Joshua, William, Thomas, Leonard, John, Jacob, and Martha. Perhaps in their zeal to prove their claim to the "inheritance" some of our branch "adopted" another Edwards family. This was unfortunate, because it has made finding the truth about James Edwards far more complicated than it should have been.

Linda H. Wilson

Dear Linda:

I was pleased to receive your very detailed response to my letter. I shall try to answer your questions as fully as I can. Unfortunately, I am extremely rushed now with four or five projects and limited time before we leave for the east.

1. With respect to the baptism of James Edward[s].

A James Edwards was baptized on 6 May 1727 in the parish of Midmar, about 16 miles west of what is now called Old Aberdeen, Aberdeenshire. His parents were William and Helen (Law) Edward. (It should be noted that in the parish record their names are always written without the "s." The name "Edwards" was always used in the American records so far consulted; His mother's maiden name "Law" has been recorded both with and without an "s" in the American records.

This James had at least the following brothers and sisters: Mary, bap. 9 Oct. 1725; Alexander, 25 Nov. 1731; and William, 17 Nov. 1734. The Parish Records of Midmar, Aberdeenshire, (LDS microfilm roll 993344) state that his parents lived in Milltown of Corsindae, what appears to be a hamlet about a mile northwest of the parish church of Midmar, and about 16 miles west of old Aberdeen.

I believe the tradition that James is the son of Robert Alexander Edward is wrong; nevertheless, the name should not be discarded. It is possible that a generation has been omitted in the family tradition and that James' father William Edwards was the son of Robert Alexander. Unfortunately, I have located no such father-son relationship so my argument is not supported.

I will certainly look at the James Edwards record you have located, but I tend to believe that he is not our James Edwards for two major reasons:

a. It may not be generally known to Edwards descendants, but two of James Edwards' children--George and Jane--were interviewed by Professor Lyman Coleman Draper in connection with Draper's research on the Trans-Allegheny migration about which he had hoped to write a book. Among many other things George stated in this interview that his father James was born in 1727, was kidnapped at the age of 11 (1738) and taken to Virginia where he was bought by Parson Keith. Draper Manuscripts 19 S 71-72, available at the Library of Congress and undoubtedly through LDS, but I do not have a reference number.

b. The baptism of the James Edward that I found gives the name of his mother--Helen Law--which seems conclusive.

2. With respect to James' children. George reported that there were ten children in the family, seven sons and three daughters.

You list a possible 12 children. Below, I will list the children that Mary Sue Edwards believes are his, together with the dates she gave and you give, if different. I have added in brackets additional information that I have about their vital dates. After I list them, I will discuss what more I know about each one.

1. William ~~Everett~~ b. ca 1752 m. Nancy Hayden or [Hammond, why?] 1774. [Linda, where did you get these dates?[His wife is named Ann in a Fairfax Co. deed of 1784, but Nancy was a nickname for Ann; Mentioned in father's will written 9 Feb. 1803, consequently still living then.]

2. Jacob m. Elizabeth Marshall, 1779. [Are you sure about this date?] As I will show below, Jacob sold land in Fairfax County in his name only in 1786; his wife's dower rights would have had to have been relinquished, but no Elizabeth (nor any other spouse) appears in the deed. d. 1791, will proved 26 July 1791, Mason Co. Court Order Book A, p. 223.]

3. Eleanor m. John West, ca. 1775-1780. d. 1828 [Where do dates come from?]

4. Jane, [b. 22 Nov. 1769, her interview with Lyman Coleman Draper; m. William Rains, 23 Oct. 1787, in Ellsberry, Marriage Records of Bourbon Co., Kentucky 1786-1800, LDS roll 908037]

Nancy/Anne Scott, [26 March 1793, Bell, Mason Co., Ky. Marriages, 1788-1851, LDS Mss. 976.932/v25b] [d. 1794, will proved 3 Dec. 1794, Mason Co., Will book, A: 79-80.]

7. Alexander [d. 1786; he shot himself accidentally in the leg while preparing for Logan's campaign; died four or five days later. Jane (Edwards) Rains'interview with Draper]

8. Robert [this one is totally new to me; I have never seen his name in any public record]

9. George [b.3 Jan. 1772, Draper interview] m. Susanna Downing 20 August 1794 [I must have missed this marriage record and need source] d. 28 Oct. 1870 need source

10. Sinah Highly doubtful as a daughter; I'll argue why below.

11. Susannah We'll have to talk about these two.

12. John

Additional information and/or guesses I have about each one:

1. William no ~~Everett: You and other descendants report that his middle name was Everett, apparently his mother's maiden name.~~ I have never seen this middle name used in any public record. Do you know where it is recorded, e.g. in Family Bible records? William first bought land in Fairfax Co., 7 Oct. 1783, suggesting a birthdate as early as 1762, but he was probably older. You say he married Nancy ~~Hayden or~~ Hammond in 1774, which would place his birthdate around 1754. Where does the name Hammond come from? What documents do you have for this and other marriage dates for James Edwards' children? George reported in his interview with Lyman Draper that William, Jacob, and Alexander went to Kentucky in 1785, and that William traveled on to the Falls of the Ohio while Jacob and Alexander stopped at Kenton Station. Except for the reference to him in his father's will, I know no more than this about him. If you know anything more about William, I would be interested, but he is not a high priority for me except insofar as he sheds light on his father's life.

2. Jacob: First bought land in Fairfax Co., 15 Nov. 1782, making him at least 21 at the time, but he may have been older. Jane (Edwards) Rains reported to Draper that Jacob and his younger brother Alexander went first to Kenton Station in 1785. On 22 and 25 Aug 1786 Alexander signed two petitions to make Mason County separate from Bourbon County. (The Rains: Cornelius, James, John and William also signed.) Jacob did not sign apparently because he had returned to Fairfax County to sell his land and to bring the rest of the family to Kentucky.

Jacob was one of the first Justices of the Peace of Mason County; he and other justices are always described as gentlemen. Jacob regularly attended quarter sessions until 1791 when he began to fail to appear. On 24 March 1791 a suit in which he was involved was held over with the following notation, that it "shall not abate due to the death of either until finally decided." This evidence suggests to me that he died from a lingering, predictably fatal condition and not something sudden. His will was written 9 Apr. 1791 and was proved 26 July 1791. Jacob Edwards' probate record shows that he was a blacksmith and that he had an estate large enough to send his three daughters to boarding school. It would appear from his position as a Justice of the Peace and from his estate, that he was a man of prominence in Kenton Station.

Jacob's will also contains an interesting reference that may shed some light on the subject of Sinah. Jacob left 100 acres of land to Sinah Sudduth, which was part of a military survey located by John O'Banion lying three miles up Three-Mile Creek north of the Ohio River opposite Limestone. He does not mention his relationship to her, which is unusual; normally, wills refer to beloved wives, sons, daughters etc.; he merely refers to her as Sinah Sudduth. Could she be the same Sinah to whom James Edwards left a legacy? yes And, if so, who is she?

3. Eleanor: All my great grandfather's memoirs have about Eleanor focuses on the silver spoons, so I know almost nothing about her. Since you say you are related to Samuel Bayne, her husband, through your Johnson line, are you by any chance related to the Helen Johnson, who had the spoons? yes

In various Brown County sources I have found two lists of the names of John and

You say he married Nancy Dayden or Hammond in 1774, which would place his birthdate around 1754. Where does the name Hammond come from? What documents do you have for this and other marriage dates for James Edwards' children? George reported in his interview with Lyman Draper that William, Jacob, and Alexander went to Kentucky in 1785, and that William traveled on to the Falls of the Ohio while Jacob and Alexander stopped at Kenton Station. In various Brown County sources I have found two lists of the names of John and

Eleanor (Edwards) West's children. In Eliese Bambach Stivers' Ripley, Ohio: Its History and Families, there is the list of Reverend Joseph Stewart West:

William (married Mary White [my ancestor], James (d. at age 9), John (married Lavinah Stewart), Edward (married Sarah Edwards), Lizzie (married John Middleton), Lettice (married John Brown), Sarah (married John Wood), Jane (married Travis Reed) and Ellen (married Samuel Bayne [she is the one who inherited the spoons]. He reports that five or six of these children were born in Fairfax County and that the family moved to Washington, Mason Co., Ky. in 1796. He reports that his father--John West--was born in 1 Jan. 1797 in Mason County. I find Reverend West's list of the children, grandchildren, and some great-grandchildren of John and Eleanor to be extremely confusing so I am thankful for your list and would like to see your documentation for dates and events.

4. Jane: In her interview with Lyman Draper, Jane reported her birthdate as 22 Nov. 1769 and that of her husband William Rains, as 22 Nov. 1763. She was interviewed in 1858 when she was in her 89th year. She was living with her son Alexander, near Aberdeen at the time. She said her father brought her and the rest of his family to Kenton Station, arriving 19 Dec. 1786. There were 15 families at the Station when they settled there. She said her father was the first settler across the river in 1795 and that he named the place Aberdeen after his native Aberdeen in Scotland. There is much more to this interview, but these are the important parts so far as the tradition is concerned.

5. Nancy: I do not have any additional information about her.

6. James: As I noted above, James died soon after marrying. He left his plantation to his wife Nancy, and thereafter to his daughter Eleanor Laws Edwards. (Her middle name is noted in the Mason Co. Court Order Book, B: 65-66.

7. Alexander: Jane reported to Draper that her brother Alexander had shot himself in the leg in 1786. She said that Col. Daniel Boone had offered to cut out the ball, but that Alexander had refused and died a few days later. She also reported that Alexander was a blacksmith.

8. Robert: I have not seen this name in Bourbon or Mason County, Kentucky, records. Perhaps he died before the family went to Kentucky, but I have not seen him in Fairfax County records either, so he must have been a child. The name Robert is certainly one common to various traditions about the Edwards family. If there was a namesake Robert, one would have thought that his birth order would have been earlier than this. Where did you get his name?

9. George: George Edwards' name first appears in the records of Mason Co. in August 1792 when he was made constable. [When I first wrote this list, it was in response to Mary Sue Edwards, who is his descendant, so I did not bother to report more. Have no time now, but do have more.]

10. Sinah: I have to admit that I too have pondered the identity of "Since Furr" referred to in James Edwards' will made in 1803 and of Sinah Suddoth, referred to in his son Jacob's will made in 1791. I do not believe she could have been James' daughter, or he would have said "to my daughter." Moreover, why would Jacob have left 100 acres to one of his sisters and not to the others? And would not he too have said "to my sister"? Finally, as the fourth daughter of James and Sarah, she contradicts the report of George who said he had three sisters, a statement he was unlikely to have made if not true. I have not seen the marriage record of a Sinah Edwards to William Furr in 1794. Where did you see this? It would be interesting to discover whether there was an earlier marriage of Sinah Sudduth to Alexander or Robert or --?-- Edwards. I would guess that she was a sweetheart/fiancee/widow of one of the Edwards boys and that she came with them from Fairfax County. In the cemetery of the old Pohick Church--undoubtedly the one attended by the Edwards family in Fairfax County--there is a tombstone of a Silent Suddath, b. 12 Aug. 1812, d. 27 July 1830. Suddoth/Suddath is not a common name, so the answer to her identity may be readily obtainable.

Well there is far more more to discuss, but I simply do not have the time now. My husband and I will be in all relevant counties to do more research later this summer. I will be giving a talk at the Brown Co. Gen. Soc. meeting Sept. 21 on how to differentiate fact from fiction in family legends. We will be returning through Illinois and would like to stop in Decatur to see you and your records and memorabilia and to discuss issues, if that would be agreeable. This would probably be the following week some time. We leave here the 19th of August, so you probably won't have time to reply to this address. You may write to me c/o Betty Bentzel, 37 McAllister Church Road, Carlisle, PA 17013. My telephone here is (604) 653-4546. I look forward very much to hearing from you.

Yours most cordially,

I need the death record of John Edwards and proof of his being the father of Susannah, who was my great grandmother.

Hope I have helped you some. I refer you to the descendents of Darius Edwards who were living in 1967. These are the children of an elderly man William Edwards who died in 1967 at the age of 100 yrs. William Edwards, Dayton Ohio. Raymond Edwards Decatur Ohio. Lloyd Edwards, Russellville Ohio. Bernice Edwards Knechly, Feesburg Ohio. and Lucille Edwards Wilson who cared for her father William Edwards until his death, Russelville Ohio. William was the son of JOhn Edawrds but not MY John Edwards. This John served in the Civil War.

I refer you also to Glenn Wood, an accurate historian 545 W Century Blvd, Los Angeles Calif. He is of the West Family ~~of~~ George Edwards.

Also to Mrs Lois Powers who is descended from a son of George Edawrds James Edwards. We are fourth cousins and have corresponded. She does Edwards research.

Back to the lineage:

RALPH BEHYMER COLLECTION

George Edwards was the son of James Edwards and Sarah Everett. who married after 1750 in N.Y.

James according to history was kidnapped in Scotland when out tending the family cow. He was sold as an indentured servant but because of good behavier freed early in life. He migrated to Mason County Ky and settled at Kenton Station later moving across the river to where Aberdeen is now situated. He bought 1000acres of land and laid out the town of Aberdeen naming it for his birthplace, Aberdeen Scotland. James was private in the Rev. I have his service papers. I also have wills and deeds and his license to operate a ferry between Maysville and Aberdeen. James died in Byrd township, Brown County, Ohio 1804

James Edwards was the son of Robert Edwards and Eleanor Laws , a niece of the Duke of Orange. He was born in the 1600"s. mar 1660.
^Robert.

Robert Edwards was the son of Rev Richard Edwards born in Holy Well, Wales . Rev Richard moved from Holy Well to England and from there to Aberdeen, Scotland.

Thank you very much for renewing my interest in this fascinating hobby. I had almost given it up.

I cannot make connection with the name of Edwards you sent me but fell quite sure he is one of the clan.

Regards to your good wife and thanks for writing.

Sincerely, Gladys Miles

Gladys Miles.

James Edwards & Family.

From George Edwards, with his son-in-law, Edward Westy, near Russellville, Brown Co. Ohio — born in Fairfax Co. Va, January 3d 1772: that winter was a "hard winter" — snow fell over three feet deep in Virginia — so could on snow shoes chase up & kill deer plentifully in that region.

Mr. Edwards' father, was James Edwards — he was a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, where he was born in 1727, & kidnapped at the age of eleven & taken to Virginia, & bought by Parson Keith to pay his passage — there in course of time he married, & had seven sons & three daughters, my informant only living — Mrs Jane Rains, his sister, died in fall of 1860.

James Edwards moved to Kentucky, & landed at Limestone, Dec. 6th 1786, & moved to Kenton's Station where he lived three or four years.

His three sons, William, Jacob & Alexander went to Kentucky in 1785, William to Falls of Ohio, & the other two to Kenton's Station — Alexander was a surveyor, & in 1786, when the men were assembling at Kenton's Station & preparing to go out on Logan's Campaign, Alexr. Edwards was fixing the lock of a pistol, & by accident it went off, shooting him in the knee, & ranging down to the foot, & having no surgeon, he died three days after from the effects of the wound.

Logan's Campaign, 1786. – Logan's Gap, where the army passed through, is three miles below Maysville, at what is Charlestonbar. After crossing the Ohio, a man who nobody knew joined Logan's army – & when they reached where Urbana now is, he deserted & went to the Indians, & gave their notice. Name not known.

LINTRATHEN, a parish, containing a post-office station of its own name, also the hamlets of Bridgend and Pitmudie, in the Grampian district of Forfarshire. It is bounded by Kirriemuir, Kingoldrum, Airlie, Alyth, and Glenisla. Its length southward is 12 miles; and its greatest breadth is 5½ miles. It lies in the outskirts of the Grampians, and is, for the most part, a sea of heights from 500 to 1,000 feet above the level of Strathmore, of bleak, barren, and chilly aspect. Along the southern boundary, and some way up the middle of the interior on the banks of the principal streams, are sloping belts of arable ground, considerable in area, and not deficient in fertility. But most of the lands in tillage are thinly carpeted with a moorish soil, and produce corn of inferior quality. Among the hills in the interior are several valleys fit only for pasturage. The heights are, for the most part, heathy; and, in the north corner, are wild and desolate. About 3,000 acres of the entire area are in tillage, and about 1,200 are under wood. The river Isla flows 5½ miles along the western and south-western boundaries, and achieves there its fine falls of the Reeky linn and the Slug of Achrannie, from the former of which arose the name of Lintrathen. The rivulets Back-water and Melgam-water rise in the northern extremity, and run southward through the interior, making a junction a little above the parish church, whence their united stream proceeds to the Isla. Lintrathen-loch, nearly circular in outline, about 2½ miles in circumference, and of picturesque appearance, lies ½ of a mile west of the parish church, and sends off its superfluence to Back-water. The principal landowners are the Earl of Airlie and Sir Charles Lyell. The real rental in 1855 was £4,438. Assessed property in 1865, £7,176 9s. Estimated yearly value of raw produce in 1842, £12,480. The nearest point of market traffic is Kirriemuir, 7 miles east of the southern border. Population in 1831, 998; in 1861, 898. Houses, 191.

This parish is in the presbytery of Meigle, and synod of Angus and Mearns. Patron, the Earl of Airlie. Stipend, £159 2s.; glebe, £12. Schoolmaster's salary is £52 10s., with £26 fees, and £5 other emoluments. The parish church was built in 1802, and contains 450 sittings. The ancient church belonged to the priory of Inchmahome. There are two private schools.

LINTROSE. See Kettins.

LINVILLE. See Kirkfieldbank.

LINWOOD, a manufacturing village on the north-east border of the parish of Kilbarchan, Renfrewshire. It stands on the left bank of the Black Cart, 1¾ mile north-east of Johnstone, and 2½ miles west by north of Paisley. The river is spanned here by a bridge of one arch, erected about the year 1762. The Glasgow and Greenock railway also passes in the vicinity. The village stands mostly on the estate of Blackstone, and was built on a regular plan. It is of modern origin, having arisen from a large mill for the spinning of cotton, which was established at this place in 1792, burnt down in 1802, and rebuilt in 1805. This factory and the iron minings in the neighbourhood employ most of the inhabitants. Population, 1,514.

LISMORE, an island in the Lorn district of Argyleshire. It contains the post-office station of Lismore, and the villages of Clachan and Portramsay. It lies along the middle of the south-west end of Loch-Linnhe, at the distance of 7 miles from Oban. It consists of an uneven rocky ridge, about 9 miles long, extending from south-west to north-east, and averaging about 1½ mile in breadth. Its basis is entirely limestone; and its surface is rugged and sprinkled with abrupt projecting rocks, but its soil is a rich black loam, formed from limestone, and extremely fertile. Deer and ox horns of uncommonly large size have been frequently dug up in the bogs. The name Lismore signifies 'the great garden,' and probably alludes to the comparative productiveness of the island, lying like a garden amidst a great extent of sterile country, which it considerably supplies with the necessaries of life. It was anciently the seat of the bishop of Argyle, who was frequently named 'Episcopus Lismoriensis;' and a great part of the cathedral remains, the chancel of which is used as the parish church. The walls of the bishop's castle remain pretty entire at Achinduin, 4 miles west of the cathedral. There was formerly a Roman Catholic college on the island; but it was removed in 1831, and has left no trace. There are vestiges of several fortified camps, and of an old castle with a fosse and drawbridge, said to have been erected by the Danes. A lighthouse stands on the south-west end of the island, exhibiting a fixed light, which is visible at the distance of 15 nautical miles. This lighthouse and a number of neat houses among trees in its neighbourhood, are sparkling objects in the extensive scenery at the junction of Loch-Linnhe with the sound of Mull, and looked particularly fine on the occasion of Queen Victoria's voyage to Fort-William in the autumn of 1847. A fair is held in Lismore on the last Tuesday of October, but is not much frequented. Population in 1861, 858. Houses, 187. Assessed property in 1815, £1,250.

LISMORE and APPIN, an united parish in the north of Argyleshire. It is bounded by the counties of Inverness and Perth, and by the parishes of Glenorchy, Ardchattan, Kilmore, Torosay, Morven, and Ardnamurchan. It comprises the three great districts of Lismore, Kingairloch, and Appin, the first within Loch-Linnhe, the second on the north-west side of that loch, the third on the south-east side of that loch; and it has Loch-Leven, Loch-Creran, and the Sound of Mull, on its boundaries. Its length from north-east to south-west is not less than 48 miles; and its average breadth is about 10 miles. Its principal parts will be found described in our articles Lismore, Kingairloch, Glensanda, Appin, Airds, Duror, Glencreran, Glencoe, Leven (Loch), and Ballachulish. Its extent of sea coast is not less than 90 miles. Its land-surface comprises about 4,000 acres of arable land, about 4,000 acres of woodland, and about 345,760 of hill pasture, moss, moor, and barren mountain. There are sixteen landowners having each a rental of upwards of £50. Good communication is enjoyed by means of steamers passing through Loch-Linnhe and the Sound of Mull to and from the Clyde. Population in 1831, 4,365; in 1861, 3,595. Houses, 721. Assessed property in 1860, £15,065.

This parish is in the presbytery of Lorn, and synod of Argyle. Stipend, £274 13s. 10d.; glebe, £17. Unappropriated teinds, £58 7s. 3d. There are two parish churches,—the one of Lismore repaired in 1749, the other of Appin built in that year; and the number of sittings in the former is 550, in the latter, 400. There is a government church at Duror, built in 1826, containing 323 sittings, and having the status of a quoad sacra parish church. There are three missions of the royal bounty; one of them wholly for Kingairloch, one shared between Lismore and Morven, and one shared between Glencoe and Ardchattan. There is a Free church at Appin; whose receipts in 1865 amounted to £270 17s. 2d. There is an United Presbyterian church of Lismore, with an attendance of 120. There is an Independent chapel in Appin. There are Episcopalian chapels at Portnacroish, Duror, and Glen

Dear Mrs. Welch,

The registers of the parish of Lintrathen only survive back to 1717. However, a search of them up to 1740 has revealed the following entries under the surname Edwards.

Lintrathen, Forfar - Original Parish Registers - Baptisms 1717-1740

|---|---|
| 3 Sep. 1722 | Alexr. Edward, Raverny, had a child baptised James. |
| 28 Feb. 1723 | Wm. Edward in Bow had a child baptised James. |
| 7 Nov. 1727 | Alexander Edward had a son Robert baptised at Raverny. |

There were no entries under the surname Edwards, though there were two James Edward baptisms here, and the fact that one of them had a brother called Robert very much suggests that we have traced the subjects of your quest.

Like the baptismal registers, the marriage registers only survive back to 1717, so we have not been able to establish whether James and Robert's parents married there.

The microfiche indexes of baptisms and marriages recorded in the parish registers of Forfarshire were searched, but no entry was found for the marriage of an Eleanor Law (or Low) to an Edward, Edwards, or Soapen (or any variant of the name).

THE TEN CHILDREN OF JAMES EDWARDS OF ABERDEENSHIRE, SCOTLAND AND ABERDEEN, OHIO

For many years descendants of James Edwards (1727-1803) have tried to reconcile varying lists of his children. The earliest mention of them was given in 1863 to University of Wisconsin Professor Lyman Coleman Draper by George Edwards, one of James's youngest sons. George said he had grown up in a family of ten children, seven boys and three girls, but he did not name them. (Draper Manuscripts, 19 S 71). No twentieth-century Edwards genealogist has accounted for seven sons; the names of four, five, or six sons appear in modern accounts of the family.

Recently discovered letters, written in 1878 by John West and Orange Edwards, solve the problem. John West was the son of Eleanor Edwards West (James's eldest daughter) and Orange was the youngest son of George Edwards, the respondent in Professor Draper's interview. John West and Orange Edwards were reporting what they knew about their families to S.W.D. Stone and James Edwards Stone, first cousins, once-removed. The Stone brothers were coordinating an effort to claim the "Edwards Estate," a fictitious 62-acre parcel in the heart of Manhattan, supposedly once owned by a Robert Edwards. (For a discussion of this and dozens of other fictitious estates and the effect on family records of desire for a share in them, see my article, "Estate Fraud and Spurious Pedigrees" Genealogical Journal, 19 (dated 1991, issue 15 August 1992), 22-46, published by the Utah Genealogical Association.)

The letters of John West and Orange Edwards contain the earliest information yet found for each of James Edwards's children: seven boys and three girls. The letters also report to some degree on their ages and causes of death. Finally, they give details about some of their descendants. In 1925, these letters and other papers were transcribed by Roberta Y. Bush who was caught up in another round of "Edwards Estate" hysteria. They may be found in the Bush-Beauchamp file held by The Filson Club in Louisville, Kentucky.

Edwards descendants will notice that the birth order of James Edwards's children differs from that in widely circulating family group sheets. In his 16 August 1878 letter to S.W.D. Stone, Orange Edwards listed the children of James Edwards. I have several reasons for accepting the accuracy of the order he gives. Not only do the names come from a source who was close to the individuals named (Orange was talking about his aunts and uncles), but also he reported that he had consulted "James Edwards' family record as handed me by father [George Edwards]." Probably, this was "the Old Scotch Bible" he mentions in another letter. Further, George had lived with his son for some years before he died. As James's youngest surviving child, George was the family patriarch and a focal point for family visits of nieces and nephews. Finally, with respect to those children of James Edwards who married, John West followed the same order, only omitting the names of those of his aunts and uncles who had died young.

To economize on space, this article does not provide full genealogical data on the ten children. Its purpose is merely to report the genealogical information in the letters and papers. Each genealogical fact is printed in boldface and is followed by the initials of the source and the date of document; that is, Orange Edwards: OE; John West: JW; and several grandsons of William

Edwards: S.W.D. Stone: SWDS; J[onah] P. McKay: JPK; and Haden Edwards McKay: HEM. A letter from James Edwards Stone reports an interview he had with John West, Sr.; although I use the code JES, the information actually came from John West Sr.

The S.W.D. Stone account of the Edwards Family Tradition and the letters and affidavits filed with it did not serve their intended purpose; that is, they did not help the writers to capture a share in a phony estate. Today, these papers can serve another purpose entirely. The list of James Edwards's children, as given by Orange Edwards from his grandfather's private records is the only definitive list of James's seven boys and three girls ever likely to be found. John West Sr. and Orange Edwards were trying to be systematic, but it is clear that they did not provide a complete picture of each of James Edwards's children. Further, the names of many grandchildren, their dates and places were also omitted. Nevertheless, the information they did provide can be used as clues for determining the appropriate public records for filling in the gaps.

READ IT RIGHT AND WRITE IT RIGHT:
Correcting "The Ten Children of James Edwards of Aberdeenshire, Scotland and Aberdeen, Ohio"

by

Helen Hinchliff, Ph.D.

Family tradition, even when the person relating it has reason to know whereof he speaks, should never be taken at face value. We should always look for proof of statements about our ancestors' births, deaths, marriages. There are many reasons to be wary. Our elders might have misrepresented their own lives, playing up the interesting parts and downgrading the things about which they were ashamed. Further, they may have misunderstood stories they heard as children. Possibly, they did not know what they were talking about.

Another reason to be wary of tradition is one rarely considered: do we understand what our ancestors were trying to say? C. Hayden Edwards reports two instances in my article about the ten children of James Edwards (see Newsletter, XI:32-34) in which I misinterpreted some unclear language in family papers written over 100 years ago.

(1) The following statement by S.W.D. Stone, written on 1 July 1878, is ambiguous:

> [My grandfather William Edwards] settled [in] Bloomfield [Nelson County, Ky.] or adjoining it; raised a family and lived there till his death. He was accidentally killed in his mill. I know personally of this fact. It has always been understood and talked of in the family that there was a large estate in Aberdeen, Scotland, belonging to our Edwards family. My uncle, Haden Edwards, who was the Executor or administrator of his father, William Edwards, - somewhere about the years 1834, 1835 or 1836, when I was about grown, prepared or talked of preparing papers and employed Jona M. McKay and got him ready to go to Scotland. . . .

In this paragraph Stone combined a discussion of his grandfather's accidental death with a description of his uncle Haden Edwards's efforts to reclaim a supposed estate in Scotland. I concluded that Stone was reporting that his grandfather had died between 1834 and 1836. I had three reasons: (1) Stone identified Haden as his grandfather's executor when he reported the dates, (2) Stone said that he knew personally about his grandfather's death, and (3) Stone said that he was "about grown" in 1834-36. I assumed that Stone was combining a discussion of his grandfather's death and Haden Edwards's efforts regarding the supposed estate, because Haden was acting in his role as his father's executor.

However, William Edwards died intestate on 5 March 1811; his son Haden was granted letters of administration and the inventory of his estate was recorded on 20 May 1811 (Nelson County Wills, B:278). Stone's report of executor Haden Edwards's interest in a supposed Scottish estate had nothing to do with William's death.

(2) In an undated letter, written between 16 August and 13 September 1878, Orange Edwards reported a visit to relatives in Louisiana:

> I was down in the South in 1861 and met with James Edwards, a grandson of Travis Edwards, who lived near Donaldsville in Louisiana about 100 miles from New Orleans on the Mississippi, but he is now dead. I have had letters from his son, since he owned and lived on a large sugar plantation, and the last time I was there his widow still lived there.

Orange mentions men in three generations: Travis (the second son of William Edwards), Travis's grandson James Edwards, and the latter's unnamed son. After introducing them, Orange then uses the pronouns "he" and "his" to refer to them. The antecedents are not clear, so it was unwise for me to try to disentangle them without knowing some facts.

C. Hayden Edwards informs me that the phrase "he is now dead" did not refer to Travis, who had died before 1865 (Settlement of Haden Edwards Estate, 22 May 1865, Nelson County Probates, 12:622-26). Instead, Mr. Edwards believes it referred to Travis Edwards's grandson, James. If so, the widow would have been that of James Edwards, not Travis Edwards. As factual support for this conclusion, Mr. Edwards reports Nelson County Court records showing that Travis Edwards and his wife Elizabeth Grigsby did not have a good marriage. Travis Edwards's name disappeared from the Nelson County records after 1837, but on 15 August 1852 Elizabeth (Grigsby) Edwards was named a co-guardian in her mother's death certificate. Thus, she did not accompany Travis to Louisiana and could not have been the widow that Orange reported was still living on the sugar plantation.

Let this be a twofold lesson:

First, when we encounter garbled messages left by our ancestors, we should read them very carefully, looking for all plausible meanings. Then we should look for facts which will clarify them.

Second, we should write our family histories or our articles as clearly as we possibly can. Although we may know what we are trying to say, we should not assume that our readers will understand us. Perhaps it would help if we asked ourselves whether a stranger would understand. This is a useful rule to follow even with letters. We often think our letters will be read only by the person to whom we send them. Our respondents know the relatives about whom we are writing, so we assume they will understand all our unclear referents. But will our letters be understood in 100 years by collateral descendants whose future existence we can scarcely imagine?

A Castle on a Hill? Edwards Lore, Empirical Evidence, and the Real Helen Law of Aberdeen, Scotland

By Helen Hinchliff, Ph.D., CG

Tradition is valuable to almost every family search, and finding aids are a godsend. However, too close an adherence to the path of tradition usually leads the researcher astray; and "looking up the name," as a research strategy, quickly leads to dead ends. Descendants of Helen Law had a grand tradition, but its grandeur was deceiving. While visions of a Scottish castle on a hill had grown more elaborate with each succeeding generation, the walls of that castle crumbled under the weight of evidence her descendants had missed.

James Edwards was a blacksmith, according to family lore, but he was born to a higher station. Kidnapped as a child and spirited away to America, this eighteenth-century Virginian was, by all accounts, the scion of an ill-fated marriage made by a legendary mother. Helen Law—some called her Ellen or Eleanor Laws—was "a niece of the Duke of Orange," according to one source, who also wrote that the duke was known as the "Prince of Orange, but was best known as William III of England."[1] Not realizing that Scottish women kept their maiden names throughout life, another descendant declared that Helen Law's second husband was actually "Lord Law" and that they lived in a "castle on a hill" near the burgh of Aberdeen on Scotland's east coast—a castle in whose many rooms she had "playfully lost" her son James.[2] Yet another account contends that Helen

As for the "Prince of Orange" tradition, Woods likely got the idea from Helen Law's fifth-generation descendant Dr. Orange Edwards, who once wrote, "[My] name Orange comes from the House of Orange of Holland and Prince William of Orange became William III, King of England, from 1689 to 1702"; see letter from Dr. Orange Edwards, Seattle, Washington, to Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Edwards, Boise, Idaho, dated 1 March 1950. The late Dr. Edwards was the grand nephew of Orange$^3$ Edwards (George$^2$, James$^1$, Helen$^A$ Law), who left other accounts cited herein. "owned an entire silk factory."[3] For the first century or so this family line spent in America, descendants kept Helen's memory alive through oral accounts. For the second century or so, offspring have sought her origin; but they have been stumped because they depended too much on the first century of lore.

Donald Lines Jacobus, the first genealogist named to the National Genealogy Hall of Fame, once wrote: "Tradition is a chronic deceiver, and those who put faith it in are self-deceivers. This is not to say that tradition is invariably false. [But] sometimes a modicum of fact . . . increases in geometric ratio as the lineage claimed increases in grandeur."[4] In this case, the modicum of fact is simple: there was indeed a castle on a hill, amid whose "rooms" Helen quite likely did play with James. But its existence, combined with a wide variety of empirical evidence, will make the case that Helen Law was not the niece of a duke or a king. Nor was she the owner of a grand silk factory. Instead, she was the daughter of an Aberdeenshire meal merchant named Duncan Law and his wife Christian Johnston.

And, as is often the case with tradition, the real story is better than the lore.

Who was this Helen Law? How was she found? How is her parentage "proved" when no single record attaches her to them? As the evidence unfolds, so will the story and the methods. But first, the reader needs to better know her son James Edwards, the legends he and his offspring left, the ease with which he was found, and the brick wall to which he led. Then the reader needs to know his culture—Scottish trade, the regional dialect and orthography, and the lay of the land—all of which converge to create the real Helen Law.

THE LEGEND

James Edwards died on the farm he called "Aberdeen" in Adams County, Ohio, in 1803. That much is indisputable; he left a will that named his farm but no wife and only some of his children.[5] Family traditions claim variously that he wed a woman named Sarah Jacobs[6] or Sarah Songster Everett.[7] Some aver that James married her in New York about 1750,[8] although a wide variety of primary sources places him in Fairfax County, Virginia, from September 1740 until his 1786 removal to Kentucky and then Ohio.[9] The New York interlude would prove to be a fancy, born of the gullibility and greed of turn-of-the-twentieth-century descendants eager to attach their line to a highly promoted, entirely fraudulent "Edwards Estate."[10]

How James got to America is also dramatically vague. One line of descent reports that he and a brother were kidnapped together in 1740.[11] More specifics come from James's aged son George, who was interviewed in September 1863 by the famed frontier historian Lyman Copeland Draper. According to George, James had been "sold to Parson Keith."[12] That parson, almost certainly, was the Reverend James Keith who, on 19 September 1740, bought a plantation in the part of Prince William County, Virginia, that later became Fairfax County.[13]

All versions of the Edwards-Law tradition report that James returned to Scotland to see his mother either "25 years" after he first settled in Virginia or "just prior to the American Revolution." The most specific is that of John West Sr., the eldest son of James's eldest daughter. Responding to an inquiry from a first cousin once-removed, West wrote in July 1878: "My grandfather crossed the ocean five times. . . . [He] went back to Scotland, after his mother's death, expecting something from her estate, but received but little."[14] Lore doesn't mention, but records prove, that James paid £45 on 21 November 1774 for his first piece of land—thirty-four years after he arrived in Fairfax County.[15] This acquisition likely resulted from the "but little" he received from his mother's estate.

The various versions of the legend also agree that James had just one sibling: a brother Alexander, whom later generations dubbed "Robert Alexander" or just plain "Robert," to shoehorn him into the publicized details of the alleged "Edwards Estate." Tradition asserts that he was a seafarer (perhaps, even a privateer during the Seven Years' War), that he and James simultaneously visited their mother in Aberdeen about 1765, and that Alexander died amid that visit. A century later, family "traditions" and group sheets follow these two accounts of Glenn Woods in claiming that James Edwards married a woman named Sarah Songster Everett. It would take an entire article to explain the source of the erroneous name (Sarah Songster Everett) and to provide facts supporting the claim of John West, Sen., that his grandmother was named Sarah Jacobs and not "Sarah Songster Everett."

James's great-grandson, S. W. D.$^{4}$ Stone, penned the earliest written account of that brother and his death: "Before he, Robert had had time to tell fully where he had been and what he had been doing all this time of absence, and while telling same, the night of the same day of his arrival [in Aberdeen], where the two sons met with their mother, [Robert] took suddenly very sick and died before the morning . . . his brother James supporting him in his arms when he died."[16]

The home to which James and "Robert" returned, according to some versions, was that "castle on a hill," and the man to whom the mother was wedded at the time was either "Lord Law"[17] or a man named "Soaper."[18] Third- and fourth-generation descendants firmly believed that she owned considerable property. S. W. D.$^{4}$ Stone, for example, wrote, "She had large property in real estate—2 squares in Aberdeen it was said in the family,"[19] while Orange$^{3}$ Edwards wrote, "Her property, when grandfather was there, consisted of the entire square on which she lived."[20] Intriguingly, the tradition about the castle relates an incident that supposedly occurred during James's return. There in the castle "she playfully lost him in its many rooms."[21] Considering the unlikelihood that a middle-aged man would have been "playfully" lost by his mother in the rooms of any Scottish castle, it seems more logical that this fragmented memory dates back to James's childhood, not to that visit home.

These scattered accounts offer seven potentially traceable clues to the real Helen Law:

- She likely died about 1773–74.
- Her death apparently occurred in Aberdeen.
- Estate proceedings, deeds, or tax records should exist if she did enjoy the wealth attributed to her.

[but the brother] died in Scotland shortly after their meeting at their mother's." See letter from John West, Sen., to J. E. Stone, 10 July 1878, p. 6. West's account, written 10 days after S. W. D. Stone wrote his history, is believed to be independent because the two did not previously know each other. A letter to S. W. D. Stone, written by his brother J. E. Stone on 24 July 1878, reported that West's name had been given to him after he had inquired about possible descendants of James Edwards in Ohio; see loose, untranscribed letter in Edwards and West Family History File (1878), Bush-Beauchamp Family Papers.

- Her husband's name at the time of her death may have been Soaper or Lord Law (the latter being a likelihood only if Helen Law married a Law kinsman).
- A castle should exist in the vicinity of Aberdeen.
- At the time of James's childhood, his mother should have resided at or visited kinsmen at that "castle on a hill."
- If James was indeed kidnapped as a child, about 1740, then his birth might be roughly dated to 1725–35.

THE SEARCH

A Beguilingly Easy Find

Finding eighteenth-century births is a relatively straightforward task when dealing with Scottish records. Baptisms were common and many parish registers have survived. Moreover, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has indexed those records, collectively called the Old Parochial Registers (OPRs), by given name as well as by surname. A search of that source at the church's Salt Lake City–based Family History Library turned up only one James Edwards baptism in the targeted period with a parent of appropriate name: a child born at Milton of Corsindae, a farm town about fifteen miles west of Aberdeen, and baptized 6 May 1727 at the parish church in Midmar (see figure 1). His parents: William Edward and Helen Law.[22]

The evidence would soon complicate itself. Between 1725 and 1734 three other children were born and baptized at the same place to a William Edward and wife Helen, including an Alexander.[23] In 1737, this same couple, apparently, surfaced at Caiesmill in the parish of Dyce—about ten miles away and just five or so miles from Aberdeen itself—where a final child Barzillai was baptized that July.[24] However, of the five baptisms, only the one for James identified his mother as Helen Law. In the other four records, the mother's surname was recorded as Lai, Laie, and Lawie. According to the Family History Library's International Genealogical Index™ [IGI], Law is not considered a variant of any of the other spellings; and the names do not cluster together when using the FHL's computerized database, FamilySearch™.

And so, the "easy-to-use" parish registers strew the first stones in the path to discovering Helen's identity. Were all these variants the same name, notwithstanding the guidance of the IGI and Family Search? If not the same, were there more than one William Edward with wife Helen? If the aberrant spelling, Law, was incorrect and the children were indeed siblings—as their birth spacing suggests—perhaps Helen was not Helen Law at all. Answering these questions demanded a side trip through the dialects and orthography of the region.

Dialects and Orthography

The Scots dialect spoken in eighteenth-century Aberdeenshire was Doric, in which Law sounds the same as la of the musical scale do . . . la, ti, do. Seventeenth-century records show the name frequently spelled as Laa, La, or Lall; in the latter case, the double-l is silent.[25] Moreover, in rural northeast Scotland, there is a very great tendency to add the diminutives ie or y to the ends of nouns, such as mannie, wifie, and housie.[26] This is also true for surnames. Lamb might appear as Lambie or Lamby, and Snow as Snowie or Snawie.[27] (While evidence is insufficient to draw a strong conclusion, it appears that at Midmar women and men in a subordinate status more frequently had their names spelled in the diminutive.[28]) Thus, Law might be rendered Lawie; and, because the w was silent, it could easily be omitted. The resulting spelling might be Lay, Laie or Lai—all representing the same pronunciation.[29] According to one authority, each of these variant spellings would have been pronounced Laē, the elision sounding almost like Lī (lie).[30]

[25] For basic information about the dialect, see Douglas Hynoch, Teach Yourself Doric: A Course for Beginners (Aberdeen: Scottish Cultural Press, 1994). For more advanced information, see William Grant and James Main Dixon, Manual of Modern Scots (Cambridge: University Press, 1921).

The Dead End

No matter how many variants one has to work with, every search of parish records for a surname eventually brings the family line to a dead end. Helen herself was that dead end. No child of her name—not a Helen, an Ellen, an Eleanor, or any other version of her given name paired with variants of her surname—could be found in the Old Parochial Records of Scotland roughly a generation before the 1727 baptism of James Edward.

Up to this point, research had supported one aspect of the family tradition: a Helen Law had borne sons James and Alexander Edward, who would have been children at the age that James Edwards and his brother Alexander were supposedly kidnapped. But what of that kidnapping itself? Might there be a trace?

Kidnapping and Servitude

John Van Der Zee, author of Bound Over: Indentured Servitude and American Conscience, includes a chapter on an Aberdeen lad named Peter Williamson, kidnapped in 1743, whose memoirs were later published.[31] On the premise that valuable context might be gleaned from Williamson's experience, a copy of his account was examined. The rewards included an extract of a deposition by a witness named Helen Law! A subsequent inquiry to the National Archives of Scotland about the Williamson kidnapping case turned up a truly voluminous file. Between 1760 and 1765 the Court of Sessions, the highest civil court of Scotland, heard suits lodged by "Poor Peter Williamson" against Alexander Cushnie, William Fordyce, and others responsible for abducting him in 1743 and "selling him as a slave" to Pennsylvania. Witnesses included one George Johnston who testified that he sailed to America in 1740 on the Indian Queen and that "Helen Law's son" was on the same ship with him.[32]

Helen herself was deposed twice—first on 3 October 1760, when (over her mark HL) she swore that she was "near to 60," and second on 10 November 1762, when she gave her age as "60 or thereby."[33] Contrary to the Edwards tradition, however, Helen did not report the kidnapping of two sons. Rather, she states that her eldest son, unnamed, had been "enticed" into signing indentures to work as a plantation servant in Virginia until he was twenty-one, and that he was "resolute to go." And she added that one son more, also unnamed, still lived with her in 1743. Neither deposition states her place of residence, but a related document created by the Edinburgh solicitor Walter Scott (father of Sir Walter) reports Helen Law's residence as "Castle Hill of Aberdeen."[34]

[29] The author thanks Violet Murray, former secretary of the Aberdeen and Northeast Scotland Family History Society, for explaining how Law is pronounced and suggesting that the various spellings the author had found for Law were likely variants of Lawie. ### Helen Law of Castle Hill

Aberdeenshire boasts a number of castles; but, curiously, none has stood at the site called Castle Hill since the thirteenth century.[35] Nonetheless, Helen is traceable at Aberdeen through the novelty of her name, the frequency of her marriages, the urgency of her debts, and the business activities that caused her to be deposed in the two Williamson lawsuits. None of these records, however, name her parents, her place of birth, or any siblings.

Through those 1725–37 baptismal records of Helen's children, she could be tracked through the mills in Midmar and Dyce parishes. But in 1739, amid the coldest winter in the century and an extraordinary famine, the miller William Edward lost his lease at Caiesmill in Dyce and moved his family to Aberdeen.[36] Likely, William's subsequent death was the catalyst for the self-indenture of their eldest son. On 5 September 1743, Helen wed at Aberdeen the "horse hyrer" John Fraser—a man who kept a stable and rented out horses.[37] On 10 November 1749, as his "relict," she married again at Aberdeen one John Gibb, a journeyman weaver.[38] Presumably, he, too, passed on before she wed her fourth husband at Aberdeen on 30 August 1756, the wool comber William Soper[39]—this being the husband James reported for her after his visit home about 1765. Soper was not her last husband, however; on 7 November 1768, she wed yet again, this time to a tailor named William Wilson.[40]

The "silk factory" of lore appears to have been a spinning shop, through which Helen did business with a variety of men in clothmaking trades. She frequently fell into debt and seems to have married as a solution to her financial difficulties. John Gibb she wed within three weeks of having lost the tack (lease) of an income-producing residence[41]—suggesting that she needed not only a roof over her head but also some financial help. William Soper she wed two weeks before being sued by a lint dresser for an unpaid debt of £4 9d sterling.[42] William Wilson she wed six weeks before the due date of a £3 5s debt to one James Elmslie.[43] All of these debts are signed with her distinctive HL.

Few occupations were open to women in Helen's society, but spinning was one of them; and for several years after Edward's death she seems to have had a steady supply of women and girls to spin and knit. It was the infamous "kidnapping era" of Aberdeen history; and some of the city's leading merchants, who "indentured" farm laborers for Virginia and Maryland, paid her to room the women and board the men and boys while they awaited shipment. This involvement likely led to her marriage to Fraser. Horse hirers, being equipped with whips, were employed by the merchants to prevent the escape of men and boys who had changed their minds about going to the colonies.[44]

Embezzlement of raw goods was common among tradesmen in the manufacturing chain,[45] a practice that likely augmented Helen's income after the close of the kidnapping spree in 1745. While supporting herself and surviving children through the spinning shop—supplying weavers with spun thread—she may also have fenced wool for the various tradesmen with whom she developed business, then marital, relationships. Certainly she appears to have had such an arrangement with Soper. Under the assumption that it would have been difficult for a clothier to estimate precisely how much combed wool he should receive back from a consignment of raw wool left with a wool comber, Soper seems to have handed some to Helen, who spun it and then perhaps knit it into stockings. This seems the best explanation for the fact that on 3 July 1758—as Helen Law, spouse to William "Souper," wool comber in Aberdeen—she bound herself to appear before the magistrates to answer a complaint brought against her by the Dean of Guild for buying and receiving stolen goods.[46]

See also Helen Hinchliff, "The Aberdeen, Scotland–Chesapeake Connection: Trading Children for Tobacco" (lecture, annual conference, National Genealogical Society, Baltimore, June 1993); audiocassette recording available as Baltimore W-27 (Hobart, Indiana: Repeat Performance, 1993).

This law was designed to prevent the "many frauds [that] are daily committed . . . by imbezilling and purloining of the materials with which they are intrusted." When this law proved ineffective, another was enacted in 1749: "An Act for the more effectual preventing of Frauds and Abuses committed by Persons employed in the Manufacture of Hats, and in the Woollen, Linnen, Fustian, Cotton, Iron, Leather, Furr, Hemp, Flax, Mohair and Silk Manufactures"; 22 Geo. 2, c. 27, 148–52.

Clearly not the niece of a duke or a king, Helen Law was nonetheless an extraordinary woman. Confronted with the loss of her husband and her status as a miller's wife, then losing her eldest son—a widow's main hope for survival in her era—to servitude on a Virginia plantation, she supported herself and at least one remaining son by her own wit and skill. True, she wed four times more; but each of those marriages seems largely a business arrangement. Certainly, there was no lord among those tradesmen who took her to wife. As for her ownership of whole city blocks, the evidence disproves the claim. The extant records of Aberdeen include window-tax rolls, assessing property owners by the number of panes they could afford. Helen Law appears on none of those lists.[47]

THE KINSMEN

Amid her travails, did she leave any clue to a birth family? Possibly one, in the last of her recorded debts. On 30 January 1768, when she was about sixty-six or sixty-seven years of age, Helen contracted a debt to James Elmslie of Culmellie, a farm town about twenty-seven miles west of Aberdeen. She agreed to repay the debt by the end of the year, but could not. Rather than take the trouble to sue her, Elmslie sold her note to one George Law, a wright from "Old Mains in Monymusk," a farm town about six miles north of James Edward's birthplace, Milton of Corsindae. The following June, when the note was still unpaid, Law sued Helen for damage, interest, and expenses.[48]

George Law

George Law of the parish of Monymusk, a man much more easily traceable than Helen, was only thirty-five years old at the time.[49] In his society, for a country tradesman of his age to have secured the debt of a sixty-seven-year-old woman of the burgh of Aberdeen, were she not closely related to him, would have been an extraordinary thing. The nature of the kinship is suggested by the name of his father, Barzillai—the name Helen gave to the last son she bore William Edward in 1737.

Barzillai Law

Barzillai, Hebrew for "man of iron" (that is, a blacksmith), was not a common name. However, to build a case about family relationships based even in part on the use of a rare given name requires at minimum a demonstration of the degree of its uncommonness. A search of given name indexes for both baptisms and marriages in Scotland's Old Parochial Registers yielded only fifteen recorded persons of that given name between 1707 and 1824. All but two were born in Aberdeenshire. (See Table 1.) Of the thirteen in that "right" locale, eight are provable descendants of this Barzillai's parents: Duncan Law and Christian Johnston; and a reconstruction of their family attests that this given name in Scotland was almost unique to their descendants.[50]

More to the point: the first person on record to name a son Barzillai (1707) was Duncan Law (Lay) of the parish of Kincardine O'Neil, in the shire of Aberdeen; this Barzillai was the father of George. The second to do so—a generation later—was Helen, whose own birth preceded the onset of Kincardine registers. Still, the use of this name is not sufficient cause, alone, to conclude that Helen was the daughter of Duncan and sister of Barzillai. Additional support comes, in part, from similarity in which the family surname was spelled and, in part, from the occupations followed by Duncan Law and William Edward.

Orthographic Ties

To point out the obvious: several of the individuals who named a son Barzillai had their surnames recorded under the same variants found for Helen, wife of William Edward—Lai, Laie, and Lawie—as well as the phonetic equivalent Lais. As with Helen in Aberdeen, the most frequent spelling was Law. The importance of these variants in identifying Duncan Law's descendants is that they did not occur uniformly across Aberdeenshire. Instead, they were earliest recorded in Kincardine O'Neil (where Duncan grew up and married) and the adjacent parish of Banchory Ternan. Law was not recorded at all during the period in which Duncan lived in those two parishes.[51] In contrast, Law was common in Midmar and other parishes to the north of it into which Duncan and his descendants later migrated. In almost every case, the variants were first used to record the names of Duncan Law and his known descendants. Much like Barzillai, these spellings were so frequently associated with the descendants of Duncan that they became useful predictors of probable descendants into the fourth generation.

[50] A genealogical account for all these individuals is too long for the present paper. For details, see Hinchliff, "The Scottish Ancestry of James Edwards of Aberdeen, Ohio," 33–55.

Note: For connections between all these individuals, see Hinchliff, "Scottish Ancestry of James Edwards of Aberdeen, Ohio," 33–55, particularly 52.

The variants used in the baptisms of Helen's children, Lai, Laie, and Lawie, appear for her only in the country parishes. In Aberdeen, it was always Law. The same pattern is noted for many of Duncan's descendants. In the countryside, the variants arose from the way the clerks chose to spell the name; in the city, the formal version was the only one recorded.[52] In Midmar, the surname of Helen's apparent brother Barzillai was always spelled Law and never appeared in variant form; however, the names of his adult children in that same parish—as well as his adult brother Robert and Robert's offspring—do take the variants.

The most plausible explanation for the distinctive treatment of Barzillai in Midmar seems to be that he, as eldest son, became the family patriarch after Duncan's death. For him, the formal Law was appropriate, while the diminutive Lawie (etc.) was more fitting for his female and younger relatives. In this connection, one notes that in the second half of the eighteenth century and in the nineteenth century, the Lawie diminutives were used more frequently for women than for men. Given that surnames are typically inherited from fathers, it is not surprising that the diminutive variants mostly died out. Not one Lai or Laie appears in the 1881 Aberdeenshire census. Only three households were headed by someone surnamed Lays and just twenty-one individuals were surnamed Lawie, compared to 459 households headed by those named Law.[53]

Occupational Ties

When Barzillai was baptized in 1707 to Duncan "Lay" and his wife Christian Johnston, the family lived at Craigour,[54] an Aberdeenshire farm town attached to the estate of Craigmill. (Almost certainly, this Duncan was the son of an earlier Duncan Lay, who had children baptized in 1675 and 1685 about four miles to the east at the farm town of Cluny in the adjoining parish of Banchory Ternan.[55]) The younger Duncan also appears at Craigour as early as the 1695 poll lists, at which time he was one of two merchants in a farm town of only twelve families.[56]

[52] A convenient example is Barzil Law, Duncan's fourth-generation descendant. The surnames of his sisters Elizabeth and Catherine, living in the rural parish of Oyne in the nineteenth century, were invariably spelled Lawie or Lai. However, the surname of Barzil, who had migrated into Aberdeen, was always spelled Law. Hinchliff, "The Scottish Ancestry of James Edwards," 44–46.

[55] Duncane Lay, Cluny, was recorded as the father of Isobel Lay on 24 January 1675 and Duncan Lay, Cluny, was recorded as the father of Elspet Lay on 26 July 1685; Banchory Ternan Old Parish Registers, CH1 252/1, FHL microfilm 0993397, frames 74 and 387. This older Duncan of Cluny appears to have come there from Aberdeen, where, on 28 August 1654, one Duncan Law was apprenticed to Andrew Black, saddler, for six years and one day. His apprenticeship would have ended in 1660, but no other record of him in Aberdeen has been found. See apprenticeship of Duncan Law, lawful brother of Robert Law, merchant in Old Aberdeen, Aberdeen Apprenticeship Registers, 1: 55, Aberdeen City Archives. Thus far, it has not been possible to identify the father of Robert and the first Duncan.

(Aberdeen: William Bennett, 1844), 2: 89. Both compilations are essential, Maxwell for discovering the location of individuals by surname and Stuart for learning about all of the people living in a particular farm town. The poll was taken in September 1695 and published in 1696.

Through the baptisms of his children, the merchant Duncan and his wife Christian can be followed from the mill at Craigour to the mill of Mains in Echt, and from there to the mill of Comers in Midmar—a pattern suggesting that he was a meal merchant, whose role was to sell the excess produce of local farmers and landlords at the Aberdeen meal market. At Comers, where he lived when his last known child was baptized in February 1722, he surely did business with the local miller, William Edward.[57] Thus, through this business relationship Edward would have met Duncan's daughter Helen and married her about 1723 or 1724.

But what of the castle?

THE CASTLE

In that farm town of Cluny in Banchory Ternon, four miles from where Helen Law was surely born to Duncan about 1700, the same farm town where the name Duncan Lay first appears in 1675, there stands on a hill the remains of a fortified dwelling that is locally called a "castle."[58] Its history dates to 1665, when George Crichton, a younger son of a baronial family, married the only daughter of Robert Douglas of Castle Tilquhillie and proceeded to enlarge his own holdings. Among his newly acquired estate was some of Douglas's land undoubtedly brought to the marriage as dowry. Crichton then commenced construction of a fortified dwelling, high on a hill, overlooking the valley through which passes the road from Aberdeen to Kincardine O'Neil.[59] Above its entrance a carved panel reads:[60]

16 CLOUNIE CRICHTOUN 66

Fortunately, Giles included this site in his compilation even though it technically lies in adjacent Kincardineshire. The author is indebted to Isabella Deans, librarian at the Aberdeen City Library, for being the first to mention (in October 1993) that there was an old castle on a hill at the former farm town of Cluny (now Cluny Crichton), Banchory Ternan.

[59] No primary source for the date of the marriage has been found; however, it appears in a number of secondary sources including John Watson Guild of Banchory, The Bazaar Book (Aberdeen: Albany Press, 1897), unpaginated, topical arrangement; see "Tilquhillie Castle." For the land acquisitions, see Disposition by Francis Duguid of Auchenhuiff to George Crichtoune, son of George Crichtoune of Arbeckie, of the lands of Cluny, Kennertie, and Brownhill, Writs of the Ramoir Estate, Gifts and Donations [GD] 1/30/17; and Charter of Alienation and Disposition of the lands of Mallamuick and others in the Sheriffdom of Kincardineshire by Robert Douglas of Tilquhilly to George Crichton of Cluny, Register of Sasines [RS] 3/13; both in National Archives of Scotland.

[60] J. Fenton Wyness, "The Castle of Clounie Crichton, Kincardineshire," Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries, Scotland 73 (1938–39): 58–61. The present writer is indebted to Ian B. D. Bryce, architectural historian, for calling this article to her attention. Bryce notes that Wyness modernized "Crichtoune" to "Crichton." See Ian Bryce, "A Short Note on Cluny Crichton Castle," extracted for Hinchliff from his then-forthcoming book, A Chronology of the Castles of Scotland from 1100 to 1685 (Edinburgh: Scottish Cultural Pres 1998). The inscription on the panel is weathering away, but was still visible at the time of Hinchliff's visit, 1 October 1993.

Crichton probably felt the need of a fortified dwelling because of his father-in-law's experiences. Six years before the castle was erected, Charles II was restored to the monarchy; and he took immediate steps to replace the Church of Scotland (Presbyterian) with the Episcopal Church (similar to the Church of England). The country was then divided between Royalists, who supported the King, and Covenanters, Presbyterians who supported the Church of Scotland. Douglas was a Royalist commander and a defender of the Episcopal Church. For the next thirty years the country was in a state of turmoil, and the Covenanters besieged Tilquhillie Castle. Thus, perhaps, Douglas advised his son-in-law to build a fortified house, capable of withstanding possible attack from those Covenanters.[61]

Local tradition holds that "the castle was never in fact completed, probably owing to lack of funds,"[62] and ample evidence supports the claim. For George Crichton of Cluny, money was a problem almost from the start. By August 1666, he had lost part of the income he anticipated from marrying Douglas's daughter; then he commenced a pattern of ruinous borrowing.[63] In December 1698, he sold his entire holdings to James Hogg of Ramoir, and faded from the record.[64]

The unfinished castle appears to have been abandoned and left to disintegrate. Calling it a "very late example of [the] fortified house," a 1972 guide to the region reported it "now ruinous but with the main features surviving [including] two empty panel-spaces about the doorway and two gunloops guarding it."[65] Overall, it seems to have stood about forty feet square and three stories high, with three rooms of approximately equal size on each floor. It "would have been surrounded by a wall enclosing a courtyard containing the subsidiary buildings necessary to such an establishment," according to a 1938 account, "but any traces of these have long disappeared, and the castle now stands out boldly from the surrounding land."[66]

In fact, the ruins can be backdated considerably further. A sketch made in 1842 shows the "castle" was even then utterly derelict.[67] All things told, it seems quite likely that local children would have played within those ruins—and that their games amid its crumbling walls could easily date to a century earlier, when Helen Law is said to have "playfully lost" her son James among its many rooms.

SUMMATION

For over 200 years, Helen Law's American descendants remembered bits and pieces about her and that "castle on a hill." These fragmented and garbled memories, obviously embellished over time, still provide profound evidence of ancestry. The castle on a hill amid which she "playfully lost" her son James Edwards was surely the ruined Cluny Crichton Castle in Banchory Ternan, where her grandfather Duncan settled after serving off his own indentureship.

This conclusion is based not upon any single document, but upon a set of empirical evidence:

- The first Duncan Law (Lay) of this line, apparently a saddler, lived near Cluny Castle at least as early as 1675.
- The second Duncan Law (Lay), his apparent son, was a merchant just four miles away at Craigour.
- Duncan Law of Craigour was the first person on record in the surviving Scottish parish registers to have given a son the exceptionally unusual name Barzillai. Helen Law, his proposed daughter, was the second person to do so.
- The variants used for Duncan's surname—Lay, Laie, Laiy, Lawie, and Ley—appear to have originated in the parishes in which he lived and thereafter were recorded almost exclusively among his known descendants. These variants were also used to record the name of Helen Law.
- Duncan Law's occupation—apparently, meal merchant—can explain how Helen met her first husband, William Edward, a meal miller.
- Barzillai Law engaged in reciprocal naming with Helen Law and Robert Law, both of whom are proposed, but not previously established, to have been the children of Duncan Law. (Specifics are outlined in the genealogical summary that follows).
- Barzillai, Helen, and Robert Law lived on adjoining farms in the Aberdeenshire parish of Midmar, about one mile north of the mill at Comers, where Duncan Law was last known to have lived.
- Barzillai's eldest son George, a wright from the countryside, bought up the debt of the 67-year-old Helen Law of the city of Aberdeen. It would have been extremely unlikely for him to have carried her note were she not a close relative.

Upon this foundation rests the following reconstruction of the family.[68]

Generation B

1. Duncan$^{B}$ Law (Duncan$^{C}$) was probably born between 1666 and 1669 almost certainly at the farm town of Cluny in Banchory Ternan, Kincardineshire, as the son of Duncan$^{C}$ Law, a saddler, and an unknown mother.[69] He died probably after 1722, at Comers in the parish of Midmar, when and where his last child of record was born.[70] He married, in Kincardine O'Neil and probably about 1700, Christian Johnston, apparently the daughter of George Johnston, gardener at Craigmile House, which stood just a mile or so from Duncan's residence at Craigour.[71] Christian died after 1722, when her last child was born. The complete family of Duncan Law and Christian Johnston may never be known. The baptisms of three of their children were recorded in the parish registers of Kincardine O'Neil, but the register begins six years after their probable marriage year. Further, the extant register in Midmar, where their last child was recorded, begins four years after they probably moved to that parish.

Known and proposed children of Duncan$^{B}$ Law and Christian Johnston are

+ 2 i. HELEN$^{A}$ LAW, almost certainly born at Craigour in 1701 or 1702 and baptized in Kincardine O'Neil, whose registers do not begin until 1706; died probably in 1773–74.[72] She married (1) WILLIAM EDWARD, probably at Midmar about 1723 or 1724;[73] (2) JOHN FRASER, at Aberdeen on 5 September 1743;[74] (3) JOHN GIBB, at Aberdeen on 27 November 1749;[75] (4) WILLIAM SOPER, at Aberdeen on 30 August 1756;[76] and (5) WILLIAM WILSON, at Aberdeen on 7 November 1768.[77]

3 ii. BARZILLAI$^{A}$ LAY, born at Craigour and baptized in Kincardine O'Neil on 29 January 1707;[78] his death date is unknown, but was probably between

[72] No death record for Helen Law has been found. Her death period is estimated from (1) the various versions of the family tradition stating that James went back to Scotland just before the American Revolution; (2) John West, Sen.'s statement that James "went back to Scotland, after his mother's death, expecting something from her estate, but received but little," in Edwards and West Family History File (1878), Bush-Beauchamp Family Papers; and (3) the fact that James purchased his first property in 1774, for which see Fairfax County Deeds, M-1: 25–26.

[73] No marriage record survives, but Helen's proposed parents were living in Midmar by at least 1722 and her first child of record was born there in 1725.

1783 and 1793.[79] He married at Midmar (where Helen's children were baptized, 1725–34) on 20 May 1733, KATHERINE MIDDLETON, from Kinnernie.[80] Their children's baptismal records place the family first at Corskie and then at Scottiestone, farm towns in Midmar parish. Barzillai was a wright in Midmar and also at the Monymusk Estate in the nearby parish of Monymusk;[81] most of his male descendants were wrights and later sawyers. His surname always appears as Law. Barzillai and Katherine had eight children baptized in Midmar: George, John, Helen, Elizabeth, Barzillai, Charles, Elspet, and Robert.[82]

4 iii. JEAN$^{A}$ LAY, born at Craigour and baptized in Kincardine O'Neil on 6 February 1709;[83] death date unknown. Almost certainly, she was the Jean Lai who married at Echt on 6 August 1730, JOHN SANG from Kincardine O'Neil.[84] (Their marriage was also recorded in the groom's parish, where her name was written as Laie.[85]) Sang was probably born at Craigour before the 1706 onset of parish registers and almost certainly was the son of Peter Sang and Margaret Davidson.[86] Apparently, he died before October 1744, when Jean Lai and Gilbert Nairn of Nigg in adjacent Kincardineshire published banns at Echt, then subsequently married on 29 November 1744 at Banchory Devenick, Kincardineshire.[87] By 1748, the Nairns were at Old Machar, the parish immediately north of Aberdeen. Jean's name always appeared in Lawie variants—i.e., Laie in 1731 (baptism of Peter Sang);[88] Lae in 1736 (baptism of Jean Sang);[89] Laie in 1748 (baptism of William Nairn).[90] These were the first instances of Lai and Laie in Banchory Devenick and Old Machar, where the name was otherwise recorded as Law. Jean appears not to have named a son Barzillai.

5 iv. ELIZABETH$^{A}$ LAY, born at Craigour, baptized in Kincardine O'Neil, 25 April 1711.[91] No further information.

[79] In 1783 Barzillai's youngest son was recorded as Robert Lawie; however, in 1793 he was recorded as Robert Law, suggesting that he was no longer in subordinate status.

6 v. ALEXANDER$^{A}$ LAW, born at Mains of Echt, baptized in Echt, 30 March 1713.[92] No further information.[93]

7 vi. KATHERIN$^{A}$ LAIE, born at Mains of Echt, baptized 5 December 1714.[94] No further information.

8 vii. [?] ELSPET$^{A}$ LAI, possibly born at Comers of Midmar about 1716–17;[95] died at Midmar apparently between September and November 1797, when she was dropped from the Midmar poor list.[96] She married ROBERT DONALD at Midmar about 1741;[97] his ancestry has not been identified. Donald, one of the elders of the Midmar kirksession, died before Elspeth was added to the Midmar poor list on 21 May 1796, at 7 shillings quarterly.[98] Elspet is proposed as a possible daughter of Duncan and Christian for the following reasons: (a) she and her husband lived at Slydie and Blackstock, farms adjacent to Scottiestone, the farm of her proposed brother, Barzillai$^{A}$ Law; (b) her first child was born at a plausible time to place Elspet's birth during the gap known for Duncan$^{B}$ and Christian; (c) the name Elspet appears in no other Law family of record in Midmar; (d) her proposed father had a sister Elspet, and her proposed brother Barzillai$^{A}$ gave the name to one daughter; and (e) her surname was always spelled Lai or Lawy. Known children: Jean (baptized 1742) and Mary (baptized 1745).[99]

9 viii. ROBERT$^{A}$ LAIE, probably born at Comers of Midmar, about 1718–19. His death date is unknown but almost certainly occurred before 1785, when his wife (but not he) witnessed the baptism of their grandson David Malcolm in Kemnay.[100] He married, at Midmar in 8 May 1748, JEAN KNOWLS,[101] who had been baptized at Echt, 20 October 1720, as the daughter of John Knowls and Barbara Malcolm.[102] Jean's death date is unknown; however, she was living in 1785 on the farm "Scrapehard," parish of Kemnay, [93] There was only one recorded marriage in Midmar of an Alexander Law (8 January 1737 to Helen Christie), but he was identified as the son of "Alexander Law sometime in Tillyfro, now in Ordefork"; see Midmar, Old Parish Registers, CH1 222/2, FHL microfilm 0993344, frame 243. Such identification was rare.

[95] No records survive of Duncan Law in Echt after 1714. Because he and Christian Johnston had a child born at Comers, Midmar Parish, in 1722, it seems likely that additional children were born to them between 1715 and 1719, when the extant Midmar registers begin.

[96] She received her last payment on 28 August 1797. Her name did not appear on the list for 9 December 1797. See Midmar, Kirksession Minutes, CH 2/268/1, National Archives of Scotland.

The Malcolms appear to have been a well-established, relatively affluent family in the southeastern part of Midmar parish, where Robert and Jean moved after the birth of their first child at Slydie. Robert's daughter Barbara married into the Malcolm family. The Echt parish church was closer to their farm than was the one in Midmar.

tenanted by her son-in-law and probable kinsman, Alexander Malcolm, when she witnessed the baptism of the grandson David. Robert Law was a weaver (possibly a master weaver)[103]—an occupation supporting his proposed sibling relationship to Helen. His given name recalls that of his father's uncle, the merchant Robert Law of Aberdeen discussed in note 55, if this proposed reconstruction of the family is accurate. Robert's surname and those of his descendants usually appeared in the Lawie variants. By Jean, Robert had six children baptized in Midmar: Barzillai, Barbara, Katherine, Elizabeth, George, and Jean.[104]

10 ix. [UNNAMED MALE]$^{A}$ LAWIE, born at Comers, baptized 1 February 1722.[105]

Generation A

2. Helen$^{A}$ Law (Duncan$^{B}$, Duncan$^{C}$), born about 1701 or 1702,[106] almost certainly at the farm town of Craigour in Kincardine O'Neil, Aberdeenshire, where Duncan Law (Lay) lived from at least 1695 to 1711. She died at Aberdeen, probably about 1773 or 1774.[107] Helen married at least five times: (1) probably at Midmar in 1723 or 1724, William Edward, miller, likely born at Kinnernie about 1700 as the son of James Edward;[108] (2) at Aberdeen on 5 September 1743, John Fraser, horse hirer[109] (probably the individual baptized at Aberdeen on 23 March 1706, as eldest son of "John Fraser, hyrer," and Margaret Bisset[110]) and died before 10 November 1749;[111] (3) at Aberdeen on 27 November 1749, John Gibb, a journeyman weaver;[112] (4) at Aberdeen on 30 August 1756, William Soper, wool comber;[113] and (5) at Aberdeen on 7 November 1768, William Wilson, tailor.[114]

Known children of Helen$^{A}$ Law and William Edward, were

11 i. MARY$^{a}$ EDWARD, born at Milton of Corsindae, baptized at Midmar, 9 October 1725.[115] Probably died young.[116]

[103] Midmar, Old Parish Registers, CH1 222/1, FHL microfilm 0993344, frames 74 and 78. It was highly unusual in Midmar at that time to name a man's occupation. The occupations of only seven fathers had been mentioned up to that point and most held high position: e.g., minister, schoolmaster, supervisor, excise collector, and kirk officer. That Robert Law, weaver, should be among this group suggests that he may have been a master weaver who employed others.

12 ii. JAMES$^{a-1}$ EDWARD, born at Milton of Corsindae, baptized at Midmar, 6 May 1727.[117] He died at Aberdeen, Brown County, Ohio, between 9 February and 8 March 1803.[118] He married in Truro Parish, Fairfax County, Virginia, about 1753,[119] SARAH JACOBS (apparent daughter of Joseph Jacobs).[120] Sarah died at Aberdeen, Ohio, between 19 February 1800 (when she signed a deed for the sale of land) and 9 February 1803 (when James Edwards wrote a will that did not mention a wife).[121] They had ten children.[122] Family tradition claims he was a blacksmith; however, the account books of John Glassford and Co. record that he was a tobacco farmer.[123]

13 iii. ALEXANDER$^{a}$ EDWARD, born at Milton of Corsindae, baptized at Midmar on 25 November 1731.[124] He was still living in 1743,[125] but no records have been found in Aberdeen that identify him as an adult. Tradition mortcloths (the pall used to cover the coffin) rented for burials. Poor families would have been unable to rent a mortcloth; however, the figures for those who could afford one show a sharp increase in children's deaths during the winter of 1739–40. In 1738–39, mortcloths were rented for 20 children; in 1739–40, for 72 children; in 1740–41, for 32 children; see Treasury Accounts of Aberdeen, 1725–1750, Aberdeen City Archives.

[119] Neither the Truro parish register nor any family Bible survives from this generation, so a date must be estimated. Woods claimed the couple married in 1750; however, their eldest child, Ellen or Eleanor Edwards, was born in 1754 or 1755. Her approximate birth year is derived from a fairly contemporary family Bible entry to the effect that "Eleanor West departed this life February 1, 1841 in the 85th year of her age"; see "Family data," John West Jr. Family Bible, The Holy Bible (Boston: Benjamin B. Mussey, 1845). Current whereabouts of the Bible is unknown. In 1989, the Brown County Genealogical Society provided the present writer with a photocopy of the title page and entries, accompanied by the following undated note: "Bible owned by Mary Helen [West] Beasley, given to her by her grandfather, John West, Jr. The bible is now in the possession of Mary Helen [Kelch] Bick." A further note suggests that it was later owned by a "Stewart." A marriage year of 1753 seems more likely than 1750 if the eldest child was born in 1754–55. James would have been 26 years old in 1753.

[120] No document has been found directly linking Sarah with Joseph Jacobs; however, he was the only Jacobs living in Fairfax County in a generation old enough to have been her father. He purchased his plantation there on 25 November 1742; see Fairfax County Deeds, F: 9. Joseph Jacobs was linked by land to James Edwards on 25 December 1747, when he leased the neighboring property from Samuel Tillett; see Fairfax County Deeds B: 443. The Tillett plantation bordered the western boundary of a plantation owned by Peter and John Riley Jr. which, on 17 October 1783, they sold to William$^{2}$ Edwards, James's eldest son; see Fairfax County Deeds, O-1: 124. Earlier, on 21 November 1774, James Edwards had purchased from William Ellzey the plantation bordering on the eastern boundary of the Riley property; see Fairfax County Deeds, M-1: 25–26. By 1783, of three adjoining plantations, two were owned by James Edwards and his son William and one was leased by Joseph Jacobs Sr.; see Mitchell, Interpretive and Historical Map of Fairfax County, and Beth Mitchell, Beginning at a White Oak: Patents and Northern Neck Grants of Fairfax County, Virginia (Fairfax County: Office of Comprehensive Planning, 1977), 100, 198, 236, 265. The earliest primary source in Fairfax County directly naming James Edwards was a court order on 17 November 1757 to pay him and Thomas Jacobs (presumably a son of Joseph Jacobs) 20 lbs. of tobacco for patrolling; see Fairfax County Court Records, Minute Book, 1756–63: 175, FHL microfilm 0031322.

[125] Deposition of Helen Law, Williamson v. Cushnie et al. Helen refers to the son who was living with her (as opposed to the one who went to Virginia), but did not name him. Almost certainly, this was Alexander and the rest of the children had died.

asserts that he followed a seafaring life and perhaps was a privateer during the Seven Years War. He is supposed to have died when he and James visited their mother in Aberdeen in 1765. Tradition also claims that he died unwed and had no children.[126] No marriage of an Alexander Edward in Aberdeen can be associated with this man. Descendants in the past one hundred or so years have also woefully confused Alexander with a fictitious "Robert Edwards," who supposedly owned a great estate in New York City.[127-154]

14 iv. WILLIAM$^{a}$ EDWARD, born at Milton of Corsindae, baptized at Midmar on 17 November 1734.[128] Probably died young.

15 v. BARZILLAI$^{a}$ EDWARD, born at Caiesmill and baptized in nearby Dyce, 10 July 1737.[129] Probably died young.

Child of Helen Law and John Fraser:

16 i. BARBARA$^{a}$ FRASER, baptized 12 August 1744, Aberdeen.[130] No further information, probably died young.

CONCLUSION

Tradition is valuable to almost every family search, and finding aids of the ilk of the OPR index, the IGI, and FamilySearch are a godsend. However, too close an adherence to the path of tradition usually leads the researcher astray; and "looking up the name," as a research strategy, quickly leads to dead ends on most family lines. Although we may pluck a promising flower or two in those convenient fields, there is often a brick wall behind the flower bed. Descendants of Helen Law had a grand tradition, but its grandeur was deceiving. While visions of a Scottish castle on a hill had grown more elaborate with each succeeding generation, the walls of that castle eventually crumbled under the weight of empirical evidence her descendants had missed.

Letter to her mother July 24 1878

John West Sr

(COPY)

Madison Station,
Madison County, Miss.
May 14, 1878.

Sarah S. McKay, the wruter's mother, was the daughter of William Edwards, of Bloomfield, Nelson County, Ky. Said Wm. Edwards was the brother of George Edwards, of Limestone, Ohio. Both Wm. and George were the sons of James Edwards, who lived at one time in Virginia.

The said James Edwards was the only brother of Robert Edwards. The further traditional history of James and Robert Edwards represents them as coming from Aberdeen, Scotland, where they left a widowed mother. James was married and raised a large family and was engaged in agricultural pursuits. Robert was a captain or engaged in the Merchant Marine of England that at that time traded between the posts of England and Scotland and Boston, New York and Phildelphia.

The two brothers not having met after leaving Aberdeen, determined and by agreement met each other at their boyhood home in Scotland. Both went to Aberdeen and while there Robert Died, leaving no family, not having been married. How much of this traditional history is correct the writer cannot, of course, say, but that my mother was the grand-daughter of James Edwards and that this James Edwards had a brother, Robert, is a well-settled fact in the history of my mother's family and the writer is under the impression that there are some family records in Maysville, Ky., and some in Limestone, Ohio, that would form a connecting link, where others might be found. I would further suggest that the whole might be of record in Aberdeen, Scotland, or at least a liber or portfolio might be found.

Mr. S. W. D. Stone.

Dear Cousin:

I am in receipt of your kind favor of the 31st of July and former favors and contents carefully noted.

It will be impossible for me to attend the meeting on the account of age. I deeply regret my inability to meet you. I have an aged sister, Sarah Woods, living in Indianapolis, whom I would be exceedingly glad if you would call & see. She has a son, a prominent business man John Woods, that can direct you where to see his mother.

I have given your boother about all the historical facts I am in possession of at present but should any further facts be developed I shall take pleasure in informing you. I did not receive your favor in time to answer sooner. Please inform me after your meeting of our prospects. (progress?).

Yours truly, (Signed) John West, Sen.

Cousin John West, Sen., called to see me this morning in regard to the history of the Edwards family and in comparing notes I find what he has written is correct and I deem it not of place to give a brief historical sketch of our family:

James Edwards, my grandfather, was born in Aberdeen in Scotland in 1704 and had one brother, Robert Alexander Edwards. Grandfather came to Virginia and settled near Alexandria and in 1786 moved to Maysville, Ky, and in 1795, moved opposite Maysville, Ky., in Ohio and died about the year 1805 at 85 years.

There is no regular record farther back than father's family record. Mr. West has given you a correct account of my uncles and aunts. Alexander was a sea captain and was often in New York, and if he purchased property he had it made in his father's name.

M ather's name was George Edwards and was one of the youngest of James Edwards' sons, and li d to be 88 years of age and lived with me for many years, I being his youngest child, and I am fifty nine years old and have a very vivid recollection of our family record, hearing it repeated by father. I well recollect cousin Haden Edwards visited us whilst my father was living with me, accompanied with two young ladies, one a Miss Stone, the other's name I do not now recollect. I have a son, Wm. Hayden Edwards, named for cousin H. and his father. He is a lawyer and I sent him to New York about four years ago to investigate this same subject but upon the examination of the records he was doubtful about the matter. Our government has since honored him with Consul General to Saint Petersburg. If here he could give you full particulars but at present writing I am unable to do so. I have been watching the meetings with great anxiety.

Yours truly, "Orange Edwards."

Dear Sir:

I received your kind favor of the 12th inst., and contents carefully noted, and I tender many thanks for your post card and will send you mine soon.

James Edwards' family record as handed me by father: Eleanor Edwards, Wm. Edwards, Jacob Edw s, Robert Edwards, Alexander Edwards, Nancy Edwards, James Edwards, Jr., Jane Edwards, G Edwards and John Edwards. Your grandfather and Jacob Edwards and George Edwards were the only male members that had offspring. Alexander Edwards was thoroughly educated in Virginia and was sent out to Kentucky as a surveyor, before the rest of the family came out, but was an officer in Logan's campaign and was wounded and died from his wound. Your grandfather's history you know all about. Jacob Edwards died at 30, leaving three daughters and a son. The daughters married, went West and are all dead; father was guardian for his son. Alex. was raised in our family, married and died without issue. Father has four sons, James, Alexander, Darius, and myself and three daughters. Therefore, you see that there is but a few left that bears the name. Eleanor Edwards married John West and has two heirs living, John West, your correspondent, and his sister, Mrs. Wood. Nancy Edwards married John Rains and has two living heirs. John Rains, living in Nashville, Tenn., and Mrs. Elestnor, in Cincinnati. Jane Edwards married Wm. Rains and has two heirs, living on the home farm near Maysville, John Rains and Mary Rains.

There was no brother of father's ever moved West. They all died in Kentucky except Robert, who died in infancy in Virginia. I had a brother moved West about the time your brother visited us and perhaps that is the way the mistake occurred. I well recollect when your brother visited us, it was before I was married. I also remember distinctly when cousin Hayden Edwards visited us; father lived with me at that time and recollect of them talking over their boyhood days and their many reminiscences in the early settlement of Kentucky and I recollect distinctly of hearing them talk over the history of grand uncle's death, much as you have described it. He was a sea captain, owning and equipping his own vessels and was in the employ of the English government, and preyed upon French commerce and delivered his goods to England and was paid his reprisal and he was often in New York and Baltimore and left a letter in Baltimore for grandf er to come to Scotland and he would make him rich, as he had no heirs and was going to quit t seas. England and France had made peace. He captured many French vessels near our coast, during the French-Canadian War, and delivered the goods in New York, and father and Hayden Edwards said, that was the way he paid for the New York property. I have never had a doubt in my mind since I heard the two old gentlemen talk the matter over, but what there was a large fortune left in Scotland and also this New York property, and if I mistake not that was cousin

Dear Cousin:

After my best respects to yourself and wife, I wish to rectify a mistake which I made in writing my other letter to you. I have been talking with two of Uncle George Edwards' boys since I wrote. They say that grandfather Edwards' brother was named Alexander, which I think, myself, is true. One reason why I have come to this conclusion is that grandfather Edwards had a son named Alexander, also Uncle George Edwards, Uncle Jacob Edwards and Aunt Jennie Rains, each had a son named Alexander. Grandafther's son, Alexander, accidentally shot himself in the knee, which killed him. Also grandfather Edwards had a son named Jack, who took cold from measles and died.

One of Uncle George Edwards' boys says that he has heard his father say that grandfather Edwards' mother married a second time.

Grandfather came to Kentucky in a very early day, before my father came out. My father and mother were married in Virginia. Grandfather raised a crop of corn for my father in Kentucky before father came here. I believe that autn Nancy and aunt Jennie Rains were both married in Ky. I will be glad for you to write me.

Yours truly (Signed) John West, Sen.

Our G. G. Grandfather Edwards lived in Aberdeen Scotland; had but two sons, Robert and James. Robert was a sea captain in the service of George 3rd of England and died without children, having never married. James moved to America; stopped first in New York, afterwards moved to Virginia and settled on Bull Run. From there went with his family of seven children, viz: (five boys and two daughters) Robert, Alexander, William, James and George and the two daughters - three settling near Limestone, one in Ohio - William, my grandfather, settled in Nelson Co., Ky.

I have always heard as a family tradition that our great uncle, Robert Edwards, obtained a land grant from George 3rd and located it in New York.

Dear Bro.

I received your letter Enclosing Statement &c upon reading over your statement, I supposed when You were here it was about correct. I wrote to a Gentleman Enquiring about the Edwards & West families and he gave me the names of several. I wrote to John West Senr (now 82 years of age & who I saw when in Ohio) And He stated that James Edwards in Virga after his apprenticeship Married a Miss Jacobs (some of the Jacobs live in Maysville) and raised his family in Fairfax County, and sold out after his children grew up and removed with them to Limestone (Maysville) and he settled just below Aberdeen (which town he James laid out on his large tract of land) and died there. I suppose at the old Homestead that I was at then occupied by Aunt Jane Rain = He left only 6. or 7 Children who had Married & had families = viz William, Jacob. & George Edwards And Eleanor West, Jane Rain & Nancy Rain =

William (our Grandfather) moved to Ky. Jane Rain lived & raised her family below Aberdeen. George Edwards Married & settled near Decatur. O. and also Eleanor West near him = Jacob Edwards moved to Ky. near Maysville (which accounts for my mother claiming relations at Washington near Maysville by name of Curtis & Childs) Nancy Rains went to Cincinnati & lived there

I learned from Coz Jno West that they had never heard of any Estate in N. York & nothing had been done to make any enquiries. What they will do now I cant tell. It would be necessary for one of George Edwards sons and some of the Wests also to go to Indianapolis Ind^a

Mr. J. E. Stone.

Dear Cousin:

I received your kind letter and according to request hasten to reply. My mother died at the age of 85. Aunt Nancy Rains about 85, and Jane, at something over 90 years. Uncle George Edwards died in 1870, between 98 and 99 years of age. Of our family, only myself and sister, Sarah Wood, are living. Several of Uncle George's children are still living. My grandfather, James Edwards, was stolen from his mother at the age of 8 or 9 and brought to Va., Fairfax Co. & sold to pay his passage; served out his time and married a woman named Jacobs (Sara) by whom he had a large family of children. Only three sons and three daughters lived to marry. His oldest son, William, settled in Ky. I remember when a child the news came to me that he was accidentally killed in his mill. Jacob lived in Kentucky near Maysville; had one son and three daughters; Sally, Polly and Milly were the girls' names, Alexander, the son's. James lived also in Kentucky, had but one child, a daughter named Ellen. My grandfather, James Edwards, died at my mother's house near Aberdeen, Ohio ( a village he laid out and named after his native place in Scotland). He crossed the ocean five times. He had a brother, whose name I think was, Robert, who followed privateering on the high seas. He wrote to my grandfather to meet him at his mother's in Aberdeen, Scotland; that he had enough of wealth for both, which he would share with him. Grandfather went by appointment, met him, but he had lost his fortune; supposed to have met a stronger privateer than he, so far as I know. Robert never visited America but died in Scotland shortly after their meeting at their mother's. Grand father went back to Scotland, after his mother's death, expecting something from her estate, but received but little. As to the estate you mention, I never before heard anything of it. Of course, nothing has ever been done in relation to it by the relatives here. I am growing old - am in my 82'd years - am the oldest of the relatives here except John Rain's, son of Aunt Jane, and about my age. Aunt Nancy's son, John Rains, also aboutmmy own age at last account was still living at Nashville, Tenn. Should be pleased to receive a visit from you and perhaps could give you more satisfaction verbally than by writing.

Yours truly, (Signed) John West, Sen.

Robert Edwards of Aberdeen, Scotalnd had two sons, one, James came to N. Y. and married in N. Y. State and moved to Va. and from Va. to Ky. in 1786, landing at Limestone (now Maysville) Mason County and settled at Kenton Station near Washington, Ky., and lived there a number of years. Then moved to Aberdeen, Ohio, and died there. The other son was a Sea Captain. The supposition is that his name was Robert Alexander Edwards, and that he died a Batchelor.

Children of James were named as follows:

Wm ~~Everett~~ Edwards
Jacob Edwards
Eleanor Edwards (West)
Nancy Edwards (Rains)
Jennie Edwards (Rains)
James Edwards
Alexander Edwards
George Edwards.

Dear Mrs. Welch,

The mortcloth dues were searched from 1724 to 1750 as no death or burial records are extant for the parish of Lintrathen before 1783. These dues are in the form of entries inserted in the voluminous Kirk Session Records, which deal with all matters in the parish.

In certain parts of the Minutes someone has marked the mortcloth entries with a 'D' in the margin, and where this has been done over a period of years I have relied on this annotation. It would take a very long time to read the minutes and I have not therefore checked that all the mortcloth dues were, in fact, so marked. In the parts where there is clearly no annotation I have scanned the minutes to extract the dues. All Edward entries were noted as follows:

17 Aug. 1724
Given for the use of the Mortcloth to Thomas Edward is delivered his corps twelve shillings Scots.

27 April 1729
For the use of the mortcloth to John Edward in Clintly his wife.

27 Dec. 1730
Given in for the use of the mortcloth to Thomas Edward of Claknoquater his corps twenty shillings Scots.

1 April 1733
Given for the use of the mortcloth to Thomas Edward in Ravernay his corps twelve shillings Scots.

Monumental Inscriptions recorded for Lintrathen Churchyard by Sheila and J. Mitchell.

No 18th century inscriptions for Edwards listed.

As you can see, there is no (Robert) Alexander Edward(s) mentioned here, although of course he may have lived on past 1750. Similarly, there was no reference to a Robert (Alexander) Edward or a James Edward(s). This indicates that they lived on into adulthood and it is therefore quite possible that James was the one who appeared in America in 1758.

The microfiche index of marriages recorded in the Old Parish Registers of Angus was searched, but no marriages under the name Law were found to have taken place in Lintrathen. (The registers commence in 1717.)

The microfiche index of baptisms recorded in the O.P.R.s of Angus was also searched, but no Law baptisms were found recorded in Lintrathen. Law is, however, quite a common name in Angus.

As it was thought possible that Law might have been confused with Low, the microfiche index of baptisms was also checked for the latter name. It was found that a number of Low families recorded the baptisms of their children during the first three decades of the 18th century in Lintrathen. No mothers' names are given, which make it difficult to be sure how many different families are involved, but certainly there were James, John and Alexander Low who recorded children in the O.P.R.s of Lintrathen.

This has been a difficult search and regrettably necessitated some overspending of the funds left in hand.

However, it looks as if we may have found the subject of your quest, and a continuance of the search in the Kirk Session Records beyond 1750 may well provide more information. I estimate this could be undertaken for a further fee of £50, and look forward to hearing from you again.

Yours sincerely,

Colin J. Parry,
Director.

Dear Mrs. Welch,

I have stopped at three hours, because my research shows no sign of a James Edwards in New York City in the 1750's, and I suspect that this part of the family "tradition" may have no basis in fact.

There were seven churches or meetings in NYC in the period 1750-2, for which we have records. I have checked all of them, and found no mention of a James Edwards, or of a Sarah Sangster/Everett/Jacobs. Indeed, there were few Edwards entries at all. The seven churches were:

1) Trinity (Anglican), marriages begin 1746, checked to 1777; in NYG&B Record Vols. 68 and 70.
2) First Presbyterian, marriages do not begin until 1756 though there are earlier baptisms; checked to 1771, in NYG&B Record Vol. 11.
3) Dutch Reformed, several churches but one set of records; checked index 1639-1801 in NYG&B Society Collections 9.
4) Lutheran, checked 1704-72 in Holland Society Yearbook 1903, and a second church 1752-76 in NYG&B Record 73-4.
5) French Reformed, 1688-1804 in Collections of the Huguenot Society of America, 1.
6) Moravian, 1744-70 in manuscript collection of the NYG&B Society (transcript).
7) Quaker Meeting 1663-1940 in Wm. W. Hinshaw, Encyclopedia of American Quaker Genealogy, Vol. 3.

Although numbers 3-6 were non-British churches, British persons were sometimes married there.

Our only source for civil marriage records is in New York Marriages Previous to 1784 (1860, reprint 1968), which you may have seen. There again is no James Edwards entry.

For possible reference to James in a newspaper I consulted two books of abstracts by Dr. Kenneth Scott, which cover all the surviving NYC papers of the period, for which there are fairly complete runs:

1) Genealogical Data from Colonial New York Newspapers (Baltimore, 1977), covers the Gazette, Journal and Mercury 1726-83.

2) Genealogical Data from the New York Post-Boy 1743-1773 (Washington, NGS, 1970).

There are people named Edwards mentioned in these books, but no James. Nor is there any mention of a Robert or of any hanging, though they might be too early for the latter. In this regard I also checked Dr. Scott's New York City Court Records, two volumes covering the Court of General Sessions (Criminal) 1684-1797 (Washington: NGS, 1982-3), and found no mention of James, Robert, or any Edwards hanging. I also checked the voluminous (400-page) index to Ansel I.N. Phelps Stokes, Iconography of Manhattan Island (6 vols., 1928), which abstracts other newspapers and many unique sources; again nothing was found.

I also checked the index to Minutes of the Common Council of the City of N.Y. (1st series, 1676-1776), and found no mention of James. The indexes to the city's land records show the earliest Edwards grantor was a Richard in 1775, and the earliest grantee a Mrs. Frances Edwards in 1758; no James in either up to 1799. Finally I checked the probate records (wills and admins.) as abstracted in Collections of the N.Y. Historical Society (Abstracts of Wills 1665-1801, 17 vols.), again finding no reference to James.

There are no census records for New York City between 1703 and 1790, but if anyone was here for any length of time in the 18th century he would, in my opinion, have showed up at least once in one of the sources I have checked for you.

I did not confine the search entirely to the city. Some of the sources mentioned above included references to persons elsewhere in New York State (the probate abstracts and the book on civil marriage records both cover the whole state). I also knew that there were Edwards families nearby in Monmouth Co., N.J. (Scots origin) and another in Suffolk Co., L.I. (English), but limited checks of sources for both places failed to show a James Edwards who could be the one we are interested in. I also looked into the Everett family of Jamaica, Queens Co., L.I., and found some Sarahs but no mention of any connection to Edwards. Since the "tradition" points to the city, I did not try to make any exhaustive search of these other sources. Edwards was probably a name that could be found in every colony, and I know there were Everetts elsewhere as well, so finding the names near NYC probably means nothing.

You are certainly doing the right thing by trying to prove each of your Edwards generations from primary sources. From this report you can see that, even if you do find that you are descended from James Edwards, it is very unlikely indeed that we can prove he was ever in New York City, let alone that he married here.

I am wondering just how old the tradition is, that says

2) Genealogical Data from the New York Post-Boy 1743-1773 (Washington, NGS, 1970).

There are people named Edwards mentioned in these books, but no James. Nor is there any mention of a Robert or of any Hengins, though they might be too early for the latter. In this regard I also checked Dr. Scott's New York City Court Records, two volumes covering the Court of General Sessions (Criminal) 1684-1797 (Washington: NGS, 1982-3), and found no mention of James, Robert, or any Edwards Hengins. I also checked the voluminous (400-page) index to Isaac I.N. Phelps Stokes, Iconography of Manhattan Island (6 vols., 1928), which abstracts other newspapers and many unique sources; again nothing was found.

I also checked the index to Minutes of the Common Council of the City of N.Y. (1st series, 1675-1776), and found no mention of James. The indexes to the city's land records show the earliest Edwards grantee was a Richard in 1775, and the earliest grantor a Mrs. Frances Edwards in 1794; no James in either up to 1799. Finally I checked the probate records (wills and admins.) as abstracted in Collections of the N.Y. Historical Society (abstracts of wills 1665-1801, 17 vols.), again finding no reference to James.

There are no census records for New York City between 1703 and 1790, but if anyone was here for any length of time in the 18th century he would, in my opinion, have showed up at least once in one of the sources I have checked for you.

Since the "tradition" places him in the city, I did not try to make any exhaustive search of these other sources. From this report you can see that, even if you do find that you are descended from James Edwards, it is very unlikely indeed that we can prove he was ever in New York City, let alone that he married here.

I am wondering just how old the tradition is, that says this James was in NYC. Is it possible that the nationwide publicity received by the Edwards estate case in the late 19th century led to wishful thinking by Edwards descendants? I know many a New York family genealogy that used imagination as a source when records failed, and I am sure that was not just a New York phenomenon. This happened when money was not an issue, and I suspect it would be even more likely to happen when the alleged Edwards inheritance was at stake. In other words, the NYC angle may have entered the family tradition within the last 100 years, instead of being handed down from earlier generations.

A popular "tradition" in many families makes the founder the brother of the founder of another American family of the same name. Usually the story is that two or three brothers all came over together and landed at New York or another port, then each went his separate way and founded a separate family. Few of these stories stand up when the records are checked. People seem to have wanted to believe that all Americans of a given surname must have a common origin. Perhaps this idea had some effect on the James Edwards tradition as well.

The ways in which imagination was most often used were: 1) to invent the immigrant ancestor's origin, that is his parents' names and town of birth, including some close noble or royal connection in many cases; and 2) to give maiden names to the wives whose identities could not be found on record. I think it is obvious that one or both of these might well apply to the James Edwards story. Of course, some of the tradition might well turn out to be true, but it does have the hallmarks of a fabricated story, in my opinion.

It is possible for people who first appear in 18th century Virginia to have come there from New York or other northern colonies, though this is more likely in Fairfax and Loudon Cos. or down the Shenandoah Valley, than in a county like Northumberland where you suspect your line may belong. Of course, new Virginians were most likely to be directly from Britain.

David Dobson, who has done many books on Scottish emigration, does mention one James Edwards in his Directory of Scots Banished to the American Plantations 1650-1775 (Balt., 1983), p. 44: James Edwards, Earl of Airlie's land, Lintrathen. Jacobite in the Duke of Perth's Regiment. Prisoner at Sterling. Transported 1747 (Dobson puts a ? here). Source is "Prisoners of the '45". I am sure there were other James Edwards who went to America in the same period, and apparently there is no record of where this one was sent.

I might also comment on the use of the name Orange. I think it might have been used by any family of Scottish or Scotch-Irish origin, to indicate their support of the Protestant cause. It is this James was in NYC. Is it possible that the nationwide publicity received by the Edwards estate case in the late 19th century led to wishful thinking by Edwards descendants? I know many a New York family genealogy that used imagination as a source when records failed, and I am sure that was not just a New York phenomenon. I might also comment on the use of the name Orange. I think it might have been used by any family of Scottish or Scotch-Irish origin, to indicate their support of the Protestant cause. It is is my impression that Orange was a principality in France, the title to which was inherited by the Dutch royal family, still called the House of Orange. I have never heard of a Duke of Orange. However, one Prince of Orange did become King William III of England and Scotland, and was the King who defeated the Catholics in Ireland in about 1690. After that, he was the great hero of the Irish Protestants, hence their use of the name and color Orange to this day. Orange County in N.Y. and Va. both are named in his honor as well, and I suspect that James Edwards' grandson was named Orange for this reason, and not because he was a descendant of the Duke of Orange.

Excuse me for rambling on. The research and preparation of this report have taken three hours, or $45, of which you have paid $15. I do not think that further New York City research would be worthwhile. If you do find that James is your ancestor, I think you can safely assume that he was only in this city very briefly, if at all, and probably did not marry here.

By the way, by coincidence I also have another client now who asked me to check out her family tradition, that has one Martin Key giving a 99-year lease on NYC property. He was supposedly related by marriage to Robert Edwards. My own opinion is that neither claim has any basis in fact at all.

Good luck as you continue your Edwards search.

Sincerely,

Harry Macy Jr

I have not found a Gen. Simon Rains either, tho the name may actually have been Simeon. What I have found tho that is more probable for your group is in the genealogy of John R. Rains in Cameron Parish, Fairfax Va. 1754. John R. had sons by 2 wives, and the first one bore him Anthony and John Rains,Jr. John Jr. was born probably before 1752 and is found later in Kentucky in 1788 where he married to Nancy Ann Edwards- The Bondsman was Simon Kenton.
Information I have says that both John Rains and Cornelius Rains live in Loudon Co. Va. from 1773 to 1780 before moving into Kentucky. They both are listed in Fleming Kentucky later on. John R. Rains will mentions John Parham, who was to take his two sons, Anthony and John Jr. to raise and educate, and the Parhams were of Surry/Sussex Co. Va.
Hope this is not too confusing- Also, the Lucas family was married into the Nathaniel Rains' family of Pr. George, Va. Nathaniel's daughter Frances married William Lucas. Are any of these your family?
Will keep looking and let you know if I find anything else. Lucy

WILLIAM EVERETT

WB 6 18 Feb. 1759 Ct. 2 July 1759
P. 157 WILLIAM EVERETT of Richmond Co., Va., Parish of North Farnham
Wife: Margaret - negroes Tom & Winney
Dau.: Ruth Rouett - negroes Dianna & Isaac
Son: Daniel - 1/2 land where I now live - rest when wife dies, guns & other personal property
Dau.: ANN HAMMOND - 2 negroes Lettice & Adam
Dau: Elizabeth Williams - 2 negroes Sarah & Anthony
Dau.: Sarah Dodson - 2 negroes Million & Simon

See Register of North Farnham Parish - King. Anne Everett, dau. William & Margaret born 2 Aug. 1716. Jarvis Hammond, son of Job and Amadine, born 27 Sept. 1725.

No record of the marriage of Jarvis Hammond (b. 27 Sept. 1725) and Anne Everett (b. 2 Aug. 1716). Evidently it occurred before 1759.

No record of William Edwards' marriage to Nancy Hammond.

Personal Property Tax list for Fairfax County, Va. shows that Jervis & Job Hammond, James, William and Jacob Edwards were charged with personal property taxes for years 1782 through 1786. No Hammond or Edwards shown in 1787. Land taxes 1783 through 1786 missing. Found no marriages in Fairfax.

The above men could have lived in Fairfax earlier than 1782. Our tax records begin with 1782 and they did not appear to own land in 1782 - just personal property.

The fact that the above men were not shown in 1787 makes it appear that they left before that time.

Many early court records of Virginia Counties have been lost through fire or other disaster. Among those counties that suffered the greatest loss were Fairfax, Northumberland, Prince William and Stafford.

From the above you can understand why it is not possible to secure all the information desired.

Old King William Homes and Families - Payton Neale Clarke

Pg. 41 The name of Edwards is frequently found in the early annals of Virginia, and the first of the name appears to have reached the Colony soon after the settlement at Jamestown. There was a JOHN EDWARDS, of "Northumberland House," in 1653, from whom the descent of many Edwards' in Virginia is claimed, and the families of Hayden Edwards in Kentucky and Ninian Edwards in Illinois are doubtless descended from that source."

Found no will for above John Edwards. See also Overwharton Parish Register and Virginia Genealogies footnotes attached.

Dear Linda,

Your magnificent material arrived just as I was getting ready to go to Santa Fe. That turned out to be a disaster since I couldn't take the altitude and ended up in the emergency room of a hospital within twenty-four hours. There is nothing that can be done for you so you leave knowing you are about to have a stroke.

Since then I just haven't gotten back to genealogy problems.

Now, I'm not too sure just what information I have that you want. I can take the Hammond family back to 1620 but it is not documented. My information came from a Louisville architect, who, along with one of his sons, is a real genealogy buff. He has even been to England to search. He and his son have written for various publications. They did my family line back when they thought it was theirs. The early Hammons or Hammonds were theirs, but a branch went to the Carolinas and then quite recently came to Kentucky. I do have a DEED between Wm. and Nancy selling property to a Baptist church in Bloomfield in 1790. Another DEED that I have ~~is~~ concerns a Everett willing slaves to his four grandchildren in Kentucky. Their mother was Ann Everett and I asume had died. The grandfather had died sometime before and again I assume he had left the slaves to his wife for her lifetime. This Wm. Everetts'wife was named Margaret. No dates.

* Then I have a DEED Between Wm. and Nancy's children, Haden, Travis, Ann Brown, Sally McKay and Millie Adair. She was first married to a Stone. Four of them are buying out Travis, my second great-grandfather,. The property involved had been inherited from Wm. who had died intestate. He had to have been in his fifties.

I have a copy of a tax list, 1830, where Haden's wealth was put aTLL1,410 with a total of 18 slaves. Travis was at $ 300 with only one slave. Other court records do not improve his image. We have to claim him but he apparently was not much. His wife sued him etc. etc, etc.

I have many other copies of COURT PAPERS such as marriages, their suing some one and someone suing them, witnessing various wills and such. I also have a copy of Haden's WILL, and I know where he is buried. I was recently sent a picture of a fine home which ~~is~~ was reputedly built by Haden. I have not as yet pursed this but intend to do so. A clipping from an early Bardstown paper says that Haden was building a brick home for his wife-to-be near Bloomfield. He was married in 1802 and there is no way this could be the same house. It might have served as the nucleus for the larger house. I have also been told that a smaller house, which is definetly old, was his origianl home. I have been in this one and you would enjoy seeing it.

One great problem exists with these Bardstown records. As you know too often the middle name is never used in most of the deeds. There were in the 1780's three Wm. Edwards'. One was an orphan and due the dates involved and his age I can see no possibility of his being in my family. I have been told, folklore, that one of the other Wm.s was an ordinary keeper. (Ilove the word ordinary). Whether or not our Wm was that one we will never know. I do have a record of his licenses but there is no middle name. We know that our Wm. was dead by 1812, but about 1837 Travis sold what must have been all of his possessions to a William. The price was about $450. After that, he and his wife and mother disappear from Nelson Co. records. Supposedly going south to Louisiana. I have contacted recently a genealogist near Monroe, La. to do this searching for me.

Also in those records is recorded the marriage of one Wm to Sarah Keith in 1799. This is within a five year period of Haden and Travis' marriages. I think this Wm. could be a son of Wm. and Nancy. What information I have received corroborates my own. The only deed I have is the one mentioned above where four children are buying out a fifth. It could be that this Wm. a brother of Travis did not participate in this transaction. The same thing happened in my own family. 170 years from now anyone finding that deed would assume there were only five children. BUT, my bother Hayden, had no part in it. I can't help but believe that the 1837 deed was between brothers.

A nun from Nazareth has been working for me in Bardstown. Between the two of us we have never straightened out these Wm.s. I have also corresponded with others, even from Idaho, who are working on this same line and we are all confused.

*I do have one DEED that spells out Wm. ~~Everett~~. and his wife Nancy/

I have quite recently heard from:

Mrs. Dorothy Colwell (Mrs. Robert)
632 Willowbrook Lane
Edgewood, Ky. 41017

She has kept one of my queries from the "Kentucky Ancestors" as of April, 1982. She too is searching William ~~Everett~~ NC Edwards, son of James. I have written her and if I learn anything I will pass it on. You may be interested in writing her.

Now, two questions: Where does the Delaware area come into this? I havenever heard of it. The other problem, Why is the name Hayden in parentheses after Nancy's name? My brother is named Hayden Edwards, not Haden as in the name of the one in Bourbon Co. and Nelson Co. We were all told that my brother was named from his 3rd great-grandfather. This is not true. We have all tried to connect these two Edwards lines mainly because of the name Haden in both of them. They must ~~of~~ HAVE known each other since Benjamin, his wife Margaret Beall and their sons Ninian and Presley were in Nelson Co. for a shor time before moving to the Purchase area in Western Kentucky.

Let me know which papers you are interested in. I also have been sent numerous charts on the Mc Kay family. Sallie Edwards married John McKay. I'm not too interested in the collateral lines.

Sincerely,

Margaret

Dear Mrs. Colwell and Mrs. Wilson,

Since both of you are interested in the same family, I'm writing you at the same time. I first want to thank both of you for your letters and information and hope what I have will be helpful. To each I am sending the same material.

First your questions. As of today, and maybe as of never, I have no family sheets except the McKay family which is enclosed. I am still hoping for some gaps to be filled before finding someone to put these together for me.

Mrs. Colwell says that she has someone working in Utah on Scottish records. Through the Filson Club in Louisville, I have the address of an Edinburgh society which handles genealogists requests. I wrote them about the first of December but have had no reply as yet. Should I learn anything I will send it on to you.

The name of the architect in Louisville who, along with his son, is a genealogy buff and who has researched the Hammond family is

Stratton O. Hammon (noD)
30 River Hill Road
Louisville, Kentucky 40207

His son is Neil, lives in Shelbyville, Ky. and I do not have his address.

As for the Edwards "Fortune" - Yes, I have heard about it. I was born in 1916 and remember my parents discussing this in the 1920's. My father was a lawyer and was asked tp participate in the suit. My mother encouraged him to do so but his words were "they don't stand a tinkers damn of getting one cent.".. Now there is a man named Bruce Montgomery Edwards who wrote a book entitled The Edwards of Northhampton, which I purchased. Since then I have corresponded with him. According to the charts in his book there is no way my father would be a/descendant of that Robert. Mrs.
Wilson, he agrees with your chart on "another branch of the family" and would like to correspond with you. His address is:

6148 Midnight Pass Road
Sarasota, Florida 33581

or

"Panorama"
6203 Mountain Park Drive
Knoxville, Tennessee 37918

(Beautiful addresses)

Next: In none of the papers which I have has the Wm., married to Nancy Hammond, been referred to as Wm. E. As you know the documents rarely listed a middle initial. The only Wm. E. I have is the one that loaned Travis money in 1829, a copy of which is inclosed. I still think he could have been a sixth child. Could either of you tell me what documentation exists that Wm and Nancy had but five children in Fairfax Co.? If these five children are based on the one Nelson Co. deed, also inclosed, a wrong impression could have been left. In my own family, should someone research 180 years hence, they could find a deed between five of us, and assume there were only five. In our case one brother, Hayden, did not participate and this could be the same with Wm. E. Wm. married Sarah Keith in 1799. Wm. must have been of age for noone signed for him. Sarah's papers were signed by Wm. and Jacob Keith. Do those names mean anything to you?

I have recently bought another book - Historic Nelson County - Its Towns and People by Sarah B. Smith. She is from Bardstown, the county seat, and is not always too accurate. In this book she pictures a lovely, large two-story brick house with columns around the front door. Under the picture she says it was built by Haden Edwards, "a rich man from New York". We know that Haden was married in Nelson Co. to Sally Stone in 1802. None of us working with the court records have ever found another Haden. Could he have left and then returned? Could any of the Everetts have been in New York? One day I think I will go through all these papers I have on Haden and see if there is a gap of some years, when he may have left and then returned.

The book also states that Haden Edwards heirs in Bristol, Tennessee recently donated a pier glass mirror, gold frame and marble base, to MY Old Kentucky Home and which is now in a bedroom on the second floor. As you know, Haden had no children to survive him, so I assume these are heirs of his second wife. Then she states that a Doctor John Bemis founded Bloomfield, built the first house, a very large one, which in a few years was bought by Travis "who converted it to a hotel". (The second great-granddaughter of Bemis and I have been friends for many years and were surprised to learn that Bemis and Travis did business together.)

More folklore is that James Brown, who married Ann Edwards, was the first purveyor of Kentucky country hams. He took them down the Ohio to the Mississippi all the way to New Orleans.

This Bloomfield land and cemetery where Haden and Sally are buried, is still in the hands of the Eli Brown family. A large Victorian house was built after the civil war. Eli the fourth and his sister are prominent in Louisville, The land they own was apparently originally Stone and Edwards.

I am now going to try to make up some sort of a chart for. This is not my forte.

Sincerely,

Margaret E. Welch

Margaret E. Welch

Wm. Edwards married Nancy Hammond
Wm. died intestate 1811 or 12.
Nancy disappeared from Kentucky in the 1830s.
Wm. may have been a tavern keeper/ Have never located their home nor burial place. 5 children documented.

① Haden Edwards married Sally Stone 1802. After her death married her sister, Rebecca. No children survived. He is buried on Eli Brown 1V's farm in Bloomfield. When last seen, cemetery was in beautiful condition. Near cemetery is an old two story house which I've been told is the one the Bardstown paper referred to when saying he was building a brick house in Bloomfield for his bride to be, Sally. There is a mural in the upstairs hall. Now occupied by farm manager.

② Travis Edwards married Elizabeth Grigsby in 1804. Four or five children. Three sisters were living in Louisville. Sarah Look, ? Cunningham and ? . Son Everett may have left Kentucky with father. Have not made an effort to find them, as yet.
Sarah married George Look or Looke in 1837, Jefferson County. (Louisville is in Jefferson). Have never found her grave. She lived until the 1890's.

Sarah had two children - Wm. and Helen. Apparently Wm. was not healthy. Never married, died 1890 and is buried in Louisville, Helen married John Thomas Edwards, one son James Percival, died 1890 and is buried in Cave Hill Cemetery, Louisville. James died 1934,. It is believed that John Thomas was not a relative.

James had seven children - Oscar Percival, James Percival, Helen Look, Margaret Adams, (me), Richard Wathen, Julia Spalding and Charles Hayden.

③ Ann Edwards married James Brown. One son was Haden Edwards Brown.
④ Sallie Edwards married John Mc Kay. Chart attached.
⑤ Millie married a Stone and then Adair.
All three sisters named a son for Haden Edwards.

Charles Hammond Sr. Came to Virginia circa 1620
His son Job Hammond married Elizabeth
His son Job married Amadine M.
His son Jarvis married Ann Everett of Virginia.

Ann Everett's father was Wm. Everett, Richmond Co. Va. A deed concerning the distribution of slaves is being searched as of now. Apparently, after Wm.'s death the slaves went to his wife and at her death were to be given to the four grandchildren in Nelson Co.

Jargis, Gervais, Gervis's daughter Nancy married Wm. Edwards the son of James.

Mrs. Margaret E. Welch,
P. O. Box 81
Prospect, Ky. 40059

Dear Mrs. Welch:

How nice to hear from you again! We are spending the winter months in our condominium apartment on the Gulf, and enjoying the mild weather.

Yes, the family of Thomas Edwards of 1690 shown on the sheet from Mrs. Wilson is the same as that in my book.

When the "Edwards Fortune" became such an exciting prospect in the early 1920s everyone started looking for a relationship. The lease to the Manhattan property by Robert showed the names of his brothers and sister, someone discovered (?) that they were all the family of Thomas. This line became the most obvious of all the Edwards who came to America in the 1600s and 1700s, so everyone looked to them for their ancestry. Joshua, William, Thomas and John came to America. My people make their claim based on John.

William, born in 1720, is the most controversial of all the family. I have charts from several who claim his ancestry, none of them the same. He did not live at Mount Sterling, Ky., but he probably did have a wife named Harriett. Most historians agree that he married Polly Kramer (Cramer) in Baltimore, Md., that he married (2) Jane Taylor in 1755, and marridd (3) Harriett Curtis. Noone has ever been able to prove his children; everyone has them different.

A William Edwards went to Claiborne County, Tenn., and one line claims their kinship. There were a dozen William Edwards in Virginia in the early 1700s and nobody can prove the line. Most of them went to Kentucky.

The best information I have been able to gather is that Joshua and William went to North Carolina, to Halifax and Orange Counties. From Orange, divided to make Chatham, William's family went to Tennessee and Kentucky. William had a number of sons, one son Jonothan, called John, born 15 April 1748 in Orange, went back to Baltimore, Maryland and married Nancy Bond. He returned to Orange, and had a son Jonothan born 6 June 1774 who married Elizabeth Tate about 1795 in Surry County, Va. See Mrs. Wilson's note. Elizabeth died in Independence, Indiana in 1886 at age 105. They had eighteen children, fifteen boys and five girls.

It is likely that the individuals noted in Mrs. Wilson's copy came from this line. The name "Edward Edwards" certainly originated in the Orange, N. C. line and was carried in several generations.

I have made no research in Ohio. I would like very much to have Mrs. Wilson's comments on the above.

Cordially yours,
Bruce Edwards

Dear Mrs. Colwell,

I received your letter today and was so happy to hear from you. It has been months since I've worked on my genealogy project and your letter is easy to answer and those others take time and patience.

At the time I wrote that query I was desperately looking for the father of Wm. Everett Edwards. I had been to Northumberland Co., Va. thinking that John had to be his father. I found nice names and dates but no proof. Since then I have heard from a Mr. Moore in Arlington, Va. who is from Bloomfield, Ky. and a descendant of the McKay's, one of whom married Sallie Edwards the sister of Haden. He was the first to inform me that Wm. was the son of James who founded Aberdeen, Ohio.

Since then I have obtained a copy of his will James and some other papers and have been given the name of a woman in Kentucky who has in her possession an Edwards bible. Time has not been kind, and I have not yet pursued this lead.

Wm. Mc ~~Everett~~ Edwards married Nancy Hammond, the daughter of Jarvis Hammond and Ann -d/o Wm. Everett. I have been given the Hammond line all the way back to 1620. This information came from an architect in Louisville named Hammon. He ~~is~~ and his son are real genealdgy buffs, even having gone to England. They have both written articles for various publications.

I'm sure you are aware that James married Sarah Jacobs ~~Everett~~. I am a descendent of first James, then Wm., then Travis, then Sarah Edwards Look or Looke, then Helen who married back into the Edwards name, John Thomas Edwards who may or maynot be in this family. My father was James Percival Edwards of Louisville and Prospect, a suburb of Louisville.

I'm not sure what information I have that you are interestedin. I do know the names of the five children of Wm. ~~Everett~~ and their spouses and somehting about their children. I have a picture of a beautiful home that is supposedly that of Haden. (This I intend to follow up on.) Apparently, Haden was an outstanding citizen, but Travis, who supposedly died in Louisiana, doesn't seem much to write home about.

The other William in Nelson Co. is an enigma to all of us. I do have a deed, in the 1830's, where Travis ~~borowwed~~ borrowed about $450.00 from a Wm Edwards putting up for collateral what must hage been his home and all his land. Travis then disappeared from Nelson Co. along with his Mother and wife, Elizabeth. His father, Wm., had died about 1812, apparently quite a young man, in his early fifties.

Edgewood, Kentucky 41017

Dear Mrs. Colvell,

I received your letter today and was so happy to hear from you. It has been months since I've worked on my genealogy project and your letter is sure to answer and throw others into time and patience.

At the time I wrote that query I was desperately looking for the father of Wm. Everett Edwards. I had been to Northumberland Co., Va. thinking that John had to be his father. I found some names and dates but no proof. Since then, I have heard from a Mr. Moore in Arlington, Va. who is from Bloomfield, Ky. and a descendant of the McCoy's, one of whom married Nellie Edwards the sister of Haden. He was the first to inform me that Wm. was the son of Haden who founded Aberdeen, Ohio.

Since then I have obtained a copy of his will, and some other papers and have been given the name of a woman in Kentucky who has in her possession an Edwards Bible. Time has not been kind, and I have not yet pursued this lead.

Wm. Everett Edwards married Nancy Rannard, the daughter of Jervis Rannard and Ann Clinton Everett. I have been given the Rannard line all the way back to 1630. This information came from an architect in Louisville named Rannard. He and his son are real genealogy buffs, even having gone to England. They have both written articles for various publications.

I'm sure you are aware that Haden married Sarah Smith. I am a descendant of first Haden, then Wm., then Virgil, then Sarah Edwards Look of Louis, then Helen who married back into the Edwards name, John Thomas Edwards who was my aunt by in this family. My father was James Percival Edwards of Louisville and Prospect, a suburb of Louisville.

I'm not sure what information I have that you are interested in. I do know the names of the five children of Wm. Edwards and their spouses and something about their children. I have a picture of a beautiful home that is supposedly that of Haden. (This I intend to follow up on.) Apparently, Haden was an outstanding citizen, but Travis, who supposedly died in Louisiana, doesn't seem much to write home about.

The other William in Nelson Co. is an enigma to all of us. I do have a deed, in the 1820's, where Travis (William) borrowed about $500.00 from a Mr. Edwards putting up for collateral what must have been his home and all his land. Travis then disappeared from Nelson Co. along with his mother and wife, Elizabeth. His father, Wm., had died about 1812, apparently quite a young man, in his early thirties.

There was in the 1790's a third Wm. Edwards. He was an orphan whom the court took from one gaurdian to another because of mistreatment. His age seems to me to dissocate him from my family. I have also corresponded with a woman from Idaho, who is looking for a Wm . who left Bloomfield and went to the countyin Indiana where Columbus is located about 1830. The puzzle has not been solved by any of us.

All of my family's bibles, scrap books, and a large family chart in my father's handwriting went into storage and haven't been seen since. My brother, Hayden Edwards, came here one Sunday morning and talked me into searching our ancestors. I was bored but since have been bitten by the bug. I've gone a long way but still have a wwy to go.

Many Questions: Why did Sarah and James go to New York to be married?

What happened to Travis and Elizabeth?

Why was James at age 10 living in Fairfax Co. when his father was supposedly still in Aberdeen, Scotland?

And Who was he living with?

If you have any of these answers, I would love to know about them.

I do have other papers. Like: the deed in 1790 where Wm and Nancy sold property to the Baptist Church in Bloomfield for a price that seems like it was practically a gift. Many court papers detailing transfers of property between all of them, and court appearances for many reasons.

The other Edwards line in Kentucky, Haden of Bourbon Co. was the first I thought was mine. Time has proven differently. They must have known each other. Benjamin, married to Margaret Beall, the daughter of Ninian Beall, built a house in Nelson Co., Eventually went to Elkton, Ky. where his fine home still stands and which, our paper says, still contains family portraits of the Edwards family. Since the name Haden shows in both families, it does seem that they were related, but no one has been able to proove it. John of Northumberland should be in that family. Also in that family is John, one of the first senators from Kentucky in 1792, two wives of Kentucky governors, one of the founders of Louisville, Ninian of Ohio and Haden of Nagadouches, Texas plus others.

I will be glad to share what information I have and can send copies of various papers. My filing system has not yet taken shape. I should have been a file clerk instead of a once-upon-a-time CPA.

Sincerely,

Margaret E. Welch

Dear Mrs. Welch,

After going through what I have on the Edwardses and associates I've come to the conclusion that it's quite possible that yours didn't come from the family that Ninian is from. There is just too much association with that Fairfax Co. group. The presence of the name Haden, however, will always be troubling to the mind with such a conclusion.

I'm making this a brief letter, but I think there is still a great deal to discuss and a great deal of interest on this subject, so I trust we'll continue to correspond for a while.

Interesting what you have to say about the prominence of some of these families. I'm a McKay descendant myself, but I never really thought of them in this light. I do know that a few of them did achieve some wealth, but others were not absolutely outstanding in that respect. They are now spread out all over the country, only a few of another branch of the family still remaining in Bardstown. The Hammonds have nearly faded from the scene. The last of the Stones actually bearing that name died during my childhood. I suppose the Eli Brown family are the only ones from that line that make their presence known at all. I think maybe Eli III's children still come to Bloomfield in the summer, but they have no real personal ties with the place any more. There are some Stones in Spencer Co. that are a part of another line of this family too. As far as Browns go, there were several quite distinct families by this name from the beginning. Whatever the Eli Brown family may think, it's quite possible that they are descended from a Pennsylvania family by that name that settled quite early in Nelson.

Back to the questions raised by first names. I think perhaps there were Elishas in both Edwards families, so that also is troublesome. Riddles like this fascinate me, though, so I imagine I'll be looking into the Edwardses for a while yet.

I didn't make it quite clear earlier. I've found evidence of several families in just one small tax district (1782) of Fairfax that sent quite a few representatives to Nelson Co. These names appear in that district: John O'Neal (my ancestor), Drakeford Gray, Eli Stone, Jervis Hammond, and then there are Moxleys (one m. a McKay in Nelson), Davises, Halls, Dulins, Fergusons, and Summerses that definitely sent members to Nelson. That makes it very convincing that your Edwardses came from there.

Certainly wish we could get this all documented.

Yours sincerely,

Robert P. Moore

EARLY SETTLERS.

John Stevenson was born in Pennsylvania in 1787; was married to Miss Sarah Porter in 1808; came to Ohio in 1816; lived in Byrd Township, on what is called Rattlesnake Creek, until 1821, when he purchased a farm of 176 acres on the waters of Eagle Creek, in Jefferson Township, near the northeast line of the township. There he lived until 1863, whe[illegible] moved to Russellville. Three children were born to them—Robert, Eliza and James. Robert, in his day, was a physician of considerable note; Eliza was married to Mr. Evans, who died a number of years ago; Mrs. Evans survives him, and has removed with her family to Illinois. James is the sole owner of the farm, and is living in Russellville, in quiet and bachelor-like seclusion. Sarah Stevenson died in 1833, aged forty-nine years. John died in 1866, aged seventy-nine years. Robert is also now dead. erred 1863 ae 79-1-29

James Edwards, Sr., was born in Aberdeen, Ohio, January, 1800. He lived there the first six years of his life, then moved with his father to Byrd Township, and settled on a farm on Eagle Creek, now owned by Harrison Edwards, a descendant of the Edwards family. In August, 1821, he was married to Nancy Jacobs, and they moved to an adjoining farm. There were born to them thirteen children, all of whom lived to marry. Mr. Edwards was Justice of the Peace for a number of years. His wife died February 26, 1848. In the spring of 1850, he sold his farm and moved to Russellville, where he engaged in tanning for about fifteen years. His health becoming impaired, he then withdrew from business. December 1, 1859, he was married to Miss Rachel Linton, and both are still living.

Thomas Mefford was born in Mason County, Ky., in 1803. He came to Ohio in 1825, and, in July of the same year, married Ellen Hodkins, and settled on a farm in Union Township. Three years later, they came to Russellville, purchasing a forty-acre farm and Town Lot No. 12, on which was a small log house, the second one built in Russellville. They lived in it until 1840, when they erected a two-story brick. Mr. Mefford engaged sometimes in blacksmithing, and occasionally manufactured a rifle, for which there was always a ready sale. He filled various township offices, and was Postmaster for sixteen years. His salary as such was at first $15 per annum. He was in early life interested in horses, and introduced the Morgan stock in this community. Of late years he has been an invalid, but has written a work on the horse and its diseases.

Aaron Wilson was born in Brooke County, Va., in 1791. He was married to Esther Baird, a native of the same county, and, in April, 1815, moved to Byrd Township, and, the following November, to the northeast part of Jefferson, and purchased a farm of 160 acres on the West Fork of Eagle Creek, about one mile east of Russellville. Nine children were born to them—Alexander, Sarah, Nancy, John K., Eliza Jane, William, Milton, Margaret and Alfred—all of whom are yet living except Eliza Jane, William and Sarah Mr. Wilson sold his farm to his son, Alexander, and went to Peoria County, Ill., where he died in April, 1853. Mrs. Wilson died in August, 1854.

William Baird was born in Virginia; was married to Miss Sarah Moore; came to Ohio in 1814, and settled on the farm now owned by Wilson Pickerill. His children were Margaret, John M., Wilson, Amanda and Caroline.

His acquaintance is intimate and very extensive over a region of fifty miles in diameter. He has been almost continually in office, of one kind or another, since he was of age. He has been fifteen years a justice of the peace, has been trustee, clerk and constable. His family consists of ten children, all of whom are living, and eight of whom are married and settled. His son, Robert C., while in the army, contracted a disease which destroyed his eyesight.

Adam Arnold, who came to New Market in 1805, with Andrew Shafer, settled soon thereafter on the Pence farm, which lay between Frederick Saum and Isaac Leamon.

Thomas Barr and Matthias Barr, brothers, settled on what is known as the Barr survey, number four thousand eight hundred and seventy-four. Thomas took the west half, and Matthias the east half.

In the north part of Hamer, Philip Roush and John Hickson settled. Mr. Roush cleared the farm now owned by his son John, on Fulton survey, number seven thousand two hundred and seventy-six, about 1806. Mr. Hickson first improved the farm of W. Barnes, about 1812.

David Leamon, son of Isaac Leamon, opened up the G. M. Ludwick farm, Kerr survey, number six thousand nine hundred and eighty-seven, and William Hibler first improved the Ragland farm.

George Roush opened a very large farm a short distance southwest of Danville, about 1815. Widow J. K. Custer now occupies the place.

Alexander Sanderson was born in Scotland, and early emigrated to Pennsylvania. From there he removed to Kentucky, where he married. Thence, about 1801, he removed to Ross county, as it was then, to the neighborhood of New Market. He settled a half mile south of the town. Mr. Sanderson died in the spring of 1805, and his estate was the first one settled in the new county of Highland. He left five children, and the care of them, from that time, devolved chiefly upon the eldest, William. William continued on the farm of his father till he married, when he settled on the farm now owned by John H. Wood, west of Danville. His wife's name was Margaret Murphy, and they had nine children. Of these, two, George and Alexander, live in Hamer, two in Salem, one in Clay, one in Concord, one lives in Illinois, and one in Missouri. One son died when a young man, and all the others have families.

Alexander C. Sanderson married Matilda Custer. They have one child. When a young man, Mr. Sanderson was engaged for several years in teaching school. For thirty years past he has kept a village store at Danville, and been actively engaged in public enterprises. He was treasurer of the township twelve years.

George Sanderson, his brother, married Elizabeth Surber, and had five children. Mrs. Sanderson died in 1879. He owns a fine farm, with good improvements, about a mile south of Danville.

William Sanderson, the father of George and A. C., had a brother, Alexander. He has a son, J. C. Sanderson, who now owns a large property in the eastern part of Hamer.

John Eakins emigrated from County Tyrone, in Ireland, in 1799, in the twenty-second year of his age. He took passage in the good ship Moyle Brig, and landed after a prosperous voyage of six weeks. Knowing that he had an uncle by the name of Oliver Ross, somewhere in Ohio, he came west, and found him in New Market The following year he bought the farm now owned by Mrs. Duckwall, in Hamer, Massie's survey, number three thousand six hundred and sixty, consisting of two hundred and fifty acres. He fell in love with his cousin, Nancy Ross, and in 1803 they were married. Mr. Eakins made a clearing on his farm on the low land directly east of where the barn now stands, and built there a double log cabin. An old apple tree standing near the spot, alone remains to mark the place. The location was a good one, and the farm is now considered one of the best in the township. Out of eleven children born, but four grew to maturity, as follows Rebecca St. Clair, born in 1810, married Samuel Murphy, and has lived for many years in New Market. Mary C. St. Clair, born in 1816, married Samuel Duckwall. She now lives on the farm owned by her father Eliza St. Clair Eakins married William Nevins and settled near Danville, and afterward removed to Hillsborough, where they still reside. Frances E. St. Clair married Robert Nevins, a brother to William, and settled on the home farm. They afterward moved to Dayton, where Mrs. Nevins died.

Mr. John Eakins built the house in which Mrs. Duckwall now lives, about the time the road, now the pike, was opened. Here he kept tavern for many years. He was industrious and saving, but somewhat rough in his ways. John Eakins, John Davidson, and seven others, burned the first brick made in the country, on the Eakins farm, just south of the house, across the creek, in 1816 These brick were used for chimneys. The east chimney of the Duckwall house was constructed with part of them.

Mr. Duckwall, his son-in-law, settled soon after his marriage on a farm west of Hillsborough, on the Milford and Chillicothe turnpike. This farm was originally owned by a Mr. Parker, of whom Mr. Duckwall's father bought it in 1810. It consisted of five hundred acres, of which one-fourth (one hundred and twenty-five acres) fell to Mr. Duckwall. Mr. and Mrs. Duckwall had eight children, the first of whom did not live. Nancy Rebecca died at the age of two and a half years. Lewis R. attained to manhood, married, and now lives in Indianapolis, Indiana. John St. Clair also married and lives in Indianapolis. Eliza F. died before arriving at womanhood. Susan E. D. married George Brown, son of James Brown of Clay township, and lived for four years in Brown county, and then moved to their present residence, on the pike east of Danville. Jennie S. D. married Dr. A. S. Evans, the popular dentist in Hillsborough.

Mr. Duckwall served his township as a trustee, and his neighborhood as a school director. Lewis, above mentioned, served his country in the army during the Rebellion, and John would have done so had he not been too young; as it was, he volunteered "on his own hook"

Lynn:

Sorry for taking advantage of your post to June, but I've been looking for information about my ONLY EVANS for ages. She was married to my great great grandfather in the mid 1800s and they were near Indianapolis for at least part of their lives. Do you think your friend, Linda Wilson, would be able to help me?

Samuel WEST (b. 29 Jan 1827 in Estill County, KY; d. 11 Nov 1895 in Boone County, IN) married 30 Sep 1845 to Susannah EVANS (b. 5 Aug 1827; d. 24 May 1913). They are both buried in Mts. Run Cemetery, Boon County, IN. Their children were:

Willis G. WEST (b. 29 Dec 1846 in IN; d. 01 Dec 1927; m. Elizabeth Mandana DULIN);
Jonathan E. WEST (my g-grandfather)(b. 18 Dec 1848; d. 29 Sep 1922; m. Malinde Emeline WHEELER);
Martha Jane WEST (b. 22 Jan 1851; d. 27 Apr 1901; m. Milton O. THOMPSON);
Roselle WEST (b. 02 Jul 1853; d. 08 Jul 1929; m. Martin Mansfield SHELBURNE, 07 Mar 1872);
James E. WEST (b. 25 Jan 1856; d. 12 Sep 1856; bur. in Mts. Run [illegible]metery, Boone Co., IN);
Sara Margaret WEST (b. 07 Aug 1857; m. John CLINGER);
Mary E. WEST (b. 26 Aug 1860; d. 01 Sep 1896; m. Prince Albert CARR);
Samuel Aaron WEST (b. 08 Feb 1863; d. 05 Oct 1899; m. Mary R. STARK);
Charles Jasper WEST (b. 19 Aug 1865; d. 29 Sep 1899; m. Linnie LEE);
Susannah WEST (b. 15 Oct 1867; d. 30 Oct 1945; m. Joseph BABER);
Albert F. WEST (b. 10 Jan 1870; d. Aug 1913; m. Ella STATON);
Harvey W. WEST (b. 30 Dec 1872 in IN; d. 05 Jul 1914; m. Catherine "Kitty" SHOEMAKER).

I have lots more on WESTs and others, but not one more tiny fact about my great great grandmother, Susannah EVANS. Would love to know more, so if you think your friend might help, please give her my address and phone number.

Thank you!

Sincerely,

Chuck West

THE PULLIN FAMILY

Foster Pullin, the oldest member of this family still living, remember his grandfather William Pullin telling him that he (William Pullin) came from New York to Adams County, Ohio. He was an orphan child and probably came via river boat. It is said that at that time, anyone who so desired could take a child from the boat in exchange for their work. (Editor's note: This is something we have not heard of or found in all of our research before this time.) William Pullin, on December 7, 1837, married Lucretia Allen, who was born in 1815 or 1816, and died on April 20, 1894, in Adams County, Ohio. Mrs. Pullin had a sister, Mrs. Joe Johnson, and a brother, J. B. Allen. William Pullin died the same year (1893) Roscoe Parker was hung. Lucretia and William Pullin are buried at Quinn's Chapel, on Gift Ridge, Adams County, but their graves are not marked. Their children:

James W. West, farmer and stock-raiser, Onarga, was born in Brown county, Ohio, on April 7, 1827. He was reared a farmer, but at the age of nineteen years went in a store belonging to his father as clerk, where he remained till 1849, when he entered Franklin, graduating in the classical course in 1853. He then engaged in teaching at New Athens, Harrison county, Ohio, but at the end of one year decided to take a theological course at Lane Seminary, in Cincinnati, and there graduated in 1856. He then returned to Brown county, Ohio, and became pastor of the Free Presbyterian church at Strait Creek, where he remained ten years. He then removed to La Salle county, Illinois, where he remained five years as pastor of the Congregational church at Tonica. He then came to Iroquois county, bought a farm of 200 acres in Sec. 35, T. 26, R. 14, in Onarga township, permanently located and engaged in stock-raising and farming at his new prairie home. He is now pastor of the Second Onarga Congregational church and of Crescent Congregational church. October 23, 1856, he married Miss Pheba M. L. Williamson. She is a native of Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, and was born August 6, 1832. They have three children living: Lucy M., Henry M. and Anna W. His straightforward friendly way has made for him many warm friends.

No son, Abner, Jr. nor Nicholas, is mentioned][39]
2. ABNER DEVORE and wife, Maria, John Jacobs and others who had interest in the property [that Jonas Mann and his wife, Agnes, had surveyed and sold to G(13)57. DAVID G. DEVORE], deeded this parcel of land to James B. Moore[40]

G(13)7. ABNER DEVORE, b. 1780-90, ae 40-50 in 1830 m(1) __ (d. before Jan. 1805, KY?)

* G(13)72. MARIA DEVORE

ANCESTOR'S SERVICES.

My ancestor's services in assisting in the establishment of American Independence during the War of the Revolution were as follows:

The service of John West is mentioned in "List of Virginia Revolutionary Soldiers" page 464 published by the State Library of Virginia as its eighth annual report. Before the work was published, a Certificate was obtained from the Virginia Historical Society and it stated he was a private in the Virginia service and that on April 8th 1782, he received a certificate for forty seven pounds - the full amount of his pay for his services.

The History of Brown Co Ohio by Josiah Morrow - 1872 - Page 304 states, "John West was a soldier in Revolutionary War and emigrated from Virginia to Brown Co with his family in 1798, and lived four years under the Territorial Government of Ohio. He died Aug 1808 and is buried in the Rains Cemetery at Aberdeen Ohio."

"Those who are regardless of their ancestors do not perform their duty to the world." Thucydides, the Athenian philosopher, who lived ... before Christ, expressed the sentiment in stronger terms, viz.: "Both justice and decency require that we should bestow on our forefathers an honorable remembrance." This deserted homestead sits just up from the river bank at a place formerly called "Brook's Bar", now the county landfill. To travelers coming down the Ohio in 1789 it was a welcome sight, for it meant that 'civilization' had a foothold in the "Canetuck" wilderness.

operated a ferry from his place it is more than likely, Myers reasoned, that the house situated so near the landing would be the Brooks place. Further evidence has seemed to confirm this theory.

When Myers bought the house he found that the original log part had deteriorated to a point where it couldn't be moved and reassembled. Not so with the large addition on the west side, however. He plans to move it and reconstruct it on a stone foundation that he has already built in Washington. It will be rebuilt as an addition to the log toll house that he reconstructed on Highway 68 this summer. In that house he was able to use some of the rafters out of the Brooks log cabin.

Again the old Brooks place will echo with the sounds of a young family. A part of our area's historic past will be preserved, not as a cold memorial, but as a living link with those two far-seeing brothers, William and Thomas Brooks.

Daniel Boone or not Daniel Boone? These initials were found carved deep into a huge rock situated on the Ohio River shore just east of Maysville's Public Landing.

This is all that remains of the original Brooks place discovered at the Mason County landfill. Brian Myers, the owner, uncovered the log cabin to use some of the joists and rafters for another log house.

Ever hear of Rittersville? It was to be a flourishing new river town, bustling with people. It is now the Mason County landfill, teeming with trash.

Recently an old log house was discovered at the county landfill. It tells the story of two early pioneers of Mason County, the Brooks brothers, William and Thomas.

Thomas Brooks owned the rich river bottom land about one mile above Limestone, site of the present landfill. He saw bright prospects for growth in the recently settled and rapidly growing Mason County of 1797. He proposed to "lay off a town, with convenient streets and lots, fronting on the river, and extending back a proper distance." He made "an offer to the public consideration" with an advertisement in the 'Kentucky Gazette', the state newspaper at Lexington on Feb. 17, 1797, one hundred and eighty-three years ago this month.

His offer listed some of the advantages of the proposed town over Maysville, indeed "more extensive advantages than any other spot on the Ohio!" He foresaw the "very great increase in the navigation of the Ohio, which has already taken place, and which evidently must increase." The 'gilded age' of steamboats was just around the bend!

Thomas Brooks saw commercial advantages in the location of his convenient spot on the River. He saw a link between the North and the South, joining the Great Lakes to the Ohio River by way of the Scioto River, "eventually to be the leading communication between the two". He was partially right in his forecast, but it was the Miami Canal along with the Erie Canal that took the place of the Scioto as the great channel of commerce, helping to make Cincinnati a great commercial center in the early 1800's.

The Brooks brothers, Thomas and William were well known in the Mason County of the late 1700's. William was captured, along with Col. Daniel Boone in 1778 while boiling salt at the lower Blue Licks. His brother Samuel was captured too and died in captivity of the hardships suffered on the long march from here to Detroit.

William did not return to Mason County for another five years being held prisoner by the Shawnees three years, and by the British at Mont du Lac Island near Montreal. It is said that he "bore the marks" of being kept in irons to his grave.

Thomas Brooks was the first of his family to migrate to Kentucky from Fauquier County, Va. in 1776. He and Simon Kenton were appointed spies under Daniel Boone in 1777. He married Sarah Boone in 1782 at Boone's Borough in Kentucky.

Thomas was one of the six trustees who laid out the town of Maysville. He is buried in the old cemetery behind the Mason County Library.

Both brothers were among four men recommended to the Governor of Kentucky in 1787 as tobacco inspectors at the first warehouse in Northen Kentucky, the "Limestone Warehouse."

During the 'Twenty Years War' of 1775-1795, the Ohio River was the scene of a bloody border war between the encroaching white population and the native Indian people. Life along the river was perilous and a state of constant readiness existed. In the years 1790 to 1792 the Indian raids became more frequent and intense. William was Lieutenant of the Mason County Military at that time and was later named Captain.

One incident relates what a bloody time it was. In March of 1791, Captain William Hubble was assisting a party of eight other men, one women and several children down river on a flatboat. After passing the three islands at Manchester they were attacked by three war canoes full of Indians. The Indians fired repeatedly killing or wounding seven of the men.

Captain Hubble grabbed a burning torch to ignite his musket when it didn't fire and killed one Indian. He knocked off another with a large piece of wood. He was shot in the arm during the fight.

While they were fighting off the Indians their boat drifted closer and closer to the northern shore. As it approached within wading distance hundreds of Indians came screaming and yelling from out of the woods toward the flatboat, firing on the already embattled party. "The oars, the oars! Hubble yelled, "lay on for your lives!" They were soon back in the current and the Indians retreated.

As they drifted down the river, unable to steer their boat, they saw the Brooks farm and yelled for help. William Brooks came to their aid and helped them to reach Maysville. They arrived about midnight, with seven of the nine men wounded or dying.

The next morning all of Limestone turned out to see the flatboat and count the bullet holes. Several hundred were counted within a space of three feet square. The oars were riddled with them. This was the talk of Mason County for a good while.

It was William with his brother Thomas who built the original log cabin that still stands overlooking the river at the county landfill. They were both in Mason County in 1787. Thomas held the deed in 1797, and stated that he had an "experience of eight years on that land at that time." His fourth child, a son named Mason, was born in Mason County in May of 1789. At that time Simon Kenton owned the deed, but it is likely that he sold the land to Thomas Brooks sometime in 1789.

The original log cabin could have been built by two men," said Brian Myers, area log cabin restoration expert. The logs are small enough that the two brothers could have erected the original cabin themselves as early as 1789.

It was Brian who discovered the log house at the county landfill. He is a well known contractor from Washington, Ky. who specializes in the removal and rebuilding of original log houses. While at the landfill one day he noticed an old building sitting down by the river. Always curious regarding old houses he took a closer look.

The building had been part of the Mason County Infirmary since 1874 but had been deteriorating for many years. It looked like a large house covered over with clapboard siding. But Brians experienced eye saw what appeared to be part of a log showing through where some of the siding had fallen off. He tore off some of the loose, rotting clapboards and discovered a log wall underneath.

The first buildings in this area were log. "I knew I had discovered something old and rare," Myers said. He bought it from the city who had been saving it to burn down as part of an exercise for the Fire Department.

The first part of the house to be built was the log cabin, about 18' x 20'. It may have had a dirt floor originally. The ceiling height measured only 7 ft from the present floor. There was a good size loft, but there is evidence that the ceiling was raised at one time

The first addition to be built was on the rear of the cabin. Several walls were discovered of an old style of architecture dating back to England. It is called "brick nogging".

Nogging means rough brick masonry used to fill in the open spaces of a wooden frame. Studs were erected a few feet apart to form a superstructure and then filled in with brick and clay. This could be plastered over with a mixture of lime and horsehair on the inside and clapboard on the outside later on.

All the timbers in the rear addition were hand hewn. The axe marks can still be seen.

The next addition, according to Brian was on the side of the cabin. It was built in the post and beam style, much like barns still are. At this time the ceiling in the cabin was raised to the new level matching the ceiling of the addition. The windows in the addition were made to match those of the cabin in size and height and then these three structures were covered over with clapboard. It now took on the appearance of a single large house.

On July 29, 1807, F. Cuming, an early visitor to Mason County, passed down the Ohio river opposite Cabin Creek. Three miles lower, on the left, is William Brooks creek, below which is a floating mill, and Brooks good house and fine farm on a very pleasant point, where bottom land commences, which extends to Limestone (now Maysville). From just below Brooks we had a fine view down a reach about three miles with Limestone or Maysville at the end of it and the struggling but pleasant village of Madison (Liberty) at the left, Limestone creek, and two gun boats at anchor, we landed there a little before 8 o'clock" wrote Cuming in his journal.

William Brooks operated a ferry at a spot that came to be known as "Brooks Bar," referring probably to a sand bar near shore. He died on his farm in Sept., 1816. In a letter his daughter wrote to Dr. Lyman Draper she described him as "about 56 years of age, 5 ft 10 in tall and heavily formed, and in his old age got fleshy and weighed 212 pounds."

Years passed by and people no longer remembered the log house that the Brooks brothers built. Thomas Brooks did sell a few lots but a flourishing town never developed there. For years the building was used by the ~~county as an infirmary.~~ Then it was just deserted.

Mrs. Ott Kendall of the Mason County Museum, said she knew that the Brooks place had existed but no one knew of its exact whereabouts. Different accounts placed it one mile or three miles up river.

Brian Myers walked along the Ohio River shoreline searching for clues in his attempt to trace ownership of the old building. He had searched records and deeds but couldn't exactly place the ownership to Thomas Brooks.

The Brooks' place is just east of the present Maysville public landing. Looking on the opposite shore across the river one can see what was once a ferry landing. Since it was known that Brooks said. He bought it the city who had been saving it to burn down as part of an exercise for the Fire Department.

The first part of the house to be built was the log cabin, about 18' x 20'. It may have had a dirt floor originally. The ceiling height measured only 7 ft from the present floor. There was a good size loft, but there is evidence that the ceiling was raised at one time

The first addition to be built was on the rear of the cabin. Several walls were discovered of an old style of architecture dating back to England. It is called "brick nogging".

Nogging means rough brick masonry used to fill in the open spaces of a wooden frame. Studs were erected a few feet apart to form a superstructure and then filled in with brick and clay. This could be plastered over with a mixture of lime and horsehair on the inside and clapboard on the outside later on.

All the timbers in the rear addition were hand hewn. The axe marks can still be seen.

The next addition, according to Brian was on the side of the cabin. It was built in the post and beam style, much like barns still are. At this time the ceiling in the cabin was raised to the new level matching the ceiling of the addition. The windows in the addition were made to match those of the cabin in size and height and then these three structures were covered over with clapboard. It now took on the appearance of a single large house.

On July 29, 1807, F. Cuming, an early visitor to Mason County, passed down the Ohio river opposite Cabin Creek. Three miles lower, on the left, is William Brooks creek, below which is a floating mill, and Brooks good house and fine farm on a very pleasant point, where bottom land commences, which extends to Limestone (now Maysville). From just below Brooks we had a fine view down a reach about three miles with Limestone or Maysville at the end of it and the struggling but pleasant village of Madison (Liberty) at the left, Limestone creek, and two gun boats at anchor, we landed there a little before 8 o'clock" wrote Cuming in his journal.

William Brooks operated a ferry at a spot that came to be known as "Brooks Bar," referring probably to a sand bar near shore. He died on his farm in Sept., 1816. In a letter his daughter wrote to Dr. Lyman Draper she described him as "about 56 years of age, 5 ft 10 in tall and heavily formed, and in his old age got fleshy and weighed 212 pounds."

Years passed by and people no longer remembered the log house that

ANCESTOR'S SERVICES

My ancestor's services in assisting in the establishment of American Independence during the War of the Revolution were as follows:

Alexander Edwards was sent in the winter of 1781 to General Green's camp in North Carolina with a letter to his brother, David, stating that David's wife was ill and her life despaired of, and asking that David be furloughed so he might visit her. The two brothers went to the colonel of the regiment asking for David's furlough, but the colonel said it was impossible to spare a good soldier at that time as a battle was expected. The colonel told David that he could leave for a few days if he could get a substitute. Alexander offered to take his place and was accepted. When David arrived home he found his wife to be in a serious condition and when she was out of danger he rejoined his command. The battle had been fought and the colonel on releasing Alexander gave him a certificate stating that he had been regularly enrolled in his command, in an emergency; that he had served sixteen days and that he had taken part in a battle with the British forces at the Cowpens had conducted himself creditably.

The Battle of Cowpens was one of the important engagements of the American Revolution in the South, and it was fought on January 17, 1781, and resulted in an outstanding victory for the patriots.

The said Alexander Edwards ✓

The West Family Record

VOLUME I SPRING HILL, KANSAS, MARCH, 1911 NUMBER 1

Spring Hill, Kansas, March, 1911.

To the descendants of Thomas and Sarah Trammel West, of Fairfax county, Virginia, whose family came West to the Ohio river about 1800, Greeting:—

For some years I have taken much interest in learning what I could of our West family of the past, and also of the present generation. I have collected quite a good deal of information from correspondence with members of the different families. I have enjoyed this search and the information gained thereby very much, but nobody else gets the benefit of it, so I have decided to put what I have into print and distribute in among the relatives as far as I can learn their addresses. Believing it will be of great interest to many and will create a desire to know more of the connection. No doubt mistakes are made in giving the history of the different falilies, but the general information will be correct. I am looking forward with the hope that not only this paper will be issued, but that others will follow in which many of the connection may contribute interesting history of our forefathers and mothers and what will not be less interesting, accounts of those of us who are living now. Let us put into print what we know of the elder ones who have gone, but whom we knew in our early years. If a good picture is possessed, a cut can be made and printed, which [illegible] satisfaction [illegible] who never saw them. If it can be done, and I hope it can, a paper of this size might be issued occasionally, say quarterly. These papers can be, and by all means they should be, preserved and finally bound. They would contain a world of information for future members of the family. And some years hence they need not be in doubt about whether their great grandfathers were soldiers in the Civil War or Spanish War, etc., as we are to-day, whether any of our forefathers were in the Revolution.

The printer charges ten dollars to print two hundred and fifty copies of this little paper. Added to this will be the postage to get it distributed, so you see the expense would not be heavy if enough were to contribute.

I will send copies to as many as I know the addresses of and others can have it by sending name and address. I will make this appology to you, dear cousins: I have always lived and worked on a farm, and this is my first attempt to edit a paper and, if I did not feel that it is a duty I owe you, would not attempt such a thing. So please excuse the blunders that I make. I hope this work may go on and may fall into more competent hands than mine.

LESLIE COMBS WEST.

Letters from the Rev. Joseph S. West, of Brown county, Ohio.

My father had told me that his grand father's brother, John, had moved into Ohio, opposite Maysville, Ky., and that his father never knew anything more about the family. In the summer of 1891, in conversation with Mr. Abe Howard, of Louisburg, Kans., he asked me if I were related to the Wests of Brown county, Ohio. I did not know, but suspected they were the family of which father had spoken.

In the spring of 1892, Mr. James B Norton, of Paola, Kansas, gave me the address of the Rev., Joseph S. West, and I wrote to him and received the following letters from him, which have been the foundation of my inquiries I have learned since that he was mistaken in some things, but his letter shows that he was well posted in regard to the different families. I regret to say that Mr. West died two months after he wrote the second letter—July 25th. He was 66 years of age. I will give some history of him later.

Red Oak, Ohio, April 21st, 1890

Mr. L. C. West,

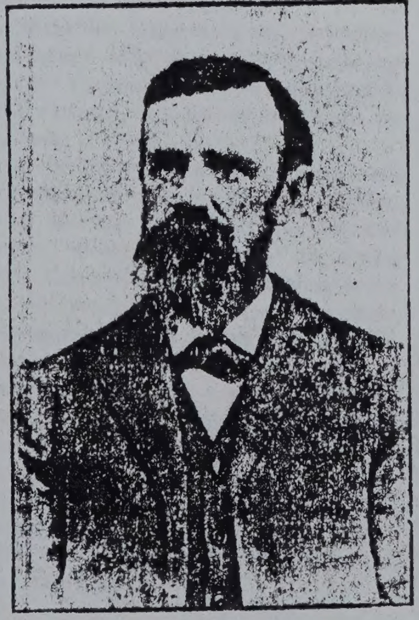
In answer to yours of the 18th, I write. I suppose from what you write, that you belong to our family connection. I am sorry you did not state to what branch of the family you belong.

I will give you what I can of the family history. My great grandfather lived in Fairfax county, Virginia. His wife's maiden name was Sarah Trammel. They had six sons, John, William, Hugh, George, Thomas and Robert, and three daughters, Nancy, Sally and Sibba. William settled opposite Marietta, Ohio; Hugh, near Brookville, Indiana; George, near Bethel, Clermont county, Ohio; Thomas, remained in Virginia; Robert, the youngest, lived near Centerville, Clinton county, Ohio. My grandfather settled in this county opposite Mayville, near Aberdeen, the noted "Gretna Green" of Ohio. Nancy married Joab Reid and lived in this county; Sally, remained in Virginia, marrying some one whose name I do not know; Sibba never was married. Please answer if you belong to the connection and give me the history of your branch of the family.

I have seen George, Hugh and Robert, also Joab Reed. Robert married Henrietta Fairfax. It is likely, from the best information I have, that the family traces back to Lord De La War, who settled the State of Delaware.

Give my kind regards to Mr. J. B Norton, who was an old pupil of mine and a very bright one.

Very sincerely yours,
JOSEPH S. WEST.
Red Oak, Brown county, Ohio.



L. C. WEST At 40 Years of Age

Red Oak, Ohio, May 25th, 1892.

Mr. L. C. West,

Dear Sir:—I received you very welcome communication some days since and delayed answering till I could talk with some of the relatives here. I am sorry that I cannot now give you a more satisfactory account of our family. As I wrote you, my great grandfather, Thomas West, lived in Fairfax county, Old Virginia, and I suppose died there. Our great grandmother, Sarah Trammel West, lived to come West with her children and made her home with the family of her son, John. There are three or four of the relatives living here who remember her. An older sister of mine says she was at my father's home the morning after I was born, being the 8th of December, 1825. She died about 1828, at my Aunt Ellen Baynes'. Alfred West, son of George West, of Clermont county, came up and got her effects for a sister of his to whom she had bequeathed them. She died at the age of 88. The children of Thomas and Sarah West were (I do not know the order of their birth, except that Robert was the youngest), sons Thomas, William, John, Hugh, George and Robert. The daughters were Nancy, Sally and Sibba. 2 Thomas remained in Virginia. I do not know anything of his family, except that I think his son, George, came West and lived for a time in my grandfather's family, afterwards married and settled near Williamsburg, Clermont count, where he raised a family of respectable children, one son serving in the Legislature of the State and one being a Methodist preacher of some note, located for a time in Cincinnati.

Of 3 William's family, to which you belong, you have given a very satisfactory account. Hugh settled near Brookville, Indiana. One of his daughters visited us about 1898, making the trip on horse-back. My recollection is [illegible] all about the same time. George was married four times and raised 23 or 25 children, living near Bethel, Clermont county. I have seen him several times. His son, James, was noted as a drinker and fighter. Alfred was a very worthy man. He and others of the family removed to the vicinity of Vincennes, Indiana, bought land, which proved to contain coal, from which they realized a competency. I know nothing further of the family, except the youngest, Andrew, left an orphan, lived with relatives of his mother and went to school to me about 1851. He is now, if living, about 50 years old. Robert, the youngest son of Thomas Sr., married Henrietta Fairfax, and settled near Centerville, Clinton county. I visited them about 1846, at which time both were living. He was a very fleshy man (something quite unusual in the family), about 5 feet 8 inches in height, yet weighing over 300 pounds. He had three sons and eight daughters. Harrison married a McFadden; Benson, married a Grice; Vincent, died young; Melinda, married I. N. McVay; Kate, mattied C. McVay; Nancy, married James Evans; Polly, married Hugh McFadden; Martha, married Thomas Babb; Hannah, married E. Edwards; Eliza, married John Morton; Henrietta, married Thomas McVay. Quite a number of the family still live in Clinton county. Sarah West married "well," as I was told, and I suppose remained in Virginia, as I know nothing more of her or her family. Nancy married Joab Reed, she must have been among the oldest of the family, as her husband was in the Revolutionary War. I used to sit at his feet, when a child, and hear him tell anecdotes of the war, and Old Virginia, of which he had a boundless store and delighted in nothing so much as to fight his battles over again with delighted listeners, such as we were. He was a brother to your great grandmother. And my sister says that one of George West's wives was also a Reed. There was always a vein of waggery running through the Reed stock. While Joab was in the army, they were short on rations. The home folks cooked a big kettle full of hominy. One of the girls, looking at the hominy, and thinking of the brother in want, said: "I wish Joab had all that hominy in his belly." The men were in the army and the women had to work in the field.

Two of the Reed girls were grubbing, a man rode up to them and said: "How are you ladies?" One of them, looking up, said: "You certainly must be a ——— fool to think you see 'ladies' grubbing." Joab had two sons and four daughters. The sons, Travis and William, spent their lives and left families here. The daughters married, one a man named Tillet, one Booz, one Warren, and the other Lawwill. Joab used to talk much of life in Virginia. I think he spent some time in West Virginia. He used to talk much of overseeing at Henderson's quarters, which, I understood to be in West Virginia. His tongue would get a little thick sometimes and he would say: "I whipped skin enough off of Niggers' backs to shingle a barn."

And now I come to speak of John's family. He married Eleanor Edwards in Virginia. Five or six of their children were born there. They removed to Washington, Mason county, Kentucky, about 1796, where my father was born the 1st day of January, 1797 In 17[illegible] [illegible] removed to the Ohio side, opposite Maysville, then called Lime stone, where he continued to reside until 1808, when he died, leaving my father, then 11 years old, as the main stay of the family. There were four brothers and five sisters. The brothers were William, James, John and Edward. The sisters were Lizzie, Lettuce, Sarah, Jane and Ellen. Lizzie married John Middleton. They lived together as man and wife for 75 years. The last of their life was spent in Champaign county, Ohio. Moving there about 1835. They had six sons, William, James, Thomas, John, Washington and Edwards. They had five daughters, Lettuce, Eleanor, Susan, Sally and Lizzie. Lettuce married David Hatfield, Ellen Steven Thompson, Susan Abraham Thompson, Sally Hiram Dernald and Lizzie —— Perry. Lettuce West married John Brown. Their sons were David, William, John, George, James and Edward. James and Edward settled at Peoria, Illinois. Two of George's sons, John and William, are near Mt. Hope, Kansas. The daughters of John and Lettuce, Milly married ——— Brown, Jane Joel Martin and Sarah Charles Abbot. My Aunt Sarah married John Wood and settled at Indianapolis. Their sons, John and William, are there yet. The daughters were Eleanor, Phebe, Mary, Martha and Cornelia. Phebe married ——— Daugherty and is living in Columbus, Ohio. Cornelia married Robert Browning and is living some where in the West. The others are dead. My Aunt Jane married her cousin, Travis Reed. To them were born sons John, Joab, Edward and Terry; daughters Nancy, Ellen, Sarah, Julia, Lucy, Lizzie, Hannah, Mary and Emily. These all married and remained here except Ellen, who remained single and lives in Shelby county, Indiana, and Lucy, who married James Middleswart and lives somewhere in Iowa. My Aunt Ellen married Samuel Bayne. With them my great grandmother died. They had two sons, James and John, who both died in Southern Kansas. James in Wichita of heart disease and John at Anthony, in and about which they both left families. Aunt Ellen's daughters were Julia, Ellen, Malinda, Nancy, Abby, Mary and Susan. Julia married William King, Ellen her cousin, George Brown, whose boys are at Mt. Hope, Kansas; Malinda James Wright, who lived near Washington, Illinois; Nancy ——— Thompson, also in Woodford county, Illinois. Susan married George Brown, whose family is in Western Kansas. My Uncle James was killed by a horse running away with a plow when he was 9 years old. Uncle William married Mary White. Their sons were John, who died here, leaving a large family. William B., to whom you wrote, lives here with quite a family and James is a Presbyterian preacher some where in Illinois. Of the daughters, Lucy married James Campbell and still lives at the age of 85 near Marion, Indiana. Sarah married John Beasley, and Jane Harrison Beasley. The Beasleys were Uncles of James Beasley Norton, your friend. Hester, married Nicholas F. Devore, and Helen Joseph Hamilton. Harrison Beasley and wife still live in Marshalltown, Iowa. My Uncle Edwards married Sarah Edwards. To them were born John, George, Alexander, Russell and Edwards; daughters Martha, Susan, Ellen, Amanda and Letitia. These all married and have families, mostly here. My father John married Levinah Stewart. They had eight children who lived to be grown. Susan married Harrison Pickerill, moved to Indiana, died young, leaving one daughter, who married I. N. Saunders, and lives some where in the West. My sister Ellen married J. W. Pickerill. They are living here. Abigail married W. N. Ramey and is living in Unadilla, Nebraska. Caroline married O. H. Bartholomew and they are living in St. Louis. He is pastor of one of the city church. My brother James lives near Washburn, Woodford county, Illinois. William lives near Unadilla, Nebraska. He was a Major [illegible] and served two years as member of the Legislature of Ohio. My brother John died here, leaving a family. And last but not least (I have weighed 325 pounds), I married Susan Dixon and we are the parents of 12 children, 6 sons and 6 daughters. The sons are John Wilson, William Nimon, Thomas Archie, James Henry, Joseph Stewart and Oscar Ald. The girls are Lizzie, Louisa, Mary, Levinah, Martha Ellen, Sarah Wood and Susan. Of these four are married John W. is practicing, in Philadelphia. Wm. N. is farming near here, Archie is at Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, expecting to graduate this spring. Lizzie married Archie N. Liggett and he lives on a farm. Levinah married William Smith and is in Otoe county, Nebraska. Our family of Wests, the Reeds and the Browns have been Democrats, the Middletons and Woods and Baynes Republicans. Our family, Uncle Edwards, the Reeds, Middletons and Browns have been members of the Christian (Campbellite) church. Uncle William's family are Methodists and Presbyterians. Baynes were United Presbyterians. Robert West and family were Christian (New Lights).

I am afraid you won't read this. I think you ought to. It won't be as much trouble to you to read it as to me to write it. If you don't read it, please send it back. I have always of late years taken quite an interest in family history. I suppose from the best information I have that the family in Virginia were poor; and it has been with the most of us "root pig or starve"; and most of the family have chosen to root. I think there is much honesty and a great deal of energy in the blood. If this should interest you, please answer.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH S. WEST.

1 I had supposed that Joseph's statement that Thomas West, one of the brothers, had remained in Virgnia, was correct. But in an effort to get into communication with some of George West's family in Clermont county, Ohio, I wrote to Major Samuel A. West of Milford of that county, but the facts I gave him did not agree with the history of his family, and he handed my letter to Rev. R. E. Smith, a Methodist minister, stationed at Milford at that time, January, 1895. After several letters had passed between us, I became convinced that Thomas had come West about the time the other brothers did—about 1800—and settled at, or near Bethel, Clermont county, Ohio. Mr. Smith's mother was Sarah West, and Thomas West was his great grandfather. He suggested that I write his Uncle, William, at Ames, Iowa, for additional facts, as to the family, which I did, and received the following letter:

Rock Rapids, Iowa, Mar. 2, 1897.

Mr. Leslie C. West, Spring Hill, Kans.,

Dear Sir:—My father has turned your letter over to me to answer. He is not living in Ames at present, but is making his home at this place. I presume you are correct in your conclusion that your great grandfather and mine were brothers, and that ~~your~~ our great-great grandfather was one and the same man—Thomas West of Fairfax county, Virginia. Rev. R. E. Smith is a nephew of my father's, a cousin of mine. My great grandfather was Thomas West and came from near Culpeper, Virginia, to Clermont county, Ohio. He died near Bethel, in that county. His sons were John, James, William, George and Hugh. Of the daughters I have no definite information, but I believe one was Elizabeth, who married a Bennet; another Hannah, whose name after marriage was Beck. I believe the entire family lived and died in Clermont county, Ohio.

George, my grandfather, married an Elsberry. His children were Agatha, Thomas, Elizabeth, Sarah, Nancy, Mary, George, Isaac, William, Enoch and Flavius. Agatha West, the eldest, still lives at Williamsburg, Ohio, and is in her 88th year. She probably could give you more definite information than my father. Thomas died in infancy, Elizabeth married Charles Harry, and her daughter, Nancy Harry Palmer, is now living in Kansas. Sarah married a Smith, and Rev. R. E. Smith is her son. Nancy married Daniel Smith, Mary married Wm. L. Kane. George died in infancy, Isaac when 14 years of age. William, my father, married Harriet Porter and came to Iowa in 1863. Enoch, an M. E. minister, died at Urbana, Ohio, and left a family of two boys and two girls, who still reside there. Flavius died at the age of nineteen.

I think my father told me that Nancy and Mary still live at Williamsburg. Almost the entire family remained in that vicinity, my father being an exception.

Of our immediate family, there are two, Flavius and William, at Ogden, Iowa, Nannie West Breneman and Orella West Fitchpatrick at Ames, Iowa, Clara Manning at Sheldon, Iowa, Harriet West and myself at this place.

Possibly I have given you a more extended account of our branch of the family than you desire, but I trust you may be able to glean some useful information from it. From the account you give of the family, I am convinced that we are cousins thrice removed.

My father was much interested in your letter, as was also I.

Very truly,
AGATHA WEST RAMSEY.

3 William West, Sr., my great grandfather, lived in Fairfax county, Va. He married Susana Reed and their children were all born there. They removed to Wood county, Va., now Pleasants county, W. Va., about 1805.

Susana Reed West died about 1823 and William Sr., was drowned in the Ohio river at the mouth of Bull creek, Va., about 1827. I think their graves are unmarked. He was a cabinet maker, and a "secretary-bureau" he made is now in my possession and prized very highly by me. My information is that he was about 70 years old when he died. I suppose his brother, Hugh, who afterwards settled at Brookville, Ind., came to Wood county, with him, as he lived there for a time, going to Indiana about 1827. William Sr. and Susana's children were: Newman, Sally, William, Russell Wilson and Susanna. Newman was born January 19, 1792. He married Eliza Sharp in Wood county. They moved to Carroll county, Ind. He died April 10, 1866. Their children were: Susan, Sarah, Charles Russell, John Wilson, Martna Ann, Jane Elizabeth, George Gale and Mary Minerva. Susan married Hiram Berkshire; had no children. Sarah married Felix McLaughlin, had three boys and three girls Charles Russell married Catherine Willison. They had three boys and three girls. William Spencer married Elizabeth Kuns. Archibald Rich married Elizabeth Feather; they had no children. John Wilson married Delilah A. Cronk; they had ten children, three boys and seven girls. Lived in McCain county, Ills. Martha did not marry. Jane married Christian Wood. They were living in Texas when the Civil War came on and traded their property there for 460 acres of land in Gentry county, Mo. They spent the last of their lives in Pasadena, Calif. They had two children, a boy and a girl, who live in California. George married Harriet Hoover. They had three sons and two daughters. Mary married Jacob Mullendoor. He was a volunteer in the Civil War and was wounded in the right elbow. They had three boys and one girl. Most of the family lived and died in Carroll county.

William, Lord Delaware, and his wife, Elizabeth Strange, had issue: (1) Thomas succeeded to the title; married Anne, daughter of Sir Francis Knolles, K. G., (whose wife was a niece of Queen Anna Boleyn, and consequently first cousin to Queen Elizabeth) and died March 24, 1603; (2) Jane married first, Thomas Weinman (or Weynman), whose son or kinsman, Sir Ferdinando Weynman, lived for a time in Virginia; second, James Cressy; third, Sir Thomas Tasburgh; fourth, Rolph Sheldon, of Beoly, Worcestershire; (3) Elizabeth married Richard Blount, of Dodsham, Sulfolk; (4) Mary died unmarried.

Thomas, Lord Delaware and his wife, Anne Knolles, had issue: (1) Thomas, Lord Delaware, born July 9, 1577; died June 17, 1618; Governor of Virginia, and ancestor to the present Earl Delaware, and of Lord Sackville West, the late British minister at Washington; (2) Sir Robert died during his father's life-time; (3) Captain Francis born October 28, 1586; came to Virginia in 1608; Governor from November the 16, 1627 to 1629, and was a member of the Council; in 1629 was sent to England as agent of the colony.

He married—but had no known issue. (4) Col. John, emigrated to Virginia; justice of York county, 1634; burgess, 1629-1630; Governor of the colony from May, 1635, to January, 1637. He was appointed marshal and muster-master general in the year 1641; member of the council, 1631, until his death; he acquired a very large landed estate, much of it in the present counties of King William and King and Queen, where his descendants resided. In a patent of 1651 the head rights include himself "four times," that is he having made four voyages from England, Mrs. Anne West "twice," and John West, Junior. The exact date of Colonel John West's death does not appear, but it is evident that it was about 1659, at that time his name disappears from the council, and in 1662 a patent which he had obtained in 1657 was renewed to his son, Captain John West. The language of the act of exemption passed by the assembly in March, 1659-60, also shows that Colonel West was dead. (5) Nathaniel, born November 3, 1592, emigrated to Virginia and died in 1623, leaving a widow, Frances, and a son, Nathaniel, of whom nothing further is known; (6) Elizabeth married Herbert Pelham, of Mickleham, Sussex; (7) Lettice married Henry Ludlow, of Tedley, Hampshire; (8) Penelope married Herbert Pelham; (9) Eleanor married Sir William Savage; (10) Anne married John Pellott, of Bolne, Sussex.

Colonel John West and his wife, Anne, had as far as is known an only son, Colonel John West, who is mentioned in various records as Captain in 1662, Major in 1667, Lieutenant Colonel in 1673 and sat on the Bacon's Rebellion court martial in 1676, as Colonel. At the session of March, 1659-60, the House of Burgess, passed the following act, or order: "Whereas, the many important favors and services rendered to the country of Virginia by the noble family of the West, predecessors to Mr. John West, their now only survivor, it is ordered that the levies of the said master West and his family be remitted, and that he be exempted from payment thereof during life."

He married in or before 1667, a daughter of Major Joseph Crashaw, of York county, and died not long after the date of his will, 1689, certainly before 1693, as the Council journals show.

He had issue: (1) Captain Nathaniel, of Hanover, and King William counties; justice of Hanover, 1721; died before 1752, leaving an only child, Unity, who married before 1719, Colonel William Dandridge, of King William, and died before 1754. Her descendants are numerous and embrace also the families of Aylett, Spotswood, Chamberlayne, Pollard, etc. (2) Colonel John, appointed justice of King iam, 1705; married Judith Armistead, and Queen, 1692, and sheriff the same year; appointed justice of King William (she married, second ——— Butts), and had an only son, Charles, of "West Point" King William (will dated 1734), who died without male issue; (3) Captain Thomas, of King William, married. (4) Anne married Henry Fox, of King William.

Issue of Captain Thomas and (——) West: (1) Nathaniel, of King William, (will dated 1727), probably died without issue; (2) Thomas, appointed justice of King William, 1732, and died while a member of the House of Burgesses, 1743-4. He inherited West Point and other estate from his cousin, Charles; married ——— and left issue, of whom the eldest son was John West, of West Point, member of House of Burgesses, 1756, 1757, 1758, etc., and vestry man of Saint John's parish, 1771; married about 1750, Elizabeth, daughter of George Seaton, of King William county; (3) Colonel Frances, of King William, member of the House of Burgesses from 1748 to 1758, married a widow, Mrs. Jane Bingham, daughter of William Cole, of Warwick county; one of his daughters, Agnes, married her cousin, William Dandridge; (4) daughter married Richard Gregory, and was ancestress of the present Judge Roger Gregory, of Elsing Green, King William.

The geneology given has been compiled from Hening, the land patents, and other authentic sources.

Some of the family were residents of King William in 1805, as Delaware West of that county, entered William and Mary College in the year named, and a contemporary newspaper records the marriage in 1842, of Doctor Robert West of King William and Anne E. Scott of Prince Edward.

It is believed that none of the name has been resident in the county for many years—certainly the large estates once possessed by the family have passed into other hands.

It is stated that a gentleman, a descendant through females, has a number of old portraits and other relics of the Wests, and there are, probably, many representatives of the name whom former queries have not reached.

Everyone having information in regard to the family is requested to furnish it to The Critic for publication.

Besides the families named above, branches of the Dabneys and Quarles are of this descent.

The family of West, of Fairfax and adjoining counties, is derived from an uncle of Benjamin West, the painter, who removed from Pennsylvania to Virginia.

There were also families of the name, but of no relationship of which we are informed in Warwick, Norfork and on the Eastern Shore.

When the account of the Wests was published in The Critic given above the information in our possession only enabled us to trace the family down to about the time of the Revolution. We are now indebted to two members of the family for memoranda, which continued the deduction to the present day. The Colonel West named by our correspondent in the second section below as father of William West was Colonel Francis West of King William county, who was sheriff of that county in 1741, and a member of the House of Burgesses from 1748 to 1758, and who married a widow, Mrs. Jane Bingham, daughter of William Cole, of Warwick county. Besides his son, William, he had at least one daughter, Agnes, who married William Dandridge. The ancestry of Colonel Francis West and Colonel John West will be found traced at length in our former account.

Colonel John West of West Point, King William county, was a member of the House of Burgess, 1756, to 1758, and vestry man of Saint John's parish. 1771. During the Revolution he was a Tory in politics, and is said to have been very indignant with his sons for taking the American side. After the war he sold West Point and bought an estate on the James river. He married about 1750 Elizabeth, daughter of George Seaton of King William county and had issue: (1) Major Thomas, settled in Campbell county; appointed a justice of that county, 1801; member of the House of Delegates; married Elizabeth Blair, daughter of Robert Bolling, of "Chellowe"; (2) John removed to Norfork in 1798, and died 1818; married Anne Cornick, of Prince's Anne county; (3) Delaware, of King William county, entered William and Mary College in 1805, and was a lawyer; died unmarried.

His son, Francis T., was elected Captain and ex-Governor Boggs, of Missouri, honorary Captain. Before reaching the settlements in Colorado, Colonel John C. Fremont sent an urgent appeal for volunteers. Captain Francis and his three brothers at once entered active service in the Mexican war and served to its close.

The variation in the form of this geneology from that usually given in our columns is due to the fact that it is printed as sent us by a correspondent. The letters "a," "b," etc., indicate the successive generations.
